House Passes Foreign Aid Bill

Vote Is 333-66; Fund Slashed To 200 Million

Controls Clamped On Help To Red Nations

WASHINGTON, April 30 (AP)—The administration's foreign relief program suffered a jolting blow today when the House passed a bill slashed from $350,000,000 to $200,000,000 and clamping sharp controls on help to Russian-dominated countries.

The tattered bill, passed on a roll-call vote of 333 to 66, now goes to the Senate, where administration hopes it will be restored to something resembling its original form. The Senate Foreign Affairs Committee yesterday approved the full $350,000,000 unanimously.

(The bill is entirely distinct from the proposed $400,000,000 program of helping stiffen Greece and Turkey against Communism).

The House version, as reported:

1. Authorizes expenditure of $200,000,000 in American aid abroad.

2. Limits nearly all the aid to Italy, Greece, Austria, Hungary, Poland and China.

3. Provides that none of these countries can get the help if their governments are under the domination of Russia, unless they agree to strict American control of the supplies down to the point of their actual distribution.

$15,000,000 For "Emergencies"

4. Sets apart $15,000,000 of the fund for "emergencies" in such unnamed places as Trieste.

5. Earmarks another $15,000,000 for the United Nations' Children's Emergency Fund.

6. Requires at least 90 per cent of the relief supplies to be purchased in this country.

7. Prohibits distribution of relief in countries paying war reparations out of current production.

8. Demands as a condition for obtaining the aid, the right of the American press and radio to report on its distribution free from censorship.

9. Places control of distribution under an independent foreign relief administrator, rather than the State Department.

Undersecretaries of State Dean Acheson and Will Clayton had sought to keep its terms "flexible" by leaving unnamed the countries to be aided.

Smith Leads Successful Fight

But, amid turbulent protests against Russian tactics in countries of the Soviet Union's borders, Rep. Lawrence H. Smith (R-Wis) successfully led a fight to list the countries by name. He said he did so to make sure that none of the aid would go to Russia itself.

Rep. Colmer (D-Miss) pushed through a ban against any aid to countries "whose governments are under the domination" of Russia—a move aimed directly at Poland. This, however, was modified by a motion from Rep. Mundt (R-SD) to allow such aid if they will permit American supervision of relief supplies. This, he said, would be insurance that "United States De-

WASHINGTON, April 30 (AP) — The United States will build a base for its heaviest and longest range bombers in Aroostook County, Maine, the corner of the nation closest to troubled Europe.

This important development in the nation's strategic planning was disclosed today in a routine announcement by the Army Air Forces that construction of the new base, four miles from the Canadian border, will start about June 15. It probably will be completed in the fall of 1948, at a cost estimated between $13,000,000 and $14,000,000.

Vittorio Mussolini Now In Argentina

Is There Illegally But Hopes To Remain

IN ARGENTINA—Vittorio Mussolini (above), son of the late Benito Mussolini, arrived in Argentina "clandestinely" a month ago and yesterday told an Associated Press correspondent he hopes he will be permitted to remain in the South American country.

By JOSEPH F. McEVOY

BUENOS AIRES, April 30 (AP) — Vittorio Mussolini said today that he arrived in Argentina "clandestinely" a month ago and expressed the hope he would be permitted to remain in this South American country and bring his family from Italy so he can live and work "in peace."

The son of the late Benito Mussolini is in Argentina illegally, but both he and his attorney, Victor Paulucci Cornejo, were optimistic that Vittorio's "situation will be legalized within a week" to permit him to take a job which was offered him.

In an exclusive interview, Vittorio declined to say how he made the trip from his homeland or the manner in which he entered Argentina but indicated he might explain later if his effort to remain in Argentina were successful. He said only that he left Italy two months ago.

Faces No War Crimes Charges

"There are no charges of war criminal against me as far as the Allied governments are concerned," he said, adding: "I am certain also that the present government of Italy does not want me."

(Several days ago Luigi Ferrari, chief of the Italian Federal Police, said that Vittorio, last seen in Milan shortly before that city was liberated in April, 1945, was wanted in Italy for collaboration with the Germans.)

(Before the war Vittorio was an aviator and race car enthusiast. At 17 he became the youngest licensed pilot in Italy. He served as a pilot during the Italian-Ethiopian war and also flew in Libya and in raids on Greece in the Second World War.)

The tall, husky 31-year-old son of the former Italian Duce said he chose Argentina as a place where he hoped to settle for the rest of his life because his father-in-law, Jose Buvoll, lives in Buenos Aires.

Wife, Children In Milan

Young Mussolini's wife, Orsola was born in Buenos Aires. He said she was now living in Milan with their two children, Guido and Adria.

Declining to answer any political questions, Vittorio said: "I never had much interest in politics. I have less now, and you can be sure I never have any intention of mixing in Argentine politics. I am just another Italian immigrant."

Vittorio said: "I am broke and have to earn a living." He explained that he had been offered a job as an office administrator in a wholesale butcher business which will pay him 1,500 pesos ($375) a month.

Paulucci Cornejo said he planned to surrender Vittorio to the police so that the young Italian can be arrested as an illegal immigrant as the first step in bringing the matter before the court.

Building Material Decontrol Voted 127-48 By House

Proposal To Extend Rent Curbs Assailed

WASHINGTON, April 30—(AP)—The House voted 127 to 48 today to kill virtually all government controls over building materials and construction, and members shouted stormy protest against a pending proposal to extend modified rent controls from June 30 to December 31.

With some members demanding a blanket 10 per cent rent boost while others called for an immediate end of all controls, the House put off a showdown on the politically potent rent issue until tomorrow.

Rep. McCormack (D-Mass) capped the day's fiery debate with the announcement that he will attempt to send the entire housing-rent bill back to the House Banking Committee for rewriting.

Runs Counter To Vets' Appeals

McCormack told the House that abolishing controls on building materials runs counter to appeals from all veterans organizations.

Across the Capital, Sen. Wagner (D-NY) and Taylor (D-Idaho) blasted the pending Senate rent control extension bill and advocated carrying on the present rent program unchanged at least through June 30, 1948.

The Senate bill would end controls next March 1 and vest a big measure of authority in local committee for making rent increases.

"Congress must not repeat the tragic mistake made a year ago in dealing with price control," the two Democratic senators said in a statement, referring to the scrapping of price curbs.

More Housing Predicted

In the House, Rep. Monroney (D-Okla) sought to continue limited allocation and priority powers in construction, but Chairman Wolcott (R-Mich), of the House Banking Committee, told the House that more dwellings would be built quicker if the construction industry is freed of the controls. Monroney sought to amend the bill which covers both rents and housing.

Another amendment by Rep. Jav-

"Small Tornado" Hits Emmitsburg

[By The Associated Press]

A heavy windstorm described as a "small tornado" struck Emmitsburg late yesterday, unroofing several buildings, disrupting power and telephone lines and felling trees.

There were no immediate reports of personal injuries.

Heavy rain and hail struck other sections of Maryland last night.

The Frederick Post said it had fragmentary reports from the Carroll County town near the Pennsylvania border that the roof of one downtown building was blown off and was blocking the town square.

Another roof demolished two automobiles, while a roof was blown from a third building in the southern part of the community.

A heavy rain which was reported at Hancock and Hagerstown earlier in the evening struck the Baltimore area, accompanied by hail and a lightning display, about 8:40 p. m.

Dr. Castillo Graham, state entomologist at the Hancock fruit laboratory, said the rain was "worth its weight in gold" to fruit growers in Washington County.

Trieste Parade Bombed; 25 Pro-Yugos Are Injured

TRIESTE, Thursday, May 1 (AP) — Twenty-five pro-Yugoslav demonstrators were injured, four seriously, last night when two bombs were hurled into the midst of a parade in a predominately Italian section of the city. Police said between 5,000 and 10,000 were participating in the parade.

Police made three arrests, but did not disclose the identity or nationality of these persons.

The demonstrators came down from the hills surrounding Trieste, carrying torches and flares lighted in the shape of Communist stars, hammer and sickle emblems and the word "Tito".

Country-Wide Phone Picture Grows Dimmer

N. Y. Workers May Not Return; Talks Recess

WASHINGTON, April 30 — (AP) — The country-wide telephone strike picture grew even dimmer tonight with refusal of at least part of the members of a New York union to go back to work under an announced settlement, and a recess in a key part of negotiations here.

An announcement of progress had been hoped for in the Washington talks affecting the nation's long distance workers, but these negotiations were silently recessed until 4 p. m. EST tomorrow.

Strike settlements earlier had been announced covering 43,000 workers —37,000 in New York and 6,000 in Pennsylvania.

In New York, members of one union, the Traffic Employes Association, decided in a series of meetings not to go to work tomorrow past pickets of the National Federation of Telephone Workers. The federation, embracing 39 unions on strike, is the mainspring of the 24-day nationwide tieup.

Pickets To Stay On Job

Joseph A. Beirne, NFTW president, said in a statement that the picket lines of its affiliated unions will be continued even in New York City and Pennsylvania and "we expect these lines to be respected." For example, long distance operators belonging to NFTW and employed by A. T. and T. still are out in New York City.

The settlements were reached by independent unions not linked to the federation. These agreements gave a noticeable lift to lagging hopes of an early end to the strike. Labor Department conciliators intensified four sets of negotiations here. They cover key affiliates of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company.

The agreements called for wage increases of $4 a week by the New York Telephone Company and $3 to $4 by the Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania. The NFTW is demanding $6 a week (15 cents an hour) for all its workers.

320,000 On Strike

An NFTW official said before the settlements were announced that he would guess 320,000 persons were on strike.

Beirne's statement said: "After 23 days of a nationwide telephone strike, the Bell System is finally starting to make wage offers to unions in the industry. The company's solid wall of opposition to wage increases is crumbling."

Frank J. Fitzsimmons, of Kearny, N. J., president of the Western Electric Employes Association (one of the unions in the negotiations here) told reporters the New York settlement was a "sellout of their fellow telephone workers." He said no settlement under $6 a week would be acceptable to his union.

C. & P.-Western Electric Workers Hold Meeting

BALTIMORE, April 30 — (AP) — A company official said a conciliation meeting was held today between the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company and members of the largest union on strike here—representing 5,600 workers at the Western Electric Company.

The spokesman said the meeting was called by Federal Conciliator Lucien F. Rye, who declined to confirm the announcement.

It was the first time the company and union have met since the strike started April 7.

Meanwhile, August B. Haneke, vice president of the C. and P., reported the plant and maintenance force was back 100 per cent today for the first time since the Maryland Federation of Telephone Workers and the company agreed last week to arbitrate their dispute.

He said more than 60 per cent of the 800 members of the striking Maryland Federation of Telephone Clerical Workers were back on duty today.

North Carolina Tornado Leaves One Person Dead

Area Near Fairmont Hit; 300 Homeless

FAIRMONT, N. C., April 30 (AP)—A tornado struck in a thickly populated rural area about two miles south of here today, killing at least one person and leaving an estimated 300 persons homeless.

The twister, coming without warning about 4:30 p. m., wrecked between 50 and 100 homes in the farm area. The fact that their occupants were working in the fields was thought to have accounted for the resultant low death toll. Considerable damage to the crops in the area, a heavy tobacco producing section, was reported.

G. B. Stafford, secretary of the Fairmont Chamber of Commerce, said that the only known dead was Annie Powell, four-year-old daughter of Earl Powell, Negro.

Powell told Stafford that he saw the storm approaching from the door of his home and that it was "blowing down trees like match sticks."

The storm struck the house and demolished it, and Powell found himself in the front yard. He managed to remove his eight other children from the wreckage unharmed.

Stafford said that all power and phone lines were down in the storm area—a swath about one-half mile wide by eight to 10 miles long—and that rescue parties were having to move on foot to find if there were additional dead and injured.

Midwest Tornado Toll Rises

ROGERS, Ark., April 30 (AP)—The death toll rose to nine today with an estimated 25 other injured seriously in a tornado which lashed sparsely-settled Northwest Arkansas communities late last night.

Twisters also struck in Missouri and Iowa yesterday, killing 13 persons, injuring some 45 others, demolishing the town of Worth, Mo., and causing extensive property damage but no deaths at Clio, Ia. Several persons were hurt and buildings destroyed by wind in the Salem, Mo., vicinity.

Cuban Cabinet Resigns

HAVANA, April 30 — (AP) — Prime Minister Prio Socarras said today the Cuban Cabinet had resigned. Earlier, 29 senators had presented a petition of non-confidence in the government.

Move To Split Up Labor Bill Defeated By Senate

15-Cent-An-Hour Pay Hike Accepted By CIO Employes At Alcoa

PITTSBURGH, April 30 (AP) —The CIO-United Steel Workers Union tonight announced virtual agreement had been reached with the Aluminum Company of America on a 1947 contract providing for the "more than 15-cent-an-hour wage increase package."

A union spokesman said the agreement would give "12-cent-an-hour raises" to the corporation's 25,000 employes represented by the CIO. He declared the other three cents plus was represented in social benefits and other fringe items.

The spokesman said two Alcoa plants represented by the American Federation of Labor affiliates had settled with the company some three weeks ago for raises of 10 cents an hour.

Warning Of Possible Veto Brushed Aside

WASHINGTON, April 30 (AP) — Brushing aside warnings of a presidential veto, the Senate defeated 59 to 35 today a move to split into four measures the big labor bill designed to curb strikes and other union activities.

It thus backed up plans of the Republican leadership to deliver labor legislation to President Truman in an "all or nothing" package.

Sen. Morse (R-Ore.) offered the four-way split plan with the argument that Congress stands a better chance of getting some labor legislation if it is submitted to the White House piecemeal rather than in one lump.

Easy Passage Foreshadowed

Sen. Hatch (D-N.M.) flatly predicted a presidential veto of an omnibus bill. But Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) told his colleagues there was no reason for splitting up the measure "except a political one"—to give Mr. Truman a chance to reject portions of the legislation and accept others.

Today's vote apparently foreshadowed easy passage of the bill, probably next week. The House already has approved a more far-reaching bill by a lopsided majority.

Among Republicans, only Sen. Langer (N.D.) joined with Morse in support of the motion to split the bill. Thirty-three Democrats also voted for it.

Led by Taft, chairman of the Republican Policy Committee and the Labor Committee, 48 GOP senators balloted against the proposal. They had the help of 11 southern Democrats.

During the debate, Barkley (Ky.) the Democratic leader, challenged Taft on his "politics" remark. He said that to inject a political issue into labor legislation "would be utterly unworthy of the Senate of the United States."

Barkley Confers With Truman

Barkley, who conferred with Mr. Truman at the White House shortly before the vote, told the Senate he is "not in a position" to say what the Chief Executive plans to do.

"But it would be a tragedy," the

Five Bodies Found After Mine Blast

TERRA HAUTE, Ind., April 30 (AP) —Five bodies were found tonight in an explosion-racked shaft of the Spring Hill mine, and rescue squads expected to find the three other trapped miners momentarily.

The two bodies brought to the surface were identified as Barney Riggs and Desire Lete, both 67, and both of Terre Haute.

The others had not been identified.

Harry Kerns, owner of the small truck mine four miles south of here, said three men who escaped unhurt from the bottom of the mine reported that the explosion occurred during blasting for a new air shaft at a depth of 80 feet.

He said the trapped men were about 1,000 to 2,000 feet away from the shaft.

Evan Evans, superintendent of the state mine rescue station in West Terra Haute, said rescue work tonight, three hours after the blast, was being hampered by smoke as a fire apparently continued in the shaft.

Evans said other delays have occurred because of lack of sufficient brattices and curtains for protection of the rescue route.

Hundreds of miners from nearby shafts and wives of the trapped men crowded around the tipple tonight.

Aleman Salutes War Dead Of United States

WASHINGTON, April 30 (AP) — Mexico's visiting President Aleman today reverently saluted the unknown dead of the United States, and later assailed aggression anywhere in the world as a peril to the peace of the Americas.

The Mexican executive drove from the White House to the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, in Arlington National Cemetery. There he placed a wreath of red roses, gardenias and lilies on the tomb. A 21-gun salute boomed out as he entered the cemetery.

Talks On Holy Land Freedom Are Ruled Out

Steering Committee Rejects Move, 8 To 1

NEW YORK, April 30 (AP) — The Arab countries were beaten late tonight in their first attempt to throw the issue of Palestine independence before the special session of the United Nations Assmbly.

By a vote of eight to one, with five abstentions, the Assembly's Steering Committee decided against the Arabs, climaxing 10 hours of wrangling and parliamentary confusion.

The 14-nation Steering Committee thus rejected identical requests from Egypt, Iraq, Saudi Arabia, Syria and Lebanon for the Assembly to debate at this session the question of cancelling the British mandate over Palestine and freedom for the Holy Land.

Egypt fought a lone battle on the committee to avert a vote.

Egypt then cast the only vote for the Arab proposals.

France, Ecuador, China, Canada, the United States, Britain, Sweden and Honduras voted against the Arab proposals. Czechoslovakia, Brazil, Russia, Poland and India abstained.

The Arab countries insisted before the vote was taken, both on and off the committee floor, that the committee action could not prevent them from taking it to the full assembly. A two-thirds vote would be required to overturn the adverse recommendation of the committee.

American Position

The United States opposed the Arab proposal on the grounds that this special Assembly was called merely to set up a committee of inquiry and not to discuss the whole issue.

Mahmoud Hassan Pasha, Egyptian delegate, told the committee he would not press for a vote on his proposal at this time.

But each of the other four Arab states, asked if they desired to withdraw similar proposals also, said flatly "no."

Dr. Oswaldo Aranha, Assembly president, who had failed before the crucial committee meeting to effect a compromise, then ordered the discussion to continue, with a vote in view.

Egypt is the only Arab state represented on the Steering Committee. The other four were sitting without vote at the invitation of the committee.

Answering appeals from Britain and India for calmness and peace, Hassan Pasha told the committee his country would not press for a vote now on the Arab proposal.

He said he would seek instructions from his government.

Committee Session Delayed

Leaving his offices for the committee meeting after an 1½-hour effort to reach a compromise, Aranha told newsmen that the effort had failed and that "we will have to start all over again."

There was no immediate announcement of why compromise efforts failed but a member of one Arab country delegation said "we have our instructions."

A reliable source said the Arabs had come from Cairo under orders to accept no compromise on their demands.

The move by Aranha to reach a solution held up the Steering Committee's night session from 7:30 p. m. until 9 p. m. (E.D.T.).

D.C. "Time" Bill Signed

WASHINGTON, April 30 — (AP) — President Truman today signed legislation empowering the District of Columbia Commissioners to establish daylight saving time in Washington. The bill provides that public sentiment may be ascertained by the commissioners toward moving up the District clocks.

Hope Diamond Included

Estate Left By Mrs. McLean Will Be Split Among Grandchildren In 1967

WASHINGTON, April 30 (AP) — The rich estate left by Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean, including the Hope diamond, is due to be split up among her grandchildren in 1967, when Baby Mamie Spears Reynolds becomes 25 years old.

This was disclosed today through a memorandum from lawyers for the estate of the wealthy Washington society matron, whose father "struck it rich" in the Colorado goldfields. The value of the inheritances was not revealed.

The estate, the memorandum said, will be divided among the seven grandchildren when the five oldest of them have all reached 25 years of age.

This figures out to be in 1967 because the fifth oldest grandchild is Mamie Spears Reynolds, daughter of former Sen. Bob Reynolds and the late Evalyn McLean. Little Mamie will be five years old in October of this year.

The Hope diamond, famed for the legend that it brought grief to those who have owned it, and other renowned jewels are to be distributed with her other property, after some bequests to servants, on a share and share alike basis.

If arrangements can not be "effectively carried out" to divide the jewels and other items of property among the grandchildren, the memorandum said, all of the property is to be sold and the cash distributed equally among the seven.

Named executors of the will are Supreme Court Justice Frank Murphy and Thurman Arnold, former justice of the Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia.

Sugar Hormone Wins

American College Of Physicians Is Told Old Age Opens Attack In Bones

CHICAGO, April 30—(AP)—If you think you feel old age in your bones, you are right, for a discovery reported to the American College of Physicians today showed that bones are one of the first points of attack by the fellow with the scythe.

The aging bones become lighter in weight or mass. The reason is a battle between sex hormones, and a recently-discovered sugar hormone. This sweet hormone finally wins the battle and in so doing brings on some of the mysterious changes that are old age.

The report was made by Dr. Fuller Albright, associate professor of medicine, Harvard Medical School. He spoke in response to receipt today of the John Phillips Memorial medal, given for his discoveries of how kidney stones form in humans and remedies to get rid of them.

In youth and in the prime of life, said Dr. Albright, the sex hormones help to build strong bones. Assisting them is a nitrogen hormone that is formed in the adrenal-cortical glands at the small of the back. The latter glands also produce the sugar or "S" hormone. The latter holds down the bone-building process.

Along with bones, these battling hormones also appear to regulate partly the contours of body that make the difference between men and women, the weight and strength of muscles that decrease with old age, and maybe such things as the effects of pinching the skin. Aged skin forms wrinkles with sharp crests after the pinch while youthful skin has rounded crests.

Building Material Decontrol Voted 127-48 By House

Proposal To Extend Rent Curbs Assailed

WASHINGTON, April 30—(AP)—The House voted 127 to 48 today to kill virtually all government controls over building materials and construction, and members shouted stormy protest against a pending proposal to extend modified rent controls from June 30 to December 31.

With some members demanding a blanket 10 per cent rent boost while others called for an immediate end of all controls, the House put off a showdown on the politically potent rent issue until tomorrow.

Rep. McCormack (D-Mass) capped the day's fiery debate with the announcement that he will attempt to send the entire housing-rent bill back to the House Banking Committee for rewriting.

Runs Counter To Vets' Appeals

McCormack told the House that abolishing controls on building materials runs counter to appeals from all veterans organizations.

Across the Capital, Sen. Wagner (D-NY) and Taylor (D-Idaho) blasted the pending Senate rent control extension bill and advocated carrying on the present rent program unchanged at least through June 30, 1948.

The Senate bill would end controls next March 1 and vest a big measure of authority in local committee for making rent increases.

"Congress must not repeat the tragic mistake made a year ago in dealing with price control," the two Democratic senators said in a statement, referring to the scrapping of price curbs.

More Housing Predicted

In the House, Rep. Monroney (D-Okla) sought to continue limited allocation and priority powers in construction, but Chairman Wolcott (R-Mich), of the House Banking Committee, told the House that more dwellings would be built quicker if the construction industry is freed of the controls. Monroney sought to amend the bill which covers both rents and housing.

"Small Tornado" Hits Emmitsburg

[By The Associated Press]

A heavy windstorm described as a "small tornado" struck Emmitsburg late yesterday, unroofing several buildings, disrupting power and telephone lines and felling trees.

There were no immediate reports of personal injuries.

Heavy rain and hail struck other sections of Maryland last night.

The Frederick Post said it had fragmentary reports from the Carroll County town near the Pennsylvania border that the roof of one downtown building was blown off and was blocking the town square.

Another roof demolished two automobiles, while a roof was blown from a third building in the southern part of the community.

A heavy rain which was reported at Hancock and Hagerstown earlier in the evening struck the Baltimore area, accompanied by hail and a lightning display, about 8:40 p. m.

Dr. Castillo Graham, state entomologist at the Hancock fruit laboratory, said the rain was "worth its weight in gold" to fruit growers in Washington County.

Trieste Parade Bombed; 25 Pro-Yugos Are Injured

TRIESTE, Thursday, May 1 (AP) — Twenty-five pro-Yugoslav demonstrators were injured, four seriously, last night when two bombs were hurled into the midst of a parade in a predominately Italian section of the city. Police said between 5,000 and 10,000 were participating in the parade.

Police made three arrests, but did not disclose the identity or nationality of these persons.

The demonstrators came down from the hills surrounding Trieste, carrying torches and flares lighted in the shape of Communist stars, hammer and sickle emblems and the word "Tito".

Country-Wide Phone Picture Grows Dimmer

N. Y. Workers May Not Return; Talks Recess

WASHINGTON, April 30 — (AP) — The country-wide telephone strike picture grew even dimmer tonight with refusal of at least part of the members of a New York union to go back to work under an announced settlement, and a recess in a key part of negotiations here.

An announcement of progress had been hoped for in the Washington talks affecting the nation's long distance workers, but these negotiations were silently recessed until 4 p. m. EST tomorrow.

Strike settlements earlier had been announced covering 43,000 workers —37,000 in New York and 6,000 in Pennsylvania.

In New York, members of one union, the Traffic Employes Association, decided in a series of meetings not to go to work tomorrow past pickets of the National Federation of Telephone Workers. The federation, embracing 39 unions on strike, is the mainspring of the 24-day nationwide tieup.

Pickets To Stay On Job

Joseph A. Beirne, NFTW president, said in a statement that the picket lines of its affiliated unions will be continued even in New York City and Pennsylvania and "we expect these lines to be respected." For example, long distance operators belonging to NFTW and employed by A. T. and T. still are out in New York City.

The settlements were reached by independent unions not linked to the federation. These agreements gave a noticeable lift to lagging hopes of an early end to the strike. Labor Department conciliators intensified four sets of negotiations here. They cover key affiliates of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company.

The agreements called for wage increases of $4 a week by the New York Telephone Company and $3 to $4 by the Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania. The NFTW is demanding $6 a week (15 cents an hour) for all its workers.

320,000 On Strike

An NFTW official said before the settlements were announced that he would guess 320,000 persons were on strike.

Beirne's statement said: "After 23 days of a nationwide telephone strike, the Bell System is finally starting to make wage offers to unions in the industry. The company's solid wall of opposition to wage increases is crumbling."

Frank J. Fitzsimmons, of Kearny, N. J., president of the Western Electric Employes Association (one of the unions in the negotiations here) told reporters the New York settlement was a "sellout of their fellow telephone workers." He said no settlement under $6 a week would be acceptable to his union.

C. & P.-Western Electric Workers Hold Meeting

BALTIMORE, April 30 — (AP) — A company official said a conciliation meeting was held today between the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company and members of the largest union on strike here—representing 5,600 workers at the Western Electric Company.

The spokesman said the meeting was called by Federal Conciliator Lucien F. Rye, who declined to confirm the announcement.

It was the first time the company and union have met since the strike started April 7.

Meanwhile, August B. Haneke, vice president of the C. and P., reported the plant and maintenance force was back 100 per cent today for the first time since the Maryland Federation of Telephone Workers and the company agreed last week to arbitrate their dispute.

He said more than 60 per cent of the 800 members of the striking Maryland Federation of Telephone Clerical Workers were back on duty today.

North Carolina Tornado Leaves One Person Dead

Area Near Fairmont Hit; 300 Homeless

FAIRMONT, N. C., April 30 (AP)—A tornado struck in a thickly populated rural area about two miles south of here today, killing at least one person and leaving an estimated 300 persons homeless.

The twister, coming without warning about 4:30 p. m., wrecked between 50 and 100 homes in the farm area. The fact that their occupants were working in the fields was thought to have accounted for the resultant low death toll. Considerable damage to the crops in the area, a heavy tobacco producing section, was reported.

G. B. Stafford, secretary of the Fairmont Chamber of Commerce, said that the only known dead was Annie Powell, four-year-old daughter of Earl Powell, Negro.

Powell told Stafford that he saw the storm approaching from the door of his home and that it was "blowing down trees like match sticks."

The storm struck the house and demolished it, and Powell found himself in the front yard. He managed to remove his eight other children from the wreckage unharmed.

Stafford said that all power and phone lines were down in the storm area—a swath about one-half mile wide by eight to 10 miles long—and that rescue parties were having to move on foot to find if there were additional dead and injured.

Midwest Tornado Toll Rises

ROGERS, Ark., April 30 (AP)—The death toll rose to nine today with an estimated 25 other injured seriously in a tornado which lashed sparsely-settled Northwest Arkansas communities late last night.

Twisters also struck in Missouri and Iowa yesterday, killing 13 persons, injuring some 45 others, demolishing the town of Worth, Mo., and causing extensive property damage but no deaths at Clio, Ia. Several persons were hurt and buildings destroyed by wind in the Salem, Mo., vicinity.

Cuban Cabinet Resigns

HAVANA, April 30 — (AP) — Prime Minister Prio Socarras said today the Cuban Cabinet had resigned. Earlier, 29 senators had presented a petition of non-confidence in the government.

Move To Split Up Labor Bill Defeated By Senate

15-Cent-An-Hour Pay Hike Accepted By CIO Employes At Alcoa

PITTSBURGH, April 30 (AP) —The CIO-United Steel Workers Union tonight announced virtual agreement had been reached with the Aluminum Company of America on a 1947 contract providing for the "more than 15-cent-an-hour wage increase package."

A union spokesman said the agreement would give "12-cent-an-hour raises" to the corporation's 25,000 employes represented by the CIO. He declared the other three cents plus was represented in social benefits and other fringe items.

The spokesman said two Alcoa plants represented by the American Federation of Labor affiliates had settled with the company some three weeks ago for raises of 10 cents an hour.

Warning Of Possible Veto Brushed Aside

WASHINGTON, April 30 (AP) — Brushing aside warnings of a presidential veto, the Senate defeated 59 to 35 today a move to split into four measures the big labor bill designed to curb strikes and other union activities.

It thus backed up plans of the Republican leadership to deliver labor legislation to President Truman in an "all or nothing" package.

Sen. Morse (R-Ore.) offered the four-way split plan with the argument that Congress stands a better chance of getting some labor legislation if it is submitted to the White House piecemeal rather than in one lump.

Easy Passage Foreshadowed

Sen. Hatch (D-N.M.) flatly predicted a presidential veto of an omnibus bill. But Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) told his colleagues there was no reason for splitting up the measure "except a political one"—to give Mr. Truman a chance to reject portions of the legislation and accept others.

Today's vote apparently foreshadowed easy passage of the bill, probably next week. The House already has approved a more far-reaching bill by a lopsided majority

Among Republicans, only Sen. Langer (N.D.) joined with Morse in support of the motion to split the bill. Thirty-three Democrats also voted for it.

Led by Taft, chairman of the Republican Policy Committee and the Labor Committee, 48 GOP senators balloted against the proposal. They had the help of 11 southern Democrats.

During the debate, Barkley (Ky.) the Democratic leader, challenged Taft on his "politics" remark. He said that to inject a political issue into labor legislation "would be utterly unworthy of the Senate of the United States."

Barkley Confers With Truman

Barkley, who conferred with Mr. Truman at the White House shortly before the vote, told the Senate he is "not in a position" to say what the Chief Executive plans to do.

"But it would be a tragedy," the

Five Bodies Found After Mine Blast

TERRA HAUTE, Ind., April 30 (AP) —Five bodies were found tonight in an explosion-racked shaft of the Spring Hill mine, and rescue squads expected to find the three other trapped miners momentarily.

The two bodies brought to the surface were identified as Barney Riggs and Desire Lete, both 67, and both of Terre Haute.

The others had not been identified.

Harry Kerns, owner of the small truck mine four miles south of here, said three men who escaped unhurt from the bottom of the mine reported that the explosion occurred during blasting for a new air shaft at a depth of 80 feet.

He said the trapped men were about 1,000 to 2,000 feet away from the shaft.

Evan Evans, superintendent of the state mine rescue station in West Terra Haute, said rescue work tonight, three hours after the blast, was being hampered by smoke as a fire apparently continued in the shaft.

Evans said other delays have occurred because of lack of sufficient brattices and curtains for protection of the rescue route.

Hundreds of miners from nearby shafts and wives of the trapped men crowded around the tipple tonight.

Aleman Salutes War Dead Of United States

WASHINGTON, April 30 (AP) — Mexico's visiting President Aleman today reverently saluted the unknown dead of the United States, and later assailed aggression anywhere in the world as a peril to the peace of the Americas.

The Mexican executive drove from the White House to the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, in Arlington National Cemetery. There he placed a wreath of red roses, gardenias and lilies on the tomb. A 21-gun salute boomed out as he entered the cemetery.

Talks On Holy Land Freedom Are Ruled Out

Steering Committee Rejects Move, 8 To 1

NEW YORK, April 30 (AP) — The Arab countries were beaten late tonight in their first attempt to throw the issue of Palestine independence before the special session of the United Nations Assmbly.

By a vote of eight to one, with five abstentions, the Assembly's Steering Committee decided against the Arabs, climaxing 10 hours of wrangling and parliamentary confusion.

The 14-nation Steering Committee thus rejected identical requests from Egypt, Iraq, Saudi Arabia, Syria and Lebanon for the Assembly to debate at this session the question of cancelling the British mandate over Palestine and freedom for the Holy Land.

Egypt fought a lone battle on the committee to avert a vote.

Egypt then cast the only vote for the Arab proposals.

France, Ecuador, China, Canada, the United States, Britain, Sweden and Honduras voted against the Arab proposals. Czechoslovakia, Brazil, Russia, Poland and India abstained.

The Arab countries insisted before the vote was taken, both on and off the committee floor, that the committee action could not prevent them from taking it to the full assembly. A two-thirds vote would be required to overturn the adverse recommendation of the committee.

American Position

The United States opposed the Arab proposal on the grounds that this special Assembly was called merely to set up a committee of inquiry and not to discuss the whole issue.

Mahmoud Hassan Pasha, Egyptian delegate, told the committee he would not press for a vote on his proposal at this time.

But each of the other four Arab states, asked if they desired to withdraw similar proposals also, said flatly "no."

Dr. Oswaldo Aranha, Assembly president, who had failed before the crucial committee meeting to effect a compromise, then ordered the discussion to continue, with a vote in view.

Egypt is the only Arab state represented on the Steering Committee. The other four were sitting without vote at the invitation of the committee.

Answering appeals from Britain and India for calmness and peace, Hassan Pasha told the committee his country would not press for a vote now on the Arab proposal.

He said he would seek instructions from his government.

Committee Session Delayed

Leaving his offices for the committee meeting after an 1½-hour effort to reach a compromise, Aranha told newsmen that the effort had failed and that "we will have to start all over again."

There was no immediate announcement of why compromise efforts failed but a member of one Arab country delegation said "we have our instructions."

A reliable source said the Arabs had come from Cairo under orders to accept no compromise on their demands.

The move by Aranha to reach a solution held up the Steering Committee's night session from 7:30 p. m. until 9 p. m. (E.D.T.).

Hope Diamond Included

Estate Left By Mrs. McLean Will Be Split Among Grandchildren In 1967

WASHINGTON, April 30 (AP) — The rich estate left by Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean, including the Hope diamond, is due to be split up among her grandchildren in 1967, when Baby Mamie Spears Reynolds becomes 25 years old.

This was disclosed today through a memorandum from lawyers for the estate of the wealthy Washington society matron, whose father "struck it rich" in the Colorado goldfields. The value of the inheritances was not revealed.

The estate, the memorandum said, will be divided among the seven grandchildren when the five oldest of them have all reached 25 years of age.

This figures out to be in 1967 because the fifth oldest grandchild is Mamie Spears Reynolds, daughter of former Sen. Bob Reynolds and the late Evalyn McLean. Little Mamie will be five years old in October of this year.

The Hope diamond, famed for the legend that it brought grief to those who have owned it, and other renowned jewels are to be distributed with her other property, after some bequests to servants, on a share and share alike basis.

If arrangements can not be "effectively carried out" to divide the jewels and other items of property among the grandchildren, the memorandum said, all of the property is to be sold and the cash distributed equally among the seven.

Named executors of the will are Supreme Court Justice Frank Murphy and Thurman Arnold, former justice of the Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia.

Sugar Hormone Wins

American College Of Physicians Is Told Old Age Opens Attack In Bones

CHICAGO, April 30—(AP)—If you think you feel old age in your bones, you are right, for a discovery reported to the American College of Physicians today showed that bones are one of the first points of attack by the fellow with the scythe.

The aging bones become lighter in weight or mass. The reason is a battle between sex hormones, and a recently-discovered sugar hormone. This sweet hormone finally wins the battle and in so doing brings on some of the mysterious changes that are old age.

The report was made by Dr. Fuller Albright, associate professor of medicine, Harvard Medical School. He spoke in response to receipt today of the John Phillips Memorial medal, given for his discoveries of how kidney stones form in humans and remedies to get rid of them.

In youth and in the prime of life, said Dr. Albright, the sex hormones help to build strong bones. Assisting them is a nitrogen hormone that is formed in the adrenal-cortical glands at the small of the back. The latter glands also produce the sugar or "S" hormone. The latter holds down the bone-building process.

Along with bones, these battling hormones also appear to regulate partly the contours of body that make the difference between men and women, the weight and strength of muscles that decrease with old age, and maybe such things as the effects of pinching the skin. Aged skin forms wrinkles with sharp crests after the pinch while youthful skin has rounded crests.

Europeans Fear Truman Doctrine, Wallace Asserts

Regard It As Step "Leading To War"

NEW YORK, April 30 (AP)—Henry A. Wallace declared in a radio speech today that European peoples with whom he talked on his recent tour greeted the Truman doctrine "with fear because they regard it as a step leading toward war."

Reporting on his trip in the first of a series of talks which will take him to the Pacific Coast, the former vice president said Europeans look to the United States as the only nation which can supply capital and goods needed for rehabilitation but they do not want help through the Truman doctrine.

"The program provides military equipment for European governments," he said. "What good is military equipment to them?

Need Tractors And Coal

"Denmark wants American tractors to reorganize its agriculture. Sweden and Norway want American coal to start their industries again. France and Britain want American machinery to modernize their plants. They are offered tanks and guns instead.

"Everywhere I had to defend America against growing bitterness."

Wallace, now editor of the New Republic magazine, said "conservative American newspapermen told me that America will use economic pressure to drive the Communists, the largest French political party, out of the government and will give full support to De Gaulle.

"If this is true, then I say that we are toying with a policy that may lead to bloodshed.

World "Sharply Divided"

"A world sharply divided into two parts is a world threatened by war. No people can benefit from a world divided in this way. I blame Russia, Britain, America and all nations for this division. But America today is helping to force this division instead of working for peace."

Wallace aroused a storm of congressional criticism with his speeches abroad in opposition to President Truman's Greek-Turkish aid program.

He took notice of these attacks in his radio talk, saying "some people have accused me of arousing Europe against America."

"On the contrary," he asserted, "I have been searching for the one basis on which a progressive Europe can co-operate with America. That basis I found in Europe—it is a strong United Nations."

Durant Is Given 15 Years Hard Labor

FRANKFURT, Germany, April 30 (AP)—Col. Jack W. Durant was sentenced to 15 years at hard labor and cashiered from the service today as the United States Army wound up its prosecution of "principals" in the fantastic theft of the $1,500,000 Hesse crown jewels.

Army sources predicted "further prosecutions" might be initiated soon in United States civil courts against other persons connected with the looting.

The prosecution asserted repeatedly at Durant's stormy, five-month trial on both sides of the Atlantic that other American officers, some ranking as high as generals, were implicated in removing various articles from Kronberg castle.

The slim, 37-year-old Air Force officer of Washington, D. C., and Chicago, was found guilty of eight counts, including theft, smuggling and signing another officer's name in an attempt to expidite his own discharge from the Army.

Specifically, he was convicted of stealing $10,000 worth of the glittering horde, much of which was on display here as evidence. The prosecution has valued the gems at $1,500,000.

The gems will not be returned immediately to the Hesse family, officials said, but will be held in the United States for evidence in the event other trials materialize.

Beall Voted For Bill

WASHINGTON, April 30 (AP) — Here's the way representatives from two states voted today when the House passed the foreign relief bill, 333 to 66:

Republicans for: Beall and Miller of Maryland, Love, Rohrbough and Snyder of West Virginia.

Democrats for: Fallon, Meade and Sasscer of Maryland; Hedrick and Kee of West Virginia.

Republicans against: Ellis of West Virginia.

Millions Of Europe's Toilers Celebrate Today

LONDON, April 30 (AP)—Yugoslav Communists accused American-led "imperialist cliques" of "provoking civil war in Greece" tonight as millions of Europe's toilers prepared to celebrate May Day in great public demonstrations.

Many nations, turned leftist since the war, will join tomorrow with the Soviets in Moscow's Red Square in parading a show of military strength, and hold noisy massy rallies in their capitals and cities. Banners denouncing "capitalist exploitations" which to many leftist Europeans has come to refer to the United States, will fly from the northern countries to the Balkans.

C Of C Asks "Much Lower" Tax Rates

WASHINGTON, April 30 (AP) — The United States Chamber of Commerce tonight called for "much lower" tax rates and heard Secretary of Commerce Harriman urge the industrial development of Germany and Japan to ease the "heavy burden on American taxpayers."

Harriman said restoration of the economies of the defeated enemies was a vital part of the American effort to promote world trade and productivity.

Addressing a banquet of the 35th annual meeting of the United States Chamber—after a day studded with demands for tax cuts, federal economy and national debt retirement — Harriman swung the theme of foreign commerce as a keystone of sustained prosperity.

"We do not propose that either of these countries"—Germany or Japan—"shall ever again be placed in a position to assault the peace-loving nations of the world," Harriman said.

"On the other hand, it is perfectly obvious that a functioning omic recovery of Western Europe. It is equally obvious that activation of the Japanese is essential to any reasonable economy level of well-being for people of the Far East.

"To stimulate the development of peaceful enterprises and production in these countries will relieve a heavy burden on American taxpayers and will remove major blocks which have thus far obstructed the general economic reconstruction of the world."

Lewis' Mine Union Wins Concession

WASHINGTON, April 30 (AP) — John L. Lewis won an initial concession from the government and coal operators today when they agreed to poll southern mine owners on whether they support their association's opposition to a national contract.

The Southern Coal Producers Association, bargaining representative of operators who say they produce 35.4 per cent of the nation's bituminous coal, wants to make a separate contract with the United Mine Workers Union Lewis heads.

The last agreement between the operators and Lewis, made in 1945 and terminated by him last spring, was a national one.

The southern association said that it was "impractical and undesirable" for its members, separated as they are from the balance of the industry and with different production problems.

Preliminary talks between Lewis and the operators, begun yesterday at the request of the government, were recessed until next Tuesday at 10 a. m. (EST).

Navy Capt. N. H. Collisson, Coal Mines Administrator who has been running the mines since last May, announced that the poll of operators will be taken between now and next Tuesday.

Fire Scare Is Caused By W. Va. Orchardist

SHEPHERDSTOWN, W. Va., April 30—(AP)—Orchardist E. Lee Goldsborough was apologizing all over the place today for setting off too many war surplus smoke bombs at once.

It seems the low-hanging smoke created a fire scare in one section of town and suffocated several chickens.

Some of his orchard men got lost in the smoke, which covered an eight-acre area.

Residents in the nearby area congregated on a street corner at 3 a. m. Tuesday, while Goldsborough was trying to raise the night temperature from 27-degrees minimum around his cherry trees.

The smoke bombs, which work all right in small numbers, were sold for smudge pots.

Global Police Force Report To Be Released

It will be released Saturday for general publication over the world Sunday morning, the council ruled.

A resident of St. Paul, Minn., Baisi played with the Bears' 1940-41 championship teams and spent four years in the army before returning to the Bears last fall.

Warfield Resigns Fisheries Post; Lane Names Clark To Succeed Him

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 30—(AP)—Gov. Lane today accepted the resignation of Edwin Warfield, Jr., as chairman of the Board of Natural Resources and the Tidewater Fisheries Commission, and appointed John E. Clark, of Bel Air, to succeed him.

"Mr. Warfield's resignation, motivated by pressing personal considerations, was accepted most reluctantly and with genuine regret that he finds it impossible to continue his valuable service to the state," the Governor said.

The resignation is effective upon the expiration of Warfield's term, June 1.

Warfield became a center of controversy during the last General Assembly session when he proposed that Chesapeake Bay oyster beds be leased out privately to revive bay production.

Opposition to the proposal, led by Sen. Louis L. Goldstein (D-Calvert) and other tidewater representatives, was vehement and legislation to put the plan into effect was defeated.

Lane appointed Warfield to another term as chairman of the Tidewater Fisheries Commission and the Senate confirmed him.

Warfield, head of the commission since 1939, submitted his resignation in a letter dated today.

He said the Governor's "confidence" in him, expressed by the reappointment, was "much appreciated," but that he wished to resign for "purely personal considerations."

Clark has been a Harford County member of the House of Delegates since 1934 and, the Governor said, "has established a consistent record in the interest of conservation."

He serves as chairman of the Natural Resources Board by virtue of his tidewater fisheries post.

Marylanders Will Pray For World Peace Today

BALTIMORE, April 30—(AP)—Prayers for world peace and the conversion of Russia to Christianity will be offered at open air services in five Maryland cities tomorrow.

The services are being sponsored throughout the nation by the Catholic church. At the same time, Communists throughout the world will be parading in their annual May Day celebrations.

The largest gathering in Maryland will be in Baltimore where 50,000 are expected to attend services in the Municipal Stadium.

Similar services will be conducted in Annapolis, Frederick, Hagerstown and Bryantown.

Anti-Smoke Education

HAGERSTOWN, Md., April 30—(AP)—Mayor Richard H. Sweeney announced today an educational campaign would be conducted to prepare Hagerstown for enactment of an anti-smoke ordinance in August.

Gov. Lane Will Attend Daughter's Coronation

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 30 (AP)—Governors William Preston Lane, Jr. of Maryland and William M. Tuck of Virginia, meet again tomorrow, with Potomac River fishing laws decidedly not on the agenda.

Gov. Lane recently signed a bill permitting Virginians accused of violating joint Potomac laws to be tried in Maryland courts. Gov. Tuck protested and they met early this month at Mt. Vernon in an effort to iron out their differences.

Tomorrow Gov. Tuck will crown the queen of the 20th Shenandoah Apple Blossom Festival at Winchester, Va. Gov. Lane will discard his official duties for a day to join Mrs. Lane in witnessing the ceremony.

The young woman Virginia's Chief Executive will dub Queen Shenandoah is Miss Jean Cartwright Lane, daughter of Maryland's Chief Executive.

Milk Price Will Drop In Three Md. Sections

BALTIMORE, April 30 (AP)—The price of milk goes down a cent a quart in at least three Maryland sections tomorrow and there were prospects the reduction may spread through most of the Free State.

Distributors in Baltimore, Frederick and Salisbury have announced the one-cent drop because of lower prices being paid farmers. The new price will be 18 cents in Baltimore and Frederick and in Salisbury 19 cents.

Dairymen in other cities have intimated they expected to follow the lead taken by Baltimore. The price reduction is being made possible by the normally high production at this season.

Baltimore Plant Damaged By Fire

BALTIMORE, April 30 (AP) — A spectacular fire burned out the inside of a downtown furniture plant today and caused some uneasy moments when billows of black smoke enveloped nearby University of Maryland Hospital.

Two firemen were hurt slightly in battling the blaze, which broke out in the Belfort Corporation's furniture factory about 1:45 and was under control 45 minutes later.

Fire department officials differed on whether there was an explosion after making a preliminary investigation.

William Scott, an employe, said he first noticed flames on the floor outside his paint spraying booth.

"Suddenly it went whoosh," he said. "I yelled for everyone to get out."

There was a 55-gallon drum of lacquer nearby and at least half a dozen more on the same floor.

About 120 employes of the furniture plant and an underwear factory on the fourth floor filed out to the street before the flames made much headway. When they reached their height, police evacuated about 180 persons from building along the block.

Slashes In Prices End Buying Slump At Pottstown, Pa.

POTTSTOWN, Pa., April 29 (AP)—Price slashes ranging from 10 to 50 per cent today ended a spring-time buying slump in this Eastern Pennsylvania town of 20,000 with many merchants reporting the "best business" since war's end.

Virtually all stores co-operated in the community profit sharing plan to boost customer sales and a Chamber of Commerce spokesman flatly called the one-day sale "an out-and-out attempt to clean out our merchandise so we can plan for a permanent reduction in the next few months."

The spokesman added, however, that "our plan won't be like the Newburyport plan because by just recommending a 10 per cent across the board price cut for a limited period, we are not permitting groceries and drug stores to co-operate and we are not making our reductions permanent."

Groceries and drug stores, he said, sell fair trade items on which no reductions are permitted without manufacturers permission.

Jack Hoffman, operator of the town's largest (New York) department store, told a reporter "today was the biggest one-day sale in the 26-year-history of my establishment."

"I've never had people standing in line to get into the place before," he stated.

Customers crowded into the store to take advantage of a flat 10 per cent reduction on all items—plus cuts up to 50 per cent on others.

Europeans Fear Truman Doctrine, Wallace Asserts

Regard It As Step "Leading To War"

NEW YORK, April 30 (AP)—Henry A. Wallace declared in a radio speech today that European peoples with whom he talked on his recent tour greeted the Truman doctrine "with fear because they regard it as a step leading toward war."

Reporting on his trip in the first of a series of talks which will take him to the Pacific Coast, the former vice president said Europeans look to the United States as the only nation which can supply capital and goods needed for rehabilitation but they do not want help through the Truman doctrine.

"The program provides military equipment for European governments," he said. "What good is military equipment to them?

Need Tractors And Coal

"Denmark wants American tractors to reorganize its agriculture. Sweden and Norway want American coal to start their industries again. France and Britain want American machinery to modernize their plants. They are offered tanks and guns instead.

"Everywhere I had to defend America against growing bitterness."

Wallace, now editor of the New Republic magazine, said "conservative American newspapermen told me that America will use economic pressure to drive the Communists, the largest French political party, out of the government and will give full support to De Gaulle.

"If this is true, then I say that we are toying with a policy that may lead to bloodshed.

World "Sharply Divided"

"A world sharply divided into two parts is a world threatened by war. No people can benefit from a world divided in this way. I blame Russia, Britain, America and all nations for this division. But America today is helping to force this division instead of working for peace."

Wallace aroused a storm of congressional criticism with his speeches abroad in opposition to President Truman's Greek-Turkish aid program.

He took notice of these attacks in his radio talk, saying "some people have accused me of arousing Europe against America."

"On the contrary," he asserted, "I have been searching for the one basis on which a progressive Europe can co-operate with America. That basis I found in Europe—it is a strong United Nations."

Durant Is Given 15 Years Hard Labor

FRANKFURT, Germany, April 30 (AP)—Col. Jack W. Durant was sentenced to 15 years at hard labor and cashiered from the service today as the United States Army wound up its prosecution of "principals" in the fantastic theft of the $1,500,000 Hesse crown jewels.

Army sources predicted "further prosecutions" might be initiated soon in United States civil courts against other persons connected with the looting.

The prosecution asserted repeatedly at Durant's stormy, five-month trial on both sides of the Atlantic that other American officers, some ranking as high as generals, were implicated in removing various articles from Kronberg castle.

The slim, 37-year-old Air Force officer of Washington, D. C., and Chicago, was found guilty of eight counts, including theft, smuggling and signing another officer's name in an attempt to expidite his own discharge from the Army.

Specifically, he was convicted of stealing $10,000 worth of the glittering horde, much of which was on display here as evidence. The prosecution has valued the gems at $1,500,000.

The gems will not be returned immediately to the Hesse family, officials said, but will be held in the United States for evidence in the event other trials materialize.

The modified Colmer-Mundt provision won final House acceptance by a roll-coll tally of 324 to 75—substantially more than the House tally of 225 to 163 for the $150-000,000 reduction in the fund authorized for the relief program.

Beall Voted For Bill

WASHINGTON, April 30 (AP) — Here's the way representatives from two states voted today when the House passed the foreign relief bill, 333 to 66:

Republicans for: Beall and Miller of Maryland, Love, Rohrbough and Snyder of West Virginia.

Democrats for: Fallon, Meade and Sasscer of Maryland; Hedrick and Kee of West Virginia.

Republicans against: Ellis of West Virginia.

Move To Split

Kentuckian added, "if we loaded down the meritorious provisions (of the pending legislation) with others so obnoxious that the President would be required to veto the bill."

Sen. Olin D. Johnston (D-S.C.), said:

"If we pass an omnibus bill, I am predicting a presidential veto. It's like putting rotten apples in a basket of good apples."

Building Material

The House adopted 107 to 31 an amendment by Rep. Mackinnon (R-Minn) that would require builders to offer veterans priorities of purchase or rental for 30 days, at prices and conditions as favorable as the properties would be offered later to the general public.

Millions Of Europe's Toilers Celebrate Today

LONDON, April 30 (AP)—Yugoslav Communists accused American-led "imperialist cliques" of "provoking civil war in Greece" tonight as millions of Europe's toilers prepared to celebrate May Day in great public demonstrations.

Many nations, turned leftist since the war, will join tomorrow with the Soviets in Moscow's Red Square in parading a show of military strength, and hold noisy mass rallies in their capitals and cities. Banners denouncing "capitalist exploitations" which to many leftist Europeans has come to refer to the United States, will fly from the northern countries to the Balkans.

C Of C Asks "Much Lower" Tax Rates

WASHINGTON, April 30 (AP) — The United States Chamber of Commerce tonight called for "much lower" tax rates and heard Secretary of Commerce Harriman urge the industrial development of Germany and Japan to ease the "heavy burden on American taxpayers."

Harriman said restoration of the economies of the defeated enemies was a vital part of the American effort to promote world trade and productivity.

Addressing a banquet of the 35th annual meeting of the United States Chamber—after a day studded with demands for tax cuts, federal economy and national debt retirement — Harriman swung the theme of foreign commeroe as a keystone of sustained prosperity.

"We do not propose that either of these countries"—Germany or Japan—"shall ever again be placed in a position to assault the peace-loving nations of the world," Harriman said.

"On the other hand, it is perfectly obvious that a functioning omic recovery of Western Europe. It is equally obvious that activation of the Japanese is essential to any reasonable economy level of well-being for people of the Far East.

"To stimulate the development of peaceful enterprises and production in these countries will relieve a heavy burden on American taxpayers and will remove major blocks which have thus far obstructed the general economic reconstruction of the world."

Lewis' Mine Union Wins Concession

WASHINGTON, April 30 (AP) — John L. Lewis won an initial concession from the government and coal operators today when they agreed to poll southern mine owners on whether they support their association's opposition to a national contract.

The Southern Coal Producers Association, bargaining representative of operators who say they produce 35.4 per cent of the nation's bituminous coal, wants to make a separate contract with the United Mine Workers Union Lewis heads.

The last agreement between the operators and Lewis, made in 1945 and terminated by him last spring, was a national one.

The southern association said that it was "impractical and undesirable" for its members, separated as they are from the balance of the industry and with different production problems.

Preliminary talks between Lewis and the operators, begun yesterday at the request of the government, were recessed until next Tuesday at 10 a. m. (EST).

Navy Capt. N. H. Collisson, Coal Mines Administrator who has been running the mines since last May, announced that the poll of operators will be taken between now and next Tuesday.

Fire Scare Is Caused By W. Va. Orchardist

SHEPHERDSTOWN, W. Va., April 30—(AP)—Orchardist E. Lee Goldsborough was apologizing all over the place today for setting off too many war surplus smoke bombs at once.

It seems the low-hanging smoke created a fire scare in one section of town and suffocated several chickens.

Some of his orchard men got lost in the smoke, which covered an eight-acre area.

Residents in the nearby area congregated on a street corner at 3 a. m. Tuesday, while Goldsborough was trying to raise the night temperature from 27-degrees minimum around his cherry trees.

The smoke bombs, which work all right in small numbers, were sold for smudge pots.

Global Police Force Report To Be Released

Eagles Sign Baisi,

PHILADELPHIA, April 30 (AP)—The Philadelphia Eagles of the National Football League announced today receipt of a signed contract from Al Baisi, former West Virginia University guard.

Baisi's contract was bought by the Eagles from the Chicago Bears just before the end of the 1946 season but he did not appear in the Philadelphia lineup. A resident of St. Paul, Minn., Baisi played with the Bears' 1940-41 championship teams and spent four years in the army before returning to the Bears last fall.

Warfield Resigns Fisheries Post; Lane Names Clark To Succeed Him

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 30—(AP)—Gov. Lane today accepted the resignation of Edwin Warfield, Jr., as chairman of the Board of Natural Resources and the Tidewater Fisheries Commission, and appointed John E. Clark, of Bel Air, to succeed him.

"Mr. Warfield's resignation, motivated by pressing personal considerations, was accepted most reluctantly and with genuine regret that he finds it impossible to continue his valuable service to the state," the Governor said.

The resignation is effective upon the expiration of Warfield's term, June 1.

Warfield became a center of controversy during the last General Assembly session when he proposed that Chesapeake Bay oyster beds be leased out privately to revive bay production.

Opposition to the proposal, led by Sen. Louis L. Goldstein (D-Calvert) and other tidewater representatives, was vehement and legislation to put the plan into effect was defeated.

Lane appointed Warfield to another term as chairman of the Tidewater Fisheries Commission and the Senate confirmed him.

Warfield, head of the commission since 1939, submitted his resignation in a letter dated today.

He said the Governor's "confidence" in him, expressed by the reappointment, was "much appreciated," but that he wished to resign for "purely personal considerations."

Clark has been a Harford County member of the House of Delegates since 1934 and, the Governor said, "has established a consistent record in the interest of conservation."

He serves as chairman of the Natural Resources Board by virtue of his tidewater fisheries post.

Marylanders Will Pray For World Peace Today

BALTIMORE, April 30—(AP)—Prayers for world peace and the conversion of Russia to Christianity will be offered at open air services in five Maryland cities tomorrow.

The services are being sponsored throughout the nation by the Catholic church. At the same time, Communists throughout the world will be parading in their annual May Day celebrations.

The largest gathering in Maryland will be in Baltimore where 50,000 are expected to attend services in the Municipal Stadium.

Similar services will be conducted in Annapolis, Frederick, Hagerstown and Bryantown.

Anti-Smoke Education

HAGERSTOWN, Md., April 30—(AP)—Mayor Richard H. Sweeney announced today an educational campaign would be conducted to prepare Hagerstown for enactment of an anti-smoke ordinance in August.

Gov. Lane Will Attend Daughter's Coronation

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 30 (AP)—Governors William Preston Lane, Jr. of Maryland and William M. Tuck of Virginia, meet again tomorrow, with Potomac River fishing laws decidedly not on the agenda.

Gov. Lane recently signed a bill permitting Virginians accused of violating joint Potomac laws to be tried in Maryland courts. Gov. Tuck protested and they met early this month at Mt. Vernon in an effort to iron out their differences.

Tomorrow Gov. Tuck will crown the queen of the 20th Shenandoah Apple Blossom Festival at Winchester, Va. Gov. Lane will discard his official duties for a day to join Mrs. Lane in witnessing the ceremony.

The young woman Virginia's Chief Executive will dub Queen Shenandoah is Miss Jean Cartwright Lane, daughter of Maryland's Chief Executive.

Milk Price Will Drop In Three Md. Sections

BALTIMORE, April 30 (AP)—The price of milk goes down a cent a quart in at least three Maryland sections tomorrow and there were prospects the reduction may spread through most of the Free State.

Distributors in Baltimore, Frederick and Salisbury have announced the one-cent drop because of lower prices being paid farmers. The new price will be 18 cents in Baltimore and Frederick and in Salisbury 19 cents.

Dairymen in other cities have intimated they expected to follow the lead taken by Baltimore. The price reduction is being made possible by the normally high production at this season.

Baltimore Plant Damaged By Fire

BALTIMORE, April 30 (AP) — A spectacular fire burned out the inside of a downtown furniture plant today and caused some uneasy moments when billows of black smoke enveloped nearby University of Maryland Hospital.

Two firemen were hurt slightly in battling the blaze, which broke out in the Belfort Corporation's furniture factory about 1:45 and was under control 45 minutes later.

Fire department officials differed on whether there was an explosion after making a preliminary investigation.

William Scott, an employe, said he first noticed flames on the floor outside his paint spraying booth.

"Suddenly it went whoosh," he said. "I yelled for everyone to get out."

There was a 55-gallon drum of lacquer nearby and at least half a dozen more on the same floor.

About 120 employes of the furniture plant and an underwear factory on the fourth floor filed out to the street before the flames made much headway. When they reached their height, police evacuated about 180 persons from building along the block.

Progress Toward World Understanding May Be Slow

The report to the nation on the outcome of the Moscow conference, given by Secretary of State Marshall, held little hope for an early understanding with the Soviet Union on major German and Austrian issues. Progress in that discussion may be painfully slow, the Secretary said. Meanwhile, he asserted, the recovery of Europe "cannot wait compromise through exhaustion." Whatever action is possible must be taken without delay, "because the patient is sinking while the doctor deliberates."

The Secretary of State found the disagreements, on the political issues involved in the proposed German and Austrian settlements, serious. The Russian program for Germany not only demanded "indefinite American subsidy," but could result in no less than economic deterioration and eventual dictatorship. A mortgage upon Austria was claimed which, in effect, would have made that country a Soviet puppet. "We must not compromise on great principles in order to achieve agreement for agreement's sake," Mr. Marshall declared.

That view will be endorsed by Americans. We cannot afford to sell civilization down the river for a scrap of paper. We did that at Yalta, and again at Potsdam, to the detriment of present and future generations.

Premier Stalin, Mr. Marshall said, expressed to him the view that compromises were possible on all main questions, including demilitarization, the political structure of Germany, reparations and economic unity. But to our soldier-diplomat this implied only that perhaps the Soviet delegation will be more cooperative in future conferences, whereas action toward European recovery is vital now.

The radio address by the Secretary reflected a deep appreciation of the problems at hand, and of the urgent need for action in the economic field, pending further efforts for political agreement. Meanwhile, while telling the Soviets bluntly that we are making no more one-sided deals, he may have brought us closer to an understanding with the Kremlin than is now apparent.

In any event, the Moscow conference was not another Munich. Our position has been clarified before the world. We now can proceed to do our best to establish peace and stability on the terms we have presented, with the door open to Russia to join us in that undertaking if it will.

Cost of the federal government is $11,730 per second. Congressional watchdogs of the Treasury must go nearly crazy every time they hear a clock tick.

Presidents And Their Conferences With The Press

Semi-weekly press conferences at the White House are an accepted institution. It has not always been so.

Woodrow Wilson talked freely with a restricted few newspapermen he knew well and trusted, but there came a day when a group of Washington correspondents made a round robin protest that the press, as such, was unable to get news that ought to come from the Presidential office. Then things became better.

But there never has been a time since regular press conferences became the rule under Warren G. Harding when a chief executive, after a protracted experience, was willing to say, as President Truman did after his one hundredth news conference, that he enjoyed the gatherings thoroughly and had no complaint as to the news stories they produced.

Calvin Coolidge was canny. He early decided that surplus questions from a group of 150 newsmen were not going to blast out of him any information that he was not prepared to divulge. So he devised the plan of insisting that questions be submitted at least half an hour before the conference, signed by the questioner with the name of his paper.

There were times when thirty or forty questions were submitted, and before the President came out of his office into the adjoining conference room, they had been carefully sifted. He would have some general remarks to the press. Then he would pick up two or three questions and answer them. The great majority he had chosen to ignore went unanswered.

Mr. Hoover had a hard time of it. It required no mind-reader to realize he hated press conferences in a period of depression he hoped would soon end. He had his say, then turned on his heel and left the office.

Franklin D. Roosevelt "ate up" his press conferences at the start. He permitted himself to be bombarded with questions on almost every subject, answered directly or laughed off most of them and adroitly parried the others. But when criticism became caustic, he did not hesitate to denounce it with vehemence. Toward the end he became petulent and childish in his relations with the press.

But the years have tended to create a tradition for all time of the accessibility of the chief executive to the press services and the Washington correspondents. It is a valuable tradition.

The $64 question is how statesmen can spend $37,000,000,000 a year without wearing themselves to a frazzle.

Off The Air

The ambitious scheme to sell Russia on the United States through a program of radio broadcasts will come to an end with the beginning of the next fiscal year July 1. A congressional appropriations committee has turned down a budget estimate of $31,000,000 to finance the program. Broadcasts will continue to South America. All future efforts along this line will be confined to the Western Hemisphere.

The broadcasts to Russia were a project of the executive branch of the government. They had never been approved by Congress. The money had been diverted from emergency funds over strong Republican opposition.

The precise manner in which Russia was to be won over to the American way of thinking through radio programs, when few Russians not government functionaries own radios, will continue to be a mystery to many persons. Germany and Japan tried similar tactics during the war to be met with derision. The broadcasts to Russia endeavor will go down as another noble experiment which fell by the wayside.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

HEALTH PROTECTION OF THE CHILD

DURING the last half century, a greater number of infants and youngsters have survived the dangers of childhood infections than ever before in the history of our country. This has been accomplished by stressing the health needs of our boys and girls and the widespread employment of vaccines and other precautionary methods. The plan has paid dividends and many individuals below the age of 50 are now alive because of the cooperation of their parents in this matter.

The benefits from immunization are so well known today that mothers need no urging to take advantage of it. Physicians may have varying opinions on when the procedures should be started and the nature of the preparations but these are small matters so long as protection results.

The modern mother follows a schedule somewhat like this: The first is whooping cough at 3 to 6 months. At 9 months diphtheria-tetanus toxoid is injected in two doses, two months apart. During the first year, on one of the trips to the doctor, smallpox vaccine is also administered. If such a program is adhered to, a booster dose for whooping cough is usually advised some time between the second and third year, or after exposure to the infection. A reinforcing dose against diphtheria and tetanus is also recommended just before the child goes to school.

It is likely that in the future many of these substances will be combined to eliminate the frequency of injections. Already a triple vaccine is available and is showing sufficient promise for more widespread use.

The value of smallpox vaccination is established. There are so few victims of the disorder that its occurrences is practically a medical curiosity. The drop in the incidence of diphtheria since the introduction of its preventative, is almost as startling. Immunization against tetanus and whooping cough has lagged behind but is becoming more popular all the time. The prevalence of such maladies in those who have not received the inoculations is sufficient proof that more attention is needed along this line. With improved solutions, fewer reactions occur and the injections are spaced farther apart.

Tetanus toxoid deserves emphasis. Active children cut themselves doutinely during out door play and there is always the risk that this ailment will arise should the wound become contaminated with dirt. In the past, the older antitoxin was utilized when some one stepped on a rusty nail. The procedure afforded temporary immunity and held the disease at bay for that injury only.

Now the child can be safeguarded well in advance with the newer toxoid. Revaccination may be required, however, at intervals of one to five years after the initial injections, to stimulate the immune mechanism of the body If an accident occurs, and the booster dose has not been given within a relatively short time, another injection will act as a safety measure.

NERVOUS MANIFESTATIONS

H. T. writes: What is a neurotic stomach?

REPLY

One which rebels because its owner is nervous, excited, anxious, or overworked. The disorders can mimic organic lesions such as ulcer. The main symptom is indigestion that is aggravated by worry or excitement.

"FALLEN" STOMACH

Mrs. M. writes: How long does a person with a dropped stomach have to be under a doctor's care?

REPLY

One minute—long enough to be told to forget it. In my opinion, a dropped stomach rarely causes symptoms.

Very interesting to observe how different types of radio comedians get laughs.

At home the impression the listener gets is that the comic is hatching an egg and through some magic it's the audience that's doing the clacking.

First, there's the type of comedian who depends completely on his funny jokes to get laughs.

He never muggs, he has only his excellent sense of timing and seven ushers who run up and down the aisle with atomizers spraying laughing gas.

Then there is the comedian who was formerly a contortionist. His job is easy. He tells the joke, then while holding the script in his right hand, he deftly uses his left to unscrew his head.

Always popular is the comedian who works with a stooge. The stooge is usually 3½ feet tall so he won't be big enough to meet the comedian later in the alley.

This comic gets his laughs by beating the stooge over the head with a bound copy of last year's script.

Or if this isn't available, he hits him with the small orchestra conductor on the program.

And really great are the comedians who have posters printed.

At a given signal from the stage following a particularly big egg, page boys, scattered liberally throughout the audience, hold up huge signs that read "Mayhem."

Of course, I don't have to resort to any of these devices to get laughs on my Tuesday night show. However, I'll have to stop writing now.

We are holding a rehearsal and I have to run down to the store and pick up my trained seal, my putty eyelashes and my corrugated galoshes.

THE MOSCOW CONFERENCE ENDED ON AN OPTIMISTIC NOTE

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Mrs. McLean Was Victim Of Hope Diamond; Chief Justice Vinson Turned From McLean Door; Green Offers Concessions To The CIO

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, April 30.—The death of Evalyn Walsh McLean of Hope Diamond fame closes a unique chapter in the life of Washington—a chapter featured not only by poker parties and politicians, jewels and caviar, but by humanity and humility.

The latter was a side of Mrs. McLean that the public did not know about. Probably no one person in the capital did more for servicemen during the war than Mrs. McLean.

Though she went in for celebrities, Mrs. McLean had an even longer list of friends whose names meant nothing in the society columns, but who were just plain folks. They were invited to her house because she liked them.

Mrs. McLean always said that the Hope Diamond brought her bad luck, yet she clung to it. Her first child was killed in a traffic accident. Her husband died in an asylum for the insane. This winter her only daughter, the wife of ex-Senator Robert Reynolds of North Carolina, died of an overdose of sleeping tablets.

Friends sometimes asked Mrs. McLean why she did not sell the Hope Diamond. Her reply was that it would only bring bad luck to other people. Once she temporarily traded the diamond to Elliott Roosevelt—for a dollar.

She had met Elliott accidentally in the Kit Kat Club in New York and invited him to her table. Elliott was so critical of his father and other members of the family that Mrs. McLean, a Republican and close friend of Warren Harding, remonstrated.

"You shouldn't talk that way about your father," she said. "After all, I don't agree with a lot of things he's done. He's conscripted wealth and so on, but personally he's a fine man."

Finally, she gave Elliott the Hope Diamond, and he in return gave her a silver dollar which he carried for luck. Then, remembering the bad-luck reputation of the diamond, Elliott got almost panic-stricken and started to retrieve his dollar by force. At that point, Mrs. McLean traded back her diamond.

Chief Justice Rebuffed

Mrs. McLean was so crushed at the death recently of her daughter that she shut herself up for weeks. Friends worried about her long seclusion, but she refused to see them. Only the servants remained with her in the spacious, brick Georgfetown house, formerly owned by Ambassador Alexander Kirk of the Kirk soap millions.

Finally, kindly Fred Vinson, whose dignified robes as Chief Justice have never detracted from his human qualities, decided to try to cheer Mrs. McLean. He and Mrs. Vinson walked up to the McLean front door and knocked. A butler opened the door but did not let them in.

"Mrs. McLean is not seeing anyone," he said.

"Will you tell her that the Chief Justice and Mrs. Vinson just wanted to say hello for a moment?" requested Vinson. "Won't you please tell her that we are here?"

But the butler was adamant. The Chief Justice and Mrs. Vinson turned away from the McLean door, and the sorrowinug owner of the Hope Diamond remained in virtual seclusion until the end came last week.

Labor's Moscow Conference

Two men representing more people than the population of Australia sit down today to negotiate peace for American labor. They are William Green of the A.F. of L. and Phil Murray of the CIO. Their unity talks may be even more difficult than the Moscow Conference.

Green's attitude on labor peace has always been snobbish. He has offered the CIO a chance to return to the AFL, but little leadership inside the AFL. This the CIO has constantly rejected.

But today the grass-roots pressure from the ranks of labor is too strong, even for "Mother" Green. Labor all over the country has been demanding that the AFL and CIO forget their differences, work together to block the Hartley Labor Bill.

Originally, one wing of the AFL, led by John L. Lewis, carpenters' boss Bill Hutcheson and George Meany of the plumbers, thought they could do business with the Republicans. But the GOP labor blitz has left them disillusioned. Result is that the great majority of the AFL, led by teamsters' head Dan Tobin, and garment workers' David Dubinsky sincerely feel that there must be labor peace.

A. F. of L. Demands

So, at today's labor talks, Bill Green will abandon his hitherto high-and-mighty attitude. However, he'll demand certain concessions from the CIO, and this will be his program:

1. Purge all Communists from the CIO.
2. Withdraw from the World Federation of Trade Unions.
3. Abolish the CIO Political Action Committee.

In return Green will offer the CIO equal membership on the AFL executive board; also complete autonomy for all CIO unions in industries where the CIO has a majority of the members.

Murray will accept some but not all of these proposals. Also, he will have some counterproposals of his own. He will remind Green that the CIO is now twice as big as the AFL which it left eleven years ago. He will point out that much of the AFL's size and success today is due to the dynamic competition given it by the CIO. Finally, he will express fear that creating a labor monopoly and abolishing competition will stunt, rather than spur, unionization.

THESE DAYS

By George E. Sokolsky

PALESTINE AT UN

THE KILLING of innocent officials who follow instructions in line of duty, the promiscuous throwing of bombs and the destruction of property by terrorism never evokes admiration. Yet, in this day when love of country and pride of birth have succumbed to a cowardly subservience to might, it is refreshing to find men and women who, in the spirit of rebellion against injustice and oppression, risk their lives in the cause of principle.

The spirit of Nathan Hale cannot be admired only in historical retrospect. William Tell is not only the subject of opera. The Bruce is not merely the poet's lay. Judas Maccabaeus lives in tens of lands where oppression steals from men their language, their tradition, their soil. It is not only Palestine that is at stake; it is the doctrine of revolution so succinctly stated in the American Declaration of Independence.

The form of government established in Palestine by the League of Nations is a mandatory over territory conquered from Turkey. The sovereignty over Palestine was vested neither in Great Britain, the Arabs nor the Jews. Actually it was vested in the League of Nations, the successor to which is the United Nations. The British are merely responsible agents of the League of Nations, having been appointed to that office as recently as 1920.

The fact that the United States did not join the League of Nations precluded its acceptance of any mandate, but Bainbridge Colby, then Secretary of State, made it clear that as one of the Allied powers, the United States was concerned with what happened to conquered territory. Unless the United States were consulted, Colby declared, it would not consider itself bound by the terms and provisions of such mandates.

The Mandate, which was allocated to Great Britain at San Remo on April 25, 1920, and which the British accepted on September 29, 1923, contains this clause in its preamble:

"Whereas the Principal Allied Powers have also agreed that the Mandatory should be responsible for putting into effect the declaration originally made on the 2nd November, 1917, by the favour of the Government of His Britannic Majesty, and adopted by the said Powers, in favour of the establishment in Palestine of a national home for the Jewish people, it being clearly understood that nothing should be done which might prejudice the civil and religious rights of existing non-Jewish communities in Palestine, or the rights and political status enjoyed by Jews in any other country. . . ."

The Declaration of November 2, 1917, referred to above, is generally termed the Balfour Declaration.

The Balfour Declaration and the Mandate were endorsed by the Anglo-American Convention signed at London on December 3, 1924 and ratified by the Senate on February 20, 1925. These documents constitute the Jewish Charter for Palestine. Loosely worded, the documents have been subject to varying interpretations, but the intent is clear: Palestine was to become a homeland for such Jews as desired to dwell there, but that homeland was to be organized on a basis which would not interfere with the rights of Arabs or Christians who also sought to dwell there.

All things considered, the Jews and the Arabs in Palestine got along as well as differing peoples on the same spot do. The Jews made huge investments in agriculture, industry and social institutions from which the Arabs benefited.

The British, however, found themselves in an anomalous situation. They were acustomed to colonies which served Britain's economic policies. A mandated area is not a colony. It could not be exploited economically nor integrated politically. The British sought to do both and entered upon an intensive campaign of separating Jew from Arab. Because of this the entire Arab World was pro-Nazi during the war. President Roosevelt reversed this trend by actively and financially supporting the Arab League, which was more or less his creation, and by the organization of the Arabian-American Oil Company which the Department of Justice is trying to prevent Senator Wheeler from investigating. The Palestinian problem is now suffused in oil politics—and is before the United Nations for solution — in oil.

Economic Interests Of Mexico And United States Interrelated

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, April 30—America is anxious to make and keep as many friends as possible among the countries of this troubled world.

Back of the enthusiastic welcome to President Aleman is a definite policy here of encouraging the most cordial relations with every nation on this hemisphere.

Mexico has been a "good neighbor" and one might wonder why the demonstration at this time of good relations. The answer is that Mexico can be a hotbed of subversive influence. Communism, in fact, already has begun its infiltration program of creating dissension in many countries to the south of the United States.

As long as there is a tendency to take Mexican - American relations for granted and as likely to be good anyhow, there is a danger of neblect. Communists, moreover are alert to take advantage of any misunderstandings or to exaggerate past controversies.

Mexico and the United States have much in common but the peoples of the two countries really know very little about each other. A visit such as President Truman recently paid to Mexico and such as President Aleman now pays to this country means more publicity attention in a few weeks than either country gets from the other in many years.

Manifestations of Friendship

Manifestations of friendship through an exchange of presidential visits are worth while when they are superimposed on a background of genuine cooperation. Mexico and the United States worked together in World ar II in a manner that could not have been excelled.

But basically the Mexican people have often been misled by agitators who seek to spread the impression of a northern colossus anxious to gobble up a weaker country. Unfortunately, misunderstandings in the past have furnished opportunities for such propaganda to gain headway.

The Mexican people as a whole can be led into paths of warm friendship for the United States because at heart they are a friendly, peace-loving people. They are tired of the exploitation that comes with dictatorship. Back in 1911 this correspondent began writing from various parts of Mexico about the revolution that overthrew Dictator Diaz and an opportunity was afforded then to understand the spirit of liberalism and democracy that really animates the Mexican people.

Some of the men who were prominent in that revolution later ascended to high offices in the several administrations that have followed during the last 35 years. While these administrations have differed in personalities and in the character of their reform programs, the trend has been genuinely democratic and the purpose has been to achieve the main objectives of the 1910 revolution against dictatorship.

Mexico's chief difficulty has been her lack of capital to develop her rich resources. Sometimes reformers have gone to the extreme and scared away foreign capital. But the war period gave Mexico her biggest stimulus and today there are civic improvements and industrial establishments which never would have been possible except in a war economy when hundreds of millions of dollars of new capital were spent.

Some idea of the rise in Mexico's financial strength can be derived from the fact that the balances of gold and non-Mexican funds went from $40,000,000 in 1939 to $375,000,000 in 1945. Mexico bought more and more from the United States and last year $500,000,000 of U.S. products were sold to Mexico while this country bought $233,000,000 of Mexico's products.

Balances About Third Less

Since the Mexicans are continuing to buy goods from the U.S. that they couldn't get during the war, the balances are now about a third less than they were when the war ended. It has been suggested that the Export - Import Bank make Mexico a loan of about $145,000,000. President Aleman wants to build new highways and attract more tourist travel from the United States. Other credits for hotels and housing facilities are also planned.

President Aleman wants to see the credits extended to the government of Mexico but in turn for the government to put the projects into private business hands through direct loans to those businesses. Farm machinery, textile machinery, road-building equipment and many of the materials needed to develop Mexico internally will be bought in this country out of the proceeds of these loans.

A total of about $600,000,000 in credits may eventually result from the intimate business relations which Mexico and the United States now are developing and it will in turn attract other American capital to Mexico. Mexico needs dollars now to balance her exchange. The alternative would be to curtail imports from the U. S. so as to conserve dollars. The economic interests of both countries are interrelated. A program of development is necessary so that on our southern border the United States shall have a friendly neighbor with a strong economic foundation.

Taft Seeks, As He Did Year Ago, To Protect Rights Of Workers

By MARK SULLIVAN

The Senate debate on that body's version of the labor legislation brought out a difference between a new Republican Senator, Mr. Ives of New York, and Senator Taft, who, as Chairman of the Senate Labor Committee and also of the Senate Republican Steering Committee, has a position of party leadership.

Because the Senate debate is itself important, and because the difference between Messrs. Taft and Ives came over the first issue arising in the debate, a dramatic quality was attached to it. This is increased by the emphasis which attaches to any appearance of cleavage in the Republican majority or dissent from the leadership of Senator Taft. A further emphasis, not very relevant and probably entirely specious, is attached to the difference by a tendency to associate Senator Ives with New York Governor Thomas E. Dewey. The difference is made to seem to have a bearing on the relation between Governor Dewey and Senator Taft as candidates for the Republican Presidential nomination.

Omitting over-emphasis and misemphasis, the issue between Senators Taft and Ives was simple. Mr. Taft advocated an amendment which would make it an "unfair labor practice" for unions to "interfere with, restrain, or coerce" an individual worker, as respects joining or not joining a union, or joining one union as against another.

Opposing this, Senator Ives said that such a provision might interfere with legitimate union organizing activities, that there would be difficulty in determining what constitutes interference or coercion, and that any physical coercion or violence is already punishable under state and local laws.

Would Make Labor Responsible

To this Senator Taft replied that his amendment merely puts upon labor unions and leaders the same prohibition which is already put by the existing law upon employers. His purpose was to protcet the worker from coercion, coercion by anybody, whether employer or union. In Mr. Taft's words:

"An employer cannot go to an employee and say, 'if you join this union you will be discharged.' He cannot go to an employee and threaten physical violence . . . Now it is proposed that the union be bound in the same way . . . Why should a union be able to go to an employee and threaten violence if he does not join the union? Why should a union be able to say to an employee, 'if you do not join this union we will see that you cannot work in the plant'?"

Persons who followed the debate felt that Senator Taft had given a striking example of his penetration and clarity of thought and force of expression; and that Mr. Ives, as a new Senator making his impression on the Senate and the country, had not made progress. As the Washington Post put it, "The skill with which Senator Taft demolished arguments of his opponents based on considerations of expidiency rather than principle can hardly fail to influence the final Senate vote . . ."

Taft Principle Basic

The principle upon which Senator Taft, as is his way, stood in this case, is definite and basic. It is that bargaining between labor and management, in order to be successful and just, must take place with balance of legal status as between the two, and that there is not balance of legal status if one party is subjected to prohibitions from which the other is free. He holds that if such balance is achieved it will of itself cure many of the wrongs in labor relations.

Senator Ives, in his attack on the Taft amendment, called it "definitely anti-labor." That was an unfortunate epithet. Senator Taft, almost exactly a year ago, did an outstanding service for labor. There was a railroad strike and President Truman dramatically asked Congress for emergency legislation of an extreme kind. The House, moved by Mr. Truman's request and the urgency of the situation, passed the legislation within two hours and by a vote of 306 to 13. In the Senate there was momentarily the same spirit of urgency. But Senator Taft, seeing that the legislation went so far as to authorize, under certain conditions, drafting workers and subjecting them to military discipline, brought about postponement for two days, and in the end nothing came of it.

That incident may be recalled shortly if and when President Truman considers vetoing the pending legislation, written after prolonged and intent debate, for which Senator Taft as the majority Senate leader has a special responsibility.

Progress Toward World Understanding May Be Slow

The report to the nation on the outcome of the Moscow conference, given by Secretary of State Marshall, held little hope for an early understanding with the Soviet Union on major German and Austrian issues. Progress in that discussion may be painfully slow, the Secretary said. Meanwhile, he asserted, the recovery of Europe "cannot wait compromise through exhaustion." Whatever action is possible must be taken without delay, "because the patient is sinking while the doctor deliberates."

The Secretary of State found the disagreements, on the political issues involved in the proposed German and Austrian settlements, serious. The Russian program for Germany not only demanded "indefinite American subsidy," but could result in no less than economic deterioration and eventual dictatorship. A mortgage upon Austria was claimed which, in effect, would have made that country a Soviet puppet. "We must not compromise on great principles in order to achieve agreement for agreement's sake," Mr. Marshall declared.

That view will be endorsed by Americans. We cannot afford to sell civilization down the river for a scrap of paper. We did that at Yalta, and again at Potsdam, to the detriment of present and future generations.

Premier Stalin, Mr. Marshall said, expressed to him the view that compromises were possible on all main questions, including demilitarization, the political structure of Germany, reparations and economic unity. But to our soldier-diplomat this implied only that perhaps the Soviet delegation will be more cooperative in future conferences, whereas action toward European recovery is vital now.

The radio address by the Secretary reflected a deep appreciation of the problems at hand, and of the urgent need for action in the economic field, pending further efforts for political agreement. Meanwhile, while telling the Soviets bluntly that we are making no more one-sided deals, he may have brought us closer to an understanding with the Kremlin than is now apparent.

In any event, the Moscow conference was not another Munich. Our position has been clarified before the world. We now can proceed to do our best to establish peace and stability on the terms we have presented, with the door open to Russia to join us in that undertaking if it will.

Cost of the federal government is $11,730 per second. Congressional watchdogs of the Treasury must go nearly crazy every time they hear a clock tick.

The modern mother follows a schedule somewhat like this: The first is whooping cough at 3 to 6 months. At 9 months diphtheria-tetanus toxoid is injected in two doses, two months apart. During the first year, on one of the trips to the doctor, smallpox vaccine is also administered. If such a program is adhered to, a booster dose for whooping cough is usually advised some time between the second and third year, or after exposure to the infection. A reinforcing dose against diphtheria and tetanus is also recommended just before the child goes to school.

It is likely that in the future many of these substances will be combined to eliminate the frequency of injections. Already a triple vaccine is available and is showing sufficient promise for more widespread use.

The value of smallpox vaccination is established. There are so few victims of the disorder that its occurrences is practically a medical curiosity. The drop in the incidence of diphtheria since the introduction of its preventative, is almost as startling. Immunization against tetanus and whooping cough has lagged behind but is becoming more popular all the time. The prevalence of such maladies in those who have not received the inoculations is sufficient proof that more attention is needed along this line. With improved solutions, fewer reactions occur and the injections are spaced farther apart.

Tetanus toxoid deserves emphasis. Active children cut themselves doutinely during out door play and there is always the risk that this ailment will arise should the wound become contaminated with dirt. In the past, the older anti-toxin was utilized when some one stepped on a rusty nail. The procedure afforded temporary immunity and held the disease at bay for that injury only.

Now the child can be safeguarded well in advance with the newer toxoid. Revaccination may be required, however, at intervals of one to five years after the initial injections, to stimulate the immune mechanism of the body If an accident occurs, and the booster dose has not been given within a relatively short time, another injection will act as a safety measure.

NERVOUS MANIFESTATIONS

H. T. writes: What is a neurotic stomach?

REPLY

One which rebels because its owner is nervous, excited, anxious, or overworked. The disorders can mimic organic lesions such as ulcer. The main symptom is indigestion that is aggravated by worry or excitement.

"FALLEN" STOMACH

REPLY

One minute—long enough to be told to forget it. In my opinion, a dropped stomach rarely causes symptoms.

Very interesting to observe how different types of radio comedians get laughs.

At home the impression the listener gets is that the comic is hatching an egg and through some magic it's the audience that's doing the clacking.

First, there's the type of comedian who depends completely on his funny jokes to get laughs.

He never muggs, he has only his excellent sense of timing and seven ushers who run up and down the aisle with atomizers spraying laughing gas.

Then there is the comedian who was formerly a contortionist. His job is easy. He tells the joke, then while holding the script in his right hand, he deftly uses his left to unscrew his head.

Always popular is the comedian who works with a stooge. The stooge is usually 3½ feet tall so he won't be big enough to meet the comedian later in the alley.

This comic gets his laughs by beating the stooge over the head with a bound copy of last year's script.

Or if this isn't available, he hits him with the small orchestra conductor on the program.

And really great are the comedians who have posters printed.

At a given signal from the stage following a particularly big egg, page boys, scattered liberally throughout the audience, hold up huge signs that read "Mayhem."

Of course, I don't have to resort to any of these devices to get laughs on my Tuesday night show. However, I'll have to stop writing now.

We are holding a rehearsal and I have to run down to the store and pick up my trained seal, my putty eyelashes and my corrugated galoshes.

THE MOSCOW CONFERENCE ENDED ON AN OPTIMISTIC NOTE

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Mrs. McLean Was Victim Of Hope Diamond; Chief Justice Vinson Turned From McLean Door; Green Offers Concessions To The CIO

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, April 30.—The death of Evalyn Walsh McLean of Hope Diamond fame closes a unique chapter in the life of Washington—a chapter featured not only by poker parties and politicians, jewels and caviar, but by humanity and humility.

The latter was a side of Mrs. McLean that the public did not know about. Probably no one person in the capital did more for servicemen during the war than Mrs. McLean.

Though she went in for celebrities, Mrs. McLean had an even longer list of friends whose names meant nothing in the society columns, but who were just plain folks. They were invited to her house because she liked them.

Mrs. McLean always said that the Hope Diamond brought her bad luck, yet she clung to it. Her first child was killed in a traffic accident. Her husband died in an asylum for the insane. This winter her only daughter, the wife of ex-Senator Robert Reynolds of North Carolina, died of an overdose of sleeping tablets.

Friends sometimes asked Mrs. McLean why she did not sell the Hope Diamond. Her reply was that it would only bring bad luck to other people. Once she temporarily traded the diamond to Elliott Roosevelt—for a dollar.

She had met Elliott accidentally in the Kit Kat Club in New York and invited him to her table. Elliott was so critical of his father and other members of the family that Mrs. McLean, a Republican and close friend of Warren Harding, remonstrated.

"You shouldn't talk that way about your father," she said. "After all, I don't agree with a lot of things he's done. He's conscripted wealth and so on, but personally he's a fine man."

Finally, she gave Elliott the Hope Diamond, and he in return gave her a silver dollar which he carried for luck. Then, remembering the bad-luck reputation of the diamond, Elliott got almost panic-stricken and started to retrieve his dollar by force. At that point, Mrs. McLean traded back her diamond.

Chief Justice Rebuffed

Mrs. McLean was so crushed at the death recently of her daughter that she shut herself up for weeks. Friends worried about her long seclusion, but she refused to see them. Only the servants remained with her in the spacious, brick Georgetown house, formerly owned by Ambassador Alexander Kirk of the Kirk soap millions.

Finally, kindly Fred Vinson, whose dignified robes as Chief Justice have never detracted from his human qualities, decided to try to cheer Mrs. McLean. He and Mrs. Vinson walked up to the McLean front door and knocked. A butler opened the door but did not let them in.

"Mrs. McLean is not seeing anyone," he said.

"Will you tell her that the Chief Justice and Mrs. Vinson just wanted to say hello for a moment?" requested Vinson. "Won't you please tell her that we are here?"

But the butler was adamant. The Chief Justice and Mrs. Vinson turned away from the McLean door, and the sorrowinug owner of the Hope Diamond remained in virtual seclusion until the end came last week.

Labor's Moscow Conference

Two men representing more people than the population of Australia sit down today to negotiate peace for American labor. They are William Green of the A.F. of L. and Phil Murray of the CIO. Their unity talks may be even more difficult than the Moscow Conference.

Green's attitude on labor peace has always been snobbish. He has offered the CIO a chance to return to the AFL, but little leadership inside the AFL. This the CIO has constantly rejected.

But today the grass-roots pressure from the ranks of labor is too strong, even for "Mother" Green. Labor all over the country has been demanding that the AFL and CIO forget their differences, work together to block the Hartley Labor Bill.

Originally, one wing of the AFL, led by John L. Lewis, carpenters' boss Bill Hutcheson and George Meany of the plumbers, thought they could do business with the Republicans. But the GOP labor blitz has left them disillusioned. Result is that the great majority of the AFL, led by teamsters' head Dan Tobin, and garment workers' David Dubinsky sincerely feel that there must be labor peace.

A. F. of L. Demands

So, at today's labor talks, Bill Green will abandon his hitherto high-and-mighty attitude. However, he'll demand certain concessions from the CIO, and this will be his program:

1. Purge all Communists from the CIO.
2. Withdraw from the World Federation of Trade Unions.
3. Abolish the CIO Political Action Committee.

In return Green will offer the CIO equal membership on the AFL executive board; also complete autonomy for all CIO unions in industries where the CIO has a majority of the members.

Murray will accept some but not all of these proposals. Also, he will have some counterproposals of his own. He will remind Green that the CIO is now twice as big as the AFL which it left eleven years ago. He will point out that much of the AFL's size and success today is due to the dynamic competition given it by the CIO. Finally, he will express fear that creating a labor monopoly and abolishing competition will stunt, rather than spur, unionization.

THESE DAYS

PALESTINE AT UN

THE KILLING of innocent officials who follow instructions in line of duty, the promiscuous throwing of bombs and the destruction of property by terrorism never evokes admiration. Yet, in this day when love of country and pride of birth have succumbed to a cowardly subservience to might, it is refreshing to find men and women who, in the spirit of rebellion against injustice and oppression, risk their lives in the cause of principle.

The spirit of Nathan Hale cannot be admired only in historical retrospect. William Tell is not only the subject of opera. The Bruce is not merely the poet's lay. Judas Maccabaeus lives in tens of lands where oppression steals from men their language, their tradition, their soil. It is not only Palestine that is at stake; it is the doctrine of revolution so succinctly stated in the American Declaration of Independence.

The form of government established in Palestine by the League of Nations is a mandatory over territory conquered from Turkey. The sovereignty over Palestine was vested neither in Great Britain, the Arabs nor the Jews. Actually it was vested in the League of Nations, the successor to which is the United Nations. The British are merely responsible agents of the League of Nations, having been appointed to that office as recently as 1920.

The fact that the United States did not join the League of Nations precluded its acceptance of any mandate, but Bainbridge Colby, then Secretary of State, made it clear that as one of the Allied powers, the United States was concerned with what happened to conquered territory. Unless the United States were consulted, Colby declared, it would not consider itself bound by the terms and provisions of such mandates.

The Mandate, which was allocated to Great Britain at San Remo on April 25, 1920, and which the British accepted on September 29, 1923, contains this clause in its preamble:

"Whereas the Principal Allied Powers have also agreed that the Mandatory should be responsible for putting into effect the declaration originally made on the 2nd November, 1917, by the favour of the Government of His Britannic Majesty, and adopted by the said Powers, in favour of the establishment in Palestine of a national home for the Jewish people, it being clearly understood that nothing should be done which might prejudice the civil and religious rights of existing non-Jewish communities in Palestine, or the rights and political status enjoyed by Jews in any other country. . . ."

The Declaration of November 2, 1917, referred to above, is generally termed the Balfour Declaration.

The Balfour Declaration and the Mandate were endorsed by the Anglo-American Convention signed at London on December 3, 1924 and ratified by the Senate on February 20, 1925. These documents constitute the Jewish Charter for Palestine. Loosely worded, the documents have been subject to varying interpretations, but the intent is clear: Palestine was to become a homeland for such Jews as desired to dwell there, but that homeland was to be organized on a basis which would not interfere with the rights of Arabs or Christians who also sought to dwell there.

All things considered, the Jews and the Arabs in Palestine got along as well as differing peoples on the same spot do. The Jews made huge investments in agriculture, industry and social institutions from which the Arabs benefited.

The British, however, found themselves in an anomalous situation. They were acustomed to colonies which served Britain's economic policies. A mandated area is not a colony. It could not be exploited economically nor integrated politically. The British sought to do both and entered upon an intensive campaign of separating Jew from Arab. Because of this the entire Arab World was pro-Nazi during the war. President Roosevelt reversed this trend by actively and financially supporting the Arab League, which was more or less his creation, and by the organization of the Arabian-American Oil Company which the Department of Justice is trying to prevent Senator Wheeler from investigating. The Palestinian problem is now suffused in oil politics—and is before the United Nations for solution — in oil.

Economic Interests Of Mexico And United States Interrelated

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, April 30—America is anxious to make and keep as many friends as possible among the countries of this troubled world.

Back of the enthusiastic welcome to President Aleman is a definite policy here of encouraging the most cordial relations with every nation on this hemisphere.

Mexico has been a "good neighbor" and one might wonder why the demonstration at this time of good relations. The answer is that Mexico can be a hotbed of subversive influence. Communism, in fact, already has begun its infiltration program of creating dissension in many countries to the south of the United States.

As long as there is a tendency to take Mexican - American relations for granted and as likely to be good anyhow, there is a danger of neblect. Communists, moreover are alert to take advantage of any misunderstandings or to exaggerate past controversies.

Mexico and the United States have much in common but the peoples of the two countries really know very little about each other. A visit such as President Truman recently paid to Mexico and such as President Aleman now pays to this country means more publicity attention in a few weeks than either country gets from the other in many years.

Manifestations of Friendship

Manifestations of friendship through an exchange of presidential visits are worth while when they are superimposed on a background of genuine cooperation. Mexico and the United States worked together in World ar II in a manner that could not have been excelled.

But basically the Mexican people have often been misled by agitators who seek to spread the impression of a northern colossus anxious to gobble up a weaker country. Unfortunately, misunderstandings in the past have furnished opportunities for such propaganda to gain headway.

The Mexican people as a whole can be led into paths of warm friendship for the United States because at heart they are a friendly, peace-loving people. They are tired of the exploitation that comes with dictatorship. Back in 1911 this correspondent began writing from various parts of Mexico about the revolution that overthrew Dictator Diaz and an opportunity was afforded then to understand the spirit of liberalism and democracy that really animates the Mexican people.

Some of the men who were prominent in that revolution later ascended to high offices in the several administrations that have followed during the last 35 years. While these administrations have differed in personalities and in the character of their reform programs, the trend has been genuinely democratic and the purpose has been to achieve the main objectives of the 1910 revolution against dictatorship.

Mexico's chief difficulty has been her lack of capital to develop her rich resources. Sometimes reformers have gone to the extreme and scared away foreign capital. But the war period gave Mexico her biggest stimulus and today there are civic improvements and industrial establishments which never would have been possible except in a war economy when hundreds of millions of dollars of new capital were spent.

Some idea of the rise in Mexico's financial strength can be derived from the fact that the balances of gold and non-Mexican funds went from $40,000,000 in 1939 to $375,000,000 in 1945. Mexico bought more and more from the United States and last year $500,000,000 of U.S. products were sold to Mexico while this country bought $233,000,000 of Mexico's products.

Balances About Third Less

Since the Mexicans are continuing to buy goods from the U.S. that they couldn't get during the war, the balances are now about a third less than they were when the war ended. It has been suggested that the Export - Import Bank make Mexico a loan of about $145,000,000. President Aleman wants to build new highways and attract more tourist travel from the United States. Other credits for hotels and housing facilities are also planned.

President Aleman wants to see the credits extended to the government of Mexico but in turn for the government to put the projects into private business hands through direct loans to those businesses. Farm machinery, textile machinery, road-building equipment and many of the materials needed to develop Mexico internally will be bought in this country out of the proceeds of these loans.

A total of about $600,000,000 in credits may eventually result from the intimate business relations which Mexico and the United States now are developing and it will in turn attract other American capital to Mexico. Mexico needs dollars now to balance her exchange. The alternative would be to curtail imports from the U. S. so as to conserve dollars. The economic interests of both countries are interrelated. A program of development is necessary so that on our southern border the United States shall have a friendly neighbor with a strong economic foundation.

Taft Seeks, As He Did Year Ago, To Protect Rights Of Workers

By MARK SULLIVAN

The Senate debate on that body's version of the labor legislation brought out a difference between a new Republican Senator, Mr. Ives of New York, and Senator Taft, who, as Chairman of the Senate Labor Committee and also of the Senate Republican Steering Committee, has a position of party leadership.

Because the Senate debate is itself important, and because the difference between Messrs. Taft and Ives came over the first issue arising in the debate, a dramatic quality was attached to it. This is increased by the emphasis which attaches to any appearance of cleavage in the Republican majority or dissent from the leadership of Senator Taft. A further emphasis, not very relevant and probably entirely specious, is attached to the difference by a tendency to associate Senator Ives with New York Governor Thomas E. Dewey. The difference is made to seem to have a bearing on the relation between Governor Dewey and Senator Taft as candidates for the Republican Presidential nomination.

Omitting over-emphasis and misemphasis, the issue between Senators Taft and Ives was simple. Mr. Taft advocated an amendment which would make it an "unfair labor practice" for unions to "interfere with, restrain, or coerce" an individual worker, as respects joining or not joining a union, or joining one union as against another.

Opposing this, Senator Ives said that such a provision might interfere with legitimate union organizing activities, that there would be difficulty in determining what constitutes interference or coercion, and that any physical coercion or violence is already punishable under state and local laws.

Would Make Labor Responsible

To this Senator Taft replied that his amendment merely puts upon labor unions and leaders the same prohibition which is already put by the existing law upon employers. His purpose was to protcet the worker from coercion, coercion by anybody, whether employer or union. In Mr. Taft's words:

"An employer cannot go to an employee and say, 'if you join this union you will be discharged.' He cannot go to an employee and threaten physical violence . . . Now it is proposed that the union be bound in the same way . . . Why should a union be able to go to an employee and threaten violence if he does not join the union? Why should a union be able to say to an employee, 'if you do not join this union we will see that you cannot work in the plant'?"

Persons who followed the debate felt that Senator Taft had given a striking example of his penetration and clarity of thought and force of expression; and that Mr. Ives, as a new Senator making his impression on the Senate and the country, had not made progress. As the Washington Post put it, "The skill with which Senator Taft demolished arguments of his opponents based on considerations of expidiency rather than principle can hardly fail to influence the final Senate vote . . ."

Taft Principle Basic

The principle upon which Senator Taft, as is his way, stood in this case, is definite and basic. It is that bargaining between labor and management, in order to be successful and just, must take place with balance of legal status as between the two, and that there is not balance of legal status if one party is subjected to prohibitions from which the other is free. He holds that if such balance is achieved it will of itself cure many of the wrongs in labor relations.

Senator Ives, in his attack on the Taft amendment, called it "definitely anti-labor." That was an unfortunate epithet. Senator Taft, almost exactly a year ago, did an outstanding service for labor. There was a railroad strike and President Truman dramatically asked Congress for emergency legislation of an extreme kind. The House, moved by Mr. Truman's request and the urgency of the situation, passed the legislation within two hours and by a vote of 306 to 13. In the Senate there was momentarily the same spirit of urgency. But Senator Taft, seeing that the legislation went so far as to authorize, under certain conditions, drafting workers and subjecting them to military discipline, brought about postponement for two days, and in the end nothing came of it.

That incident may be recalled shortly if and when President Truman considers vetoing the pending legislation, written after prolonged and intent debate, for which Senator Taft as the majority Senate leader has a special responsibility.

PITCHING HORSESHOES by Billy Rose

A year ago I didn't think English movies had a chance in America.

Today I'm not so sure.

Billy Rose

Last night I saw a pre-release screening of a new British who-perpetrated-it called "Green for Danger." Murder, guv'nor! It makes Hollywood's recent shoot-'em-ups look like pillow fights in a girls' dormitory.

In features a civilized funny-man named Alastair Sim who can spot Abbott and Costello sixty laughs. Producing, acting and writing—right up there with Mt. Everest.

Especially the writing. And that's where I made my mistake a year ago when I low-rated the picture-makers in Blighty. I forgot how good the Hand Across the Sea is with a pencil. I disremembered that from Shakespeare to Shaw the British have always produced the heavyweight writing champs. I forgot that, even with technicolor and falsies, a movie is only as good as the words somebody put on paper.

I guess what threw me was my meeting with J. Arthur Rank. I knew that in Britain he was Louis B. Mayer times 50, with pipelines to Parliament and the Bank of England. He came around one day to see my theatre. We chatted about pictures, promotion, picture promotion, and promotion of pictures. He impressed me as a nice enough fellow, but I didn't notice any lightning coming out of his ears. As he left, I got the feeling his genius consisted principally of having selected a father who left two hundred million dollars.

In London, a few months later, I saw a five-million-buck sleeping tablet he had compounded—"Caesar and Cleopatra," I walked out on the fifth reel and mumbled into the fog, "Rank, Rank, will break the bank."

But I was wrong as a seven-dollar bill.

J. Arthur kept bankrolling little groups of talented guys. One of these groups came up with "Henry V," starring the best actor in the world, Laurence Olivier. So far it has grossed better than a million smackers in only fifteen of our small theatres.

Since "Colonel Blimp," a Piccadilly filly named Deborah Kerr has had our wolves baying at the moon. "The Seventh Veil" let loose a nasty man named James Mason who has caused more rumpus than Churchill's speech at Fulton, Mo.

Then an up-and-coming scrivener named Noel Coward checked in with "Brief Encounter." It packed our Little Carnegie Playhouse for almost a year. Noel's "This Happy Breed" followed it, and the critics threw their tea-cups in the air when they reviewed it the other day.

Want to hear more? "Great Expectations," by a fairish English writer named Charles Dickens, is slated for New York's top showcase, the Radio City Music Hall. I've seen it, and I think it's going to ding a lot of bells. Currently "Odd Man Out," "The Adventuress," and "Stairway to Heaven" have the cash registers singing "God Save the King."

I think this is a blessing all around. Tell you why.

First, the British make movies for grownups. If these movies do business, it's bound to be noticed by that part of Hollywood which would rather insult the audience's intelligence than admit it had any.

One of these days we may be able to go to the cinema without our rattles and teething rings.

Second, good British movies will get them good American dollars. And the English will be getting these dollars on merit, rather than muscle and diplomatic jabberwocky. Much as we disagree with their policy in Palestine, very few of us want to see this tough and talented nation go down the drain.

Third, good English movies may solve a tough Hollywood problem. Thirty per cent of the world gross of an American picture comes from the United Kingdom. Without this cream from the top of the bottle, our movie-makers would have to tighten their belts. A recent statistic dramatizes what American flickers are doing to the British piggy bank. In the last six months of 1946 Yankee movies and tobacco took back $230 million dollars of the first $600 million we advanced on the Big Loan — almost 40%. It's a cinch the British are in no position to let us continue taking that kind of dough out of their punch-drunk economy. Betty Grable's legs are pretty, but when you're hungry, bacon is prettier.

A few weeks back, movie czar Eric Johnston told Hollywood chiefs that within the year, His Majesty's Government might have to freeze our "take." This would put most of our independent producers out of business. Only the big studios could keep operating with that 30% frozen. And when the indies go, a lot of the nicest things being made today go with them.

I see one way out. If the British film factories continue turning out four-star product, our theatres can give them more and more playing time. And why not? What's wrong with giving up 10% of our screen hours to worthwhile imports, if it will protect that big 30%?

If Hollywood wants to stay solvent, it'll root for English movies. Instead of luring James Mason and Deborah Kerr with real butter and three-inch steaks, it'll boot them in their bustles and send them back to Shepherd's Bush.

It gets down to this: Unless we let the English make some money here, they can't afford to let us make money there. Or if they let us make it because they're not turning out enough native product to keep their theatre seats warm, they can't let us take it home.

Lucky for us, the British movies are getting good.

It may save our fourth largest industry.

Today's Talk

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

The Weather

Texas is a great state, as anyone can testify to who has ever visited or lived there. The state has room. People make you feel at home there, and the air is clean and stimulating. But they have weather in that state, as well as in any other, and I read of one of their citizens, who had lived to the ripe old age of 103 years, who when asked the secret, replied: "No secret, so far as I can suggest — unless it be that I have never worried about the weather!"

I have often wondered how many people, who are forever worrying and complaining about the weather, would regulate it better if they had the sole thing in charge. Take it on the whole it is done quite well, without man's interference. There are more sunny, beautiful days than otherwise. We need all sorts of weather, the same as we need all sorts of experiences — trials, tests, and even tribulations.

How fresh the earth after a heavy rain, how clear the air after a day of mugginess! Contrasts are dramatic and stimulating. That's one reason why we should not worry about the weather. It will take care of itself, and we can do nothing about it anyway!

Nevertheless weather is headline news—and probably the most widely read of all items in our newspapers. It is the top feature, probably the first one noted, and perhaps the entire day's program regulated by it. It's that important to many.

We can school ourselves to get used to all sorts of weather, without complaining, the same as we can school ourselves to get along with all sorts of people—and like them all, for one reason or another.

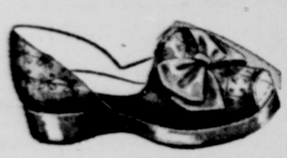

If we didn't have every variety of weather, what would become of our poets and writers who have left masterpieces of rhyme and prose upon the rain, the sunshine, the snow, and the winds? And think of the thousands of scientists and weather prophets who dote upon the weather! Yes, I believe that we can all live longer—and happier—by not worrying about the weather.

A JUST AND LASTING PEACE
HOW TO WIN IT?

It begins to look as though force - even the implied threat of the Atom Bomb - and diplomacy are failing. Nations are bristling at each other over their borders and glowering at each other across the council tables.

Isn't it about time for ordinary people - not their leaders - the people who suffer from war - the people who always pay the true cost of war - to do something?

Over the ages, people many times in such an extremity have turned to God and prayer. And their pleas have been heard!

PITCHING HORSESHOES by Billy Rose

A year ago I didn't think English movies had a chance in America.

Today I'm not so sure.

Billy Rose

Last night I saw a pre-release screening of a new British who-perpetrated-it called "Green for Danger." Murder, guv'nor! It makes Hollywood's recent shoot-'em-ups look like pillow fights in a girls' dormitory.

In features a civilized funnyman named Alastair Sim who can spot Abbott and Costello sixty laughs. Producing, acting and writing—right up there with Mt. Everest.

Especially the writing. And that's where I made my mistake a year ago when I low-rated the picture-makers in Blighty. I forgot how good the Hand Across the Sea is with a pencil. I disremembered that from Shakespeare to Shaw the British have always produced the heavyweight writing champs. I forgot that, even with technicolor and falsies, a movie is only as good as the words somebody put on paper.

I guess what threw me was my meeting with J. Arthur Rank. I knew that in Britain he was Louis B. Mayer times 50, with pipelines to Parliament and the Bank of England. He came around one day to see my theatre. We chatted about pictures, promotion, picture promotion, and promotion of pictures. He impressed me as a nice enough fellow, but I didn't notice any lightning coming out of his ears. As he left, I got the feeling his genius consisted principally of having selected a father who left two hundred million dollars.

In London, a few months later, I saw a five-million-buck sleeping tablet he had compounded—"Caesar and Cleopatra." I walked out on the fifth reel and mumbled into the fog, "Rank, Rank, will break the bank."

But I was wrong as a seven-dollar bill.

J. Arthur kept bankrolling little groups of talented guys. One of these groups came up with "Henry V," starring the best actor in the world, Laurence Olivier. So far it has grossed better than a million smackers in only fifteen of our small theatres.

Since "Colonel Blimp," a Piccadilly filly named Deborah Kerr has had our wolves baying at the moon. "The Seventh Veil" let loose a nasty man named James Mason who has caused more rumpus than Churchill's speech at Fulton, Mo.

Then an up-and-coming scrivener named Noel Coward checked in with "Brief Encounter." It packed our Little Carnegie Playhouse for almost a year. Noel's "This Happy Breed" followed it, and the critics threw their tea-cups in the air when they reviewed it the other day.

Want to hear more? "Great Expectations," by a fairish English writer named Charles Dickens, is slated for New York's top showcase, the Radio City Music Hall. I've seen it, and I think it's going to ding a lot of bells. Currently "Odd Man Out," "The Adventuress," and "Stairway to Heaven" have the cash registers singing "God Save the King."

I think this is a blessing all around. Tell you why.

First, the British make movies for grownups. If these movies do business, it's bound to be noticed by that part of Hollywood which would rather insult the audience's intelligence than admit it had any.

One of these days we may be able to go to the cinema without our rattles and teething rings.

Second, good British movies will get them good American dollars. And the English will be getting these dollars on merit, rather than muscle and diplomatic jabberwocky. Much as we disagree with their policy in Palestine, very few of us want to see this tough and talented nation go down the drain.

Third, good English movies may solve a tough Hollywood problem. Thirty per cent of the world gross of an American picture comes from the United Kingdom. Without this cream from the top of the bottle, our movie-makers would have to tighten their belts. A recent statistic dramatizes what American flickers are doing to the British piggy bank. In the last six months of 1946 Yankee movies and tobacco took back $230 million dollars of the first $600 million we advanced on the Big Loan — almost 40%. It's a cinch the British are in no position to let us continue taking that kind of dough out of their punch-drunk economy. Betty Grable's legs are pretty, but when you're hungry, bacon is prettier.

A few weeks back, movie czar Eric Johnston told Hollywood chiefs that within the year, His Majesty's Government might have to freeze our "take." This would put most of our independent producers out of business. Only the big studios could keep operating with that 30% frozen. And when the indies go, a lot of the nicest things being made today go with them.

I see one way out. If the British film factories continue turning out four-star product, our theatres can give them more and more playing time. And why not? What's wrong with giving up 10% of our screen hours to worthwhile imports, if it will protect that big 30%?

If Hollywood wants to stay solvent, it'll root for English movies. Instead of luring James Mason and Deborah Kerr with real butter and three-inch steaks, it'll boot them in their bustles and send them back to Shepherd's Bush.

It gets down to this: Unless we let the English make some money here, they can't afford to let us make money there. Or if they let us make it because they're not turning out enough native product to keep their theatre seats warm, they can't let us take it home.

Lucky for us, the British movies are getting good.

It may save our fourth largest industry.

Today's Talk

The Weather

Texas is a great state, as anyone can testify to who has ever visited or lived there. The state has room. People make you feel at home there, and the air is clean and stimulating. But they have weather in that state, as well as in any other, and I read of one of their citizens, who had lived to the ripe old age of 103 years, who when asked the secret, replied: "No secret, so far as I can suggest — unless it be that I have never worried about the weather!"

I have often wondered how many people, who are forever worrying and complaining about the weather, would regulate it better if they had the sole thing in charge. Take it on the whole it is done quite well, without man's interference. There are more sunny, beautiful days than otherwise. We need all sorts of weather, the same as we need all sorts of experiences — trials, tests, and even tribulations.

How fresh the earth after a heavy rain, how clear the air after a day of mugginess! Contrasts are dramatic and stimulating. That's one reason why we should not worry about the weather. It will take care of itself, and we can do nothing about it anyway!

Nevertheless weather is headline news—and probably the most widely read of all items in our newspapers. It is the top feature, probably the first one noted, and perhaps the entire day's program regulated by it. It's that important to many.

We can school ourselves to get used to all sorts of weather, without complaining, the same as we can school ourselves to get along with all sorts of people—and like them all, for one reason or another.

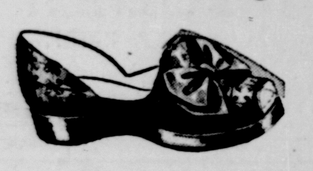

If we didn't have every variety of weather, what would become of our poets and writers who have left masterpieces of rhyme and prose upon the rain, the sunshine, the snow, and the winds? And think of the thousands of scientists and weather prophets who dote upon the weather! Yes, I believe that we can all live longer—and happier—by not worrying about the weather.

A JUST AND LASTING PEACE
HOW TO WIN IT?

It begins to look as though force - even the implied threat of the Atom Bomb - and diplomacy are failing. Nations are bristling at each other over their borders and glowering at each other across the council tables.

The party will be held sometime in May at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club. Miss Mary pple, Miss Ruth Miller and Mrs. Ethel Bruce comprise the committee in charge of arrangements.

Good books, schools and better environment are proper means of combating crime according to a member of the FBI at the sorority conclave recently in Washington, Mrs. Helen Burke reported. In his talk on "Culture Can Combat Crime," the federal man gave statistics showing that between 1941 and 1945, 84 per cent of crimes were committed by males as against five per cent by females; and in 1945, the 17 year-olds led in crimes. He pointed out that the fault lies in the fact that there is no religion in the homes and community and urged supplying recreation and sports to combat delinquency.

A cultural program was conducted by Mrs. Ethel Bruce which was divided into three topics. The first dealt with objects of folk art, consisting of weaving baskets and cloth, pottery and wood carving. The second concerned weaving in Guadamale today; and third pre-colonial weaving in Peru. She gave the traditions behind the designs and described the clothes worn by the girls there.

Good books, schools and better environment are proper means of combating crime according to a member of the FBI at the sorority conclave recently in Washington, Mrs. Helen Burke reported. He pointed out that the fault lies in the fact that there is no religion in the homes and community and urged supplying recreation and sports to combat delinquency.

A cultural program was conducted by Mrs. Ethel Bruce which was divided into three topics. The first dealt with objects of folk art, consisting of weaving baskets and cloth, pottery and wood carving. The second concerned weaving in Guadamale today; and third pre-colonial weaving in Peru. She gave the traditions behind the designs and described the clothes worn by the girls there.

Council Approves Hiring Recreation Director For City

By a 4 to 1 vote, with Street Commissioner Myers G. Light dissenting, the Mayor and Council yesterday approved the action of the Cumberland Recreation Board in hiring Charles L. Taylor, Clarksburg, W. Va., as recreation director for the city at an annual salary of $4,500.

Light stated that he is "100 per cent opposed to paying $4,500 to such a man," adding that the city attorney, city engineer and other employes "don't receive anything like that. I am not opposed to recreation but I don't see why it is necessary to go out of town to hire a director at such a high salary."

Commissioner Light's office revealed that a total of $24,840 was appropriated last year for parks ($4,500), Constitution Park ($10,800), and playgrounds ($9,540).

Money was spent as follows: Parks, $4,649.03; playgrounds, $8,651.37, and Constitution Park, $10,058.29. Out of the total of $23,358.69 spent, $20,552.13 went for wages and salaries to about 45 full and part-time employes.

Admitting that the salary is "probably large" when compared to that paid for other jobs, Mayor Thomas S. Post said he favors going ahead with the recreation program. He said it is estimated the director's expenses will be $6,300 to hire a secretary and to provide expense money.

The question of whether Taylor will be hired under contract or be placed under Civil Service remained undecided. City Attorney Charles Z. Heskett, who was not present at yesterday's meeting, said later he believes the director could be employed by contract, due to the technical nature of the work.

In a letter to the council, J. Suter Kegg, board secretary, who attended the meeting, outlined Taylor's qualifications and stated the latter had informed the board that the $4,500 annual salary was the lowest he would accept.

Taylor, a graduate of West Virginia University with bachelor and master degrees in music, has been employed as music teacher at University High School, Morgantown, W. Va.; vocal instructor, Victory High School, Clarksburg; and state music and recreation director of the West Virginia Agriculture Extension Service.

He resigned a position at Ann Arbor, Mich., as district representative of the National Recreation Association in order to accept the Cumberland offer, and expects to assume his new duties May 5.

Ex-GI Allowance Payments Held Up

The local office of the State Unemployment Compensation Division has been notified by the central office in Baltimore that no further benefits will be paid starting today, under the Servicemen's Readjustment Allowance Act until funds are made available, according to Francis A. Kenney, local manager.

Kenney said he was informed that funds are not now available, but that persons who already have filed claims will be paid as soon as funds are made available. He added that persons entitled to benefits should continue to file claims so they can be paid when the money is on hand.

This action has no effect on payments of state benefits, Kenney pointed out.

According to the Associated Press, the Veterans Administration yesterday held up for lack of funds checks due veterans receiving unemployment or educational allowances.

The agency said it expects to be able to mail the money "within a few days" when a pending appropriation bill clears Congress.

While the state pays the unemployment benefits under the Readjustment Allowance Act in Maryland it is reimbursed by the federal government for the money expended.

Garment Company Gets Tax Exemption

The Cumberland Undergarment Company was granted a five-year tax exemption yesterday by the Mayor and Council, on condition that the company gives assurance of continued operations.

Mayor Thomas S. Post and Commissioner Myers G. Light opposed the motion made by Commissioner William V. Keegan and seconded by Commissioner Clifton E. Fuller.

The assessed value of machinery and tools is expected to be in excess of $40,000, although no official figure has been received at the Court House from the State Tax Commission. The company operates in the old General Textile Building on Gay Street, which is assessed at $73,500. The company will continue to pay real estate taxes.

Although Mayor Post brought up the subject of the revised smoke control ordinance which was distributed to council members for study several months ago, Commissioner William J. Edwards' suggestion that decision be delayed pending consideration of the budget was approved. Edwards said the ordinance would require an additional outlay of $15,000 yearly.

The proposed measure calls for the appointment of a smoke abatement engineer along with clerks and other assistants.

As a final action at the meeting, the payroll was approved.

Magistrates Sworn In

Trial Magistrates Oliver H. Bruce, Jr., and Frank A. Perdew were sworn in yesterday for their new two-year terms beginning today.

The oath was administered to Bruce by Deputy Clerk Joseph Boden and to Perdew by Deputy Clerk G. Walter Fisher in the office of the Clerk of Circuit Court.

ALONG THE POTOMAC TO WASHINGTON

By J. GLENN BEALL
(Member of Congress from Maryland Sixth District)

I walked over to the Senate last week and listened to some of the debate on the Bill to provide for assistance to Greece and Turkey. This is a tremendously important piece of legislation and I believe you may be interested in hearing about it.

The President of the United States came to a Joint Session of Congress on March 12 to proclaim his policy. A Bill supporting this policy was introduced in the Senate on March 19, approved by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on April 3 and came up for action before the full Senate April 26. That is comparatively quick action.

When I walked into the Senate Chamber Senator Johnson of Colorado was speaking on his amendment which, if passed, would restrict the proposal to non-military aid. This amendment was defeated —22 yeas to 68 nays. The galleries were crowded with persons interested in this legislation, visitors watching the sights, families and friends of Senators and oldtime Capitol employees watching history in the making. The press ond radio galleries were filled to capacity with representatives of the Nation's newspapers and radio networks.

This was a vital matter up for consideration and after just five hours the Senate voted in favor of this Bill—67 to 23. Both of our Maryland Senators voted for it. The Senate had not given such overwhelming support to any controversial measure of American foreign policy since the beginning of World War II. You may recall that the Senate acted with swiftness and with just as conclusive and impressive vote on the repeal of the Arms embargo on Lend-Lease, two measures that shaped our foreign policy before Pearl Harbor.

After the excitement of the vote on Senate Bill 938, I reviewed it again and found that the outstanding provisions provide for, (1) expenditure by July, 1948, of $400,000,000 in aid to Greece and Turkey of which $300,000,000 would be spent on Greece, half for military purposes and half for economic reconstruction; (2) Turkey would get $100,000,000 for military aid; (3) military equipment to be transferred to the armed forces of Greece and Turkey; (4) authority for this country to send "advisory" military and naval missions to operate in the two countries; and (5) a committment by the United States to cease this program at any time the United Nations found it "unnecessary or undesirable."

I think we all want to help these starving people with food and clothing but should we contribute toward building up their military? What interpretation would other countries put on this contribution? I would appreciate your writing me as to your opinion before the bill reaches the House for consideration.

UNDER THE DOME

I appeared before the sub-committee of the House Appropriations Committee and spoke in behalf of the continuation of the Forestry Service. As I told the Committee, it is important to continue this service, especially if the rest of the nation received as much good as Maryland where much has been done to preserve and develop new forests.

The Federal Works Agency this week approved the application of the State Superintendent of Schools who requested the veterans education facilities be extended to the Frostburg State Teachers College. This will include laboratory facilities and the necessary equipment. I don't believe we can do too much to encourage young students who want to become teachers. I am keeping an interested eye on the various counties in my district with relation to numerous programs for a raise in pay standards for school teachers.

I requested the Post Office Department to inspect the Myersville rural service situation. They complied with this request. Mr. Reis, the Inspector, took several members of the County Commissioners and the Roads Engineer over the entire route. After receiving the report of Inspector Reis, I have asked the Post Office to add another carrier to this route in order that all of the persons in that area will be served. It is perfectly clear that the present carriers now delivering mail on this route cannot take on any more mileage.

Attending an executive session of the Public Works Committee, we discussed a bill which will provide for the construction of a new Court House for the District of Columbia. This legislation was reported out favorably.

I was pleased to talk with several delegations during the week concerning the labor legislation now before the Senate. You will recall that the House passed the Labor-Management Act of 1947. This bill is the most comprehensive labor reform measure ever considered or approved by any legislative body in the Nation's history. I told you the main points of this legislation last week but I would be glad to mail you this bill or a resume of the provisions included. I would also be happy to discuss it with you personally.

Bottling Workers Refuse Wage Offer

Settlement Predicted With Armour Company

C. E. Stutzman, business agent for Local 453, Teamsters Union, said last night hopes for the settlement of a contract dispute with the Pepsi-Cola Bottling Company "look pretty bad."

Stutzman said the company, through its attorney, Frederick A. Puderbaugh, yesterday offered a five cents hourly increase for inside workers but that the only concession to drivers was seven paid holidays. The union had asked a 15 cents hourly increase for the first group and a two cents per case boost for drivers.

He said the workers refused the company offer yesterday at 4 p. m. but added another meeting is planned with the company this morning. The union contract expires today and Stutzman said the union is trying to keep the men at work. About 12 men are employed by the company.

Drivers, who are guaranteed $40 a week and average over $50, would receive a flat $5 for each of the paid holidays in addition to commissions of seven cents for each case sold, while inside workers would receive five cents hourly increase and their regular wages, on the same holidays, a company spokesman said.

A settlement, however, is expected in the contract with the Armour and Company branch here, Stutzman said. He added the company offered a 7½ cents hourly increase for the six employes of the plant effective May 15.

The union is asking the same increase but retroactive to November 1, 1946, when a national agreement with meat packers was signed. The present contract does not expire until May 15, he said.

Celanese Contract Discussions Open

The powerful Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, CIO, yesterday formally opened negotiations with the Celanese Corporation of America on a new contract for some 8,600 members of the union employed at the Amcelle plant.

The session opened at 2 p. m. and ended at 5:30 p. m. William Boyd Coleman, president of the union, said the discussion will be resumed this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Both union and company officials described the session as merely preliminary, with the union formally presenting the proposals for an agreement to replace the contract which expires May 19.

The union some time ago stated it intended to ask a "substantial" wage increase in the new contract but it is understood the item was not taken up at yesterday's session.

The union proposals also include requests for a guaranteed annual wage, a company paid retirement pension of $100 a month and the correction of "intra-plant inequities."

Wesley Cook, New York, assistant director of the TWUA rayon division, represented the TWUA in the discussions.

The drive closes officially Saturday when children who take five pounds of tin cans to the Community Ball Park on Wineow Street, will be given a ticket to a special morning show at the Maryland Theatre. Only the first 1,200 children will receive tickets.

Council Approves Hiring Recreation Director For City

By a 4 to 1 vote, with Street Commissioner Myers G. Light dissenting, the Mayor and Council yesterday approved the action of the Cumberland Recreation Board in hiring Charles L. Taylor, Clarksburg, W. Va., as recreation director for the city at an annual salary of $4,500.

Light stated that he is "100 per cent opposed to paying $4,500 to such a man," adding that the city attorney, city engineer and other employes "don't receive anything like that. I am not opposed to recreation but I don't see why it is necessary to go out of town to hire a director at such a high salary."

Commissioner Light's office revealed that a total of $24,840 was appropriated last year for parks ($4,500). Constitution Park ($10,800), and playgrounds ($9,540).

Money was spent as follows: Parks, $4,649.03; playgrounds, $8,651.37, and Constitution Park, $10,058.29. Out of the total of $23,358.69 spent, $20,552.13 went for wages and salaries to about 45 full and part-time employes.

Admitting that the salary is "probably large" when compared to that paid for other jobs, Mayor Thomas S. Post said he favors going ahead with the recreation program. He said it is estimated the director's expenses will be $6,300 to hire a secretary and to provide expense money.

The question of whether Taylor will be hired under contract or be placed under Civil Service remained undecided. City Attorney Charles Z. Heskett, who was not present at yesterday's meeting, said later he believes the director could be employed by contract, due to the technical nature of the work.

In a letter to the council, J. Suter Kegg, board secretary, who attended the meeting, outlined Taylor's qualifications and stated the latter had informed the board that the $4,500 annual salary was the lowest he would accept.

Taylor, a graduate of West Virginia University with bachelor and master degrees in music, has been employed as music teacher at University High School, Morgantown, W. Va.; vocal instructor, Victory High School, Clarksburg; and state music and recreation director of the West Virginia Agriculture Extension Service.

He resigned a position at Ann Arbor, Mich., as district representative of the National Recreation Association in order to accept the Cumberland offer, and expects to assume his new duties May 5.

Ex-GI Allowance Payments Held Up

The local office of the State Unemployment Compensation Division has been notified by the central office in Baltimore that no further benefits will be paid starting today, under the Servicemen's Readjustment Allowance Act until funds are made available, according to Francis A. Kenney, local manager.

Kenney said he was informed that funds are not now available, but that persons who already have filed claims will be paid as soon as funds are made available. He added that persons entitled to benefits should continue to file claims so they can be paid when the money is on hand.

This action has no effect on payments of state benefits, Kenney pointed out.

According to the Associated Press, the Veterans Administration yesterday held up for lack of funds checks due veterans receiving unemployment or educational allowances.

The agency said it expects to be able to mail the money "within a few days" when a pending appropriation bill clears Congress.

While the state pays the unemployment benefits under the Readjustment Allowance Act in Maryland it is reimbursed by the federal government for the money expended.

Garment Company Gets Tax Exemption

The Cumberland Undergarment Company was granted a five-year tax exemption yesterday by the Mayor and Council, on condition that the company gives assurance of continued operations.

Mayor Thomas S. Post and Commissioner Myers G. Light opposed the motion made by Commissioner William V. Keegan and seconded by Commissioner Clifton E. Fuller.

The assessed value of machinery and tools is expected to be in excess of $40,000, although no official figure has been received at the Court House from the State Tax Commission. The company operates in the old General Textile Building on Gay Street, which is assessed at $73,500. The company will continue to pay real estate taxes.

Although Mayor Post brought up the subject of the revised smoke control ordinance which was distributed to council members for study several months ago, Commissioner William J. Edwards' suggestion that decision be delayed pending consideration of the budget was approved. Edwards said the ordinance would require an additional outlay of $15,000 yearly.

The proposed measure calls for the appointment of a smoke abatement engineer along with clerks and other assistants.

As a final action at the meeting, the payroll was approved.

Magistrates Sworn In

Trial Magistrates Oliver H. Bruce, Jr., and Frank A. Perdew were sworn in yesterday for their new two-year terms beginning today.

The oath was administered to Bruce by Deputy Clerk Joseph Boden and to Perdew by Deputy Clerk G. Walter Fisher in the office of the Clerk of Circuit Court.

ALONG THE POTOMAC TO WASHINGTON

By J. GLENN BEALL
(Member of Congress from Maryland Sixth District)

I walked over to the Senate last week and listened to some of the debate on the Bill to provide for assistance to Greece and Turkey. This is a tremendously important piece of legislation and I believe you may be interested in hearing about it.

The President of the United States came to a Joint Session of Congress on March 12 to proclaim his policy. A Bill supporting this policy was introduced in the Senate on March 19, approved by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on April 3 and came up for action before the full Senate April 26. That is comparatively quick action.

When I walked into the Senate Chamber Senator Johnson of Colorado was speaking on his amendment which, if passed, would restrict the proposal to non-military aid. This amendment was defeated —22 yeas to 68 nays. The galleries were crowded with persons interested in this legislation, visitors watching the sights, families and friends of Senators and oldtime Capitol employees watching history in the making. The press and radio galleries were filled to capacity with representatives of the Nation's newspapers and radio networks.

This was a vital matter up for consideration and after just five hours the Senate voted in favor of this Bill—67 to 23. Both of our Maryland Senators voted for it. The Senate had not given such overwhelming support to any controversial measure of American foreign policy since the beginning of World War II. You may recall that the Senate acted with swiftness and with just as conclusive and impressive vote on the repeal of the Arms embargo on Lend-Lease, two measures that shaped our foreign policy before Pearl Harbor.

After the excitement of the vote on Senate Bill 938, I reviewed it again and found that the outstanding provisions provide for, (1) expenditure by July, 1948, of $400,000,000 in aid to Greece and Turkey of which $300,000,000 would be spent on Greece, half for military purposes and half for economic reconstruction; (2) Turkey would get $100,000,000 for military aid; (3) military equipment to be transferred to the armed forces of Greece and Turkey; (4) authority for this country to send "advisory" military and naval missions to operate in the two countries; and (5) a committment by the United States to cease this program at any time the United Nations found it "unnecessary or undesirable."

I think we all want to help these starving people with food and clothing but should we contribute toward building up their military? What interpretation would other countries put on this contribution? I would appreciate your writing me as to your opinion before the bill reaches the House for consideration.

UNDER THE DOME

I appeared before the sub-committee of the House Appropriations Committee and spoke in behalf of the continuation of the Forestry Service. As I told the Committee, it is important to continue this service, especially if the rest of the nation received as much good as Maryland where much has been done to preserve and develop new forests.

The Federal Works Agency this week approved the application of the State Superintendent of Schools who requested the veterans education facilities be extended to the Frostburg State Teachers College. This will include laboratory facilities and the necessary equipment. I don't believe we can do too much to encourage young students who want to become teachers. I am keeping an interested eye on the various counties in my district with relation to numerous programs for a raise in pay standards for school teachers.

I requested the Post Office Department to inspect the Myersville rural service situation. They complied with this request. Mr. Reis, the Inspector, took several members of the County Commissioners and the Roads Engineer over the entire route. After receiving the report of Inspector Reis, I have asked the Post Office to add another carrier to this route in order that all of the persons in that area will be served. It is perfectly clear that the present carriers now delivering mail on this route cannot take on any more mileage.

Attending an executive session of the Public Works Committee, we discussed a bill which will provide for the construction of a new Court House for the District of Columbia. This legislation was reported out favorably.

I was pleased to talk with several delegations during the week concerning the labor legislation now before the Senate. You will recall that the House passed the Labor-Management Act of 1947. This bill is the most comprehensive labor reform measure ever considered or approved by any legislative body in the Nation's history. I told you the main points of this legislation last week but I would be glad to mail you this bill or a resume of the provisions included. I would also be happy to discuss it with you personally.

Bottling Workers Refuse Wage Offer

Settlement Predicted With Armour Company

C. E. Stutzman, business agent for Local 453, Teamsters Union, said last night hopes for the settlement of a contract dispute with the Pepsi-Cola Bottling Company "look pretty bad."

Stutzman said the company, through its attorney, Frederick A. Puderbaugh, yesterday offered a five cents hourly increase for inside workers but that the only concession to drivers was seven paid holidays. The union had asked a 15 cents hourly increase for the first group and a two cents per case boost for drivers.

He said the workers refused the company offer yesterday at 4 p. m. but added another meeting is planned with the company this morning. The union contract expires today and Stutzman said the union is trying to keep the men at work. About 12 men are employed by the company.

Drivers, who are guaranteed $40 a week and average over $50, would receive a flat $5 for each of the paid holidays in addition to commissions of seven cents for each case sold, while inside workers would receive five cents hourly increase and their regular wages on the same holidays, a company spokesman said.

A settlement, however, is expected in the contract with the Armour and Company branch here, Stutzman said. He added the company offered a 7½ cents hourly increase for the six employes of the plant effective May 15.

The union is asking the same increase but retroactive to November 1, 1946, when a national agreement with meat packers was signed. The present contract does not expire until May 15, he said.

Celanese Contract Discussions Open

The powerful Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, CIO, yesterday formally opened negotiations with the Celanese Corporation of America on a new contract for some 8,600 members of the union employed at the Amcelle plant.

The session opened at 2 p. m. and ended at 5:30 p. m. William Boyd Coleman, president of the union, said the discussion will be resumed this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Both union and company officials described the session as merely preliminary, with the union formally presenting the proposals for an agreement to replace the contract which expires May 19.

The union some time ago stated it intended to ask a "substantial" wage increase in the new contract but it is understood the item was not taken up at yesterday's session.

The union proposals also include requests for a guaranteed annual wage, a company paid retirement pension of $100 a month and the correction of "intra-plant inequities."

Wesley Cook, New York, assistant director of the TWUA rayon division, represented the TWUA in the discussions.

New Chemicals Are Developed By Celanese

The developments which have led to these steps are the outgrowth of an intensive program of research in the field of petroleum chemistry in which the company began pioneering 15 years ago.

Misrepresentation

"Recently our office has received an increasing number of reports from individuals who complain that they have been solicited for prepaid hospital care by persons misrepresenting themselves as Blue Cross representatives," J. D. Colman, Executive Director of Maryland Hospital Service, Inc., 15 East Fayette Street, warned yesterday.

Membership in Maryland's only approved non-profit hospital care plan is open only to employees of organizations and their families by enrollment in groups through their employer, it was pointed out. There is no door-to-door solicitation of individuals because such persons would not be eligible for membership, Mr. Colman added.

An electric towing-car that speeds the takeoff of transport planes has been invented.

Lepley Is Taken To Spring Grove

County officers have taken Eugene Lepley, young Cumberland veteran, accused of assault with intent to kill, to Spring Grove Hospital.

Lepley was arrested March 25, after holding four city police officers at bay with pistols, and since being confined to the county jail has created a number of disturbances. When arraigned in Circuit Court during the present term, judges ordered him sent to the state hospital for mental treatment, after the county physician, Dr. Arthur F. Jones said "he is mentally sick."

Peter Loncarevich, Jr., 28, Bedford Street, who entered a guilty plea to a charge of false pretenses, will be taken this week to the Maryland House of Correction to serve one year.

Tests conducted by the federal government revealed that a house completely insulated with mineral wool reduced the fuel bill by 45 percent.

The plant in which the new products are made is located near Bishop, Texas, where natural gas is abundant. The production operation consists essentially of taking basic hydrocarbon gases and rearranging the molecules to produce an almost limitless number of chemical compounds.

Two Men Enlist

Two men enlisted in the Army yesterday morning at the local recruiting station. They are Jack A. Hamilton, 4 Blocher Street, Ridgeley, who signed for three years with the Air Forces, and Vernon Blair Duckworth, 400 Decatur Street, who also signed for three years with the AAF.

Two Drivers Forfeit Bond, Another Fined

Two of three motorists arrested on charges of passing a school bus while passengers were being discharged forfeited bond of $6.45 in Trial Magistrates Court yesterday and the third was fined $5.75 after pleading guilty.

John R. Wineland, Long, paid $5.75. He was arrested at LaVale Tuesday. Mabel McAlister, Van Dyke, Mich., and Claude E. Yoder, Meyersdale, Pa. forfeited bond of $6.45. The arrests were made in Narrows Park and LaVale by Trooper Robert D. Henline.

Misrepresentation

"Recently our office has received an increasing number of reports from individuals who complain that they have been solicited for prepaid hospital care by persons misrepresenting themselves as Blue Cross representatives," J. D. Colman, Executive Director of Maryland Hospital Service, Inc., 15 East Fayette Street, warned yesterday.

Membership in Maryland's only approved non-profit hospital care plan is open only to employees of organizations and their families by enrollment in groups through their employer, it was pointed out. There is no door-to-door solicitation of individuals because such persons would not be eligible for membership, Mr. Colman added.

An electric towing-car that speeds the takeoff of transport planes has been invented.

Lepley Is Taken To Spring Grove

County officers have taken Eugene Lepley, young Cumberland veteran, accused of assault with intent to kill, to Spring Grove Hospital.

Lepley was arrested March 25, after holding four city police officers at bay with pistols, and since being confined to the county jail has created a number of disturbances. When arraigned in Circuit Court during the present term, judges ordered him sent to the state hospital for mental treatment, after the county physician, Dr. Arthur F. Jones said "he is mentally sick."

Peter Loncarevich, Jr., 28, Bedford Street, who entered a guilty plea to a charge of false pretenses, will be taken this week to the Maryland House of Correction to serve one year.

Tests conducted by the federal government revealed that a house completely insulated with mineral wool reduced the fuel bill by 45 percent.

AP Newsfeatures

KANSAS CITY, Kas.—A 33-year-old former Army chaplain has become the modern version of the old-time circuit rider, traveling a round trip of 954 miles every weekend to preach to his congregation.

Every week from Tuesday through Friday, the Rev. E. V. Johnson attends classes at the Central Baptist Theological Seminary here. Then on Friday he hops a train for his pastorate at Locust Grove, Tex.

His train leaves Kansas City at 9 p. m. Friday night, and 12 hours later reaches Canadian, Tex., where his wife and two children, Sharon, 8, and Mary Vesta, 4, are waiting to take him the 16 miles to Locust Grove by car. On Monday he catches a train back in time for the opening of class Tuesday morning.

Locust Grove is a small community where church services are held in a school house but the young minister is spearheading a movement to build a church.

A railroad pass is a big lift for Mr. Johnson's weekly trip. Train connections prompted him to attend the seminary, where he is a student under the GI Bill of Rights.

Before he spent 29 months in Italy, Africa, Corsica and Trinidad as chaplain he was pastor at the Boswell, Okla., First Baptist church and attended a Southwestern Baptist Seminary at Fort Worth, Tex.

The raising of pullets and turkeys tazes six months or more.

Russians Study New Meteorite

LONDON (AP) — A Soviet scientific expedition headed by Vasilyi Fessenkov, professor of Astrophysics at Moscow University and a member of the Academy of Sciences, has arrived in Vladivostok to examine the large meteorite which fell on Feb. 12 in the Taiga wilderness, 300 miles from Vladivostok and 50 miles from the nearest railway line.

A Tass report says that judging by the splinters, this meteorite consists mainly of iron and weighs about 1,000 tons. The bulk of the meteorite pierced the soil to a depth of more than 30 feet and several craters were formed at the spot, the largest of which is 98 feet in diameter.

One of the splinters which was brought to the Academy of Sciences in Moscow, contains cobalt and nickel as well as iron and has magnetic properties.

One person in 1000 in the United States is an albino, according to estimates of hereditary experts.

Advice To The Lovelorn

Matrimonial Slavery Is Of Various Kinds; This Case Is Useless

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 17, and a junior in high school. I'm in love with a veteran who is 20, and who is a senior in the same school. I'm quite sure, though, he is not in love with me.

I see him every day in school, and not only that, we have a few classes together in which sometimes I just sit and daydream over him. For one month, I have tried to forget him, but just can't. I could have dates with other fellows but I can't get my mind off this veteran. Sometimes I go three and four days without eating, and there isn't hardly a night that I don't dream about him. Worst of all, my mother and father do not like him too well.

My problem is that I need some good advice on what to do.

"SENTIMENTALIST"

Dear "Sentimentalist:"

I think you have signed a very appropriate name to your letter. Do you know the dictionary definition of a sentimentalist? It is one who has "an undue regard for sentiment." Don't you think that just fits your case?

Any girl who gets as emotional as all this over a man who has never given her a second glance is certainly putting "undue" stress on romance, all right. In other words, she's "in love with love," and not with the man at all. She enjoys feeding her imagination on sugary scenes she dreams up involving this man and herself, and would rather waste her time on nonsense like that, which leads her nowhere, than do the things normal girls of her age like to do.

You say you need some good advice, so here it is: Snap out of it and come down to earth!

Take Your Time, Connie

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 16 years of age and very much in love with a boy 21, who has told me he also loves me very much. I have met his parents and they seem to like me very much and I think they are grand. His mother told me she was glad he had met someone like me, because shortly after he got out of service, he was going with a crowd that had a very bad influence on him. But since he has been dating me, she says he is the boy he used to be again.

We would like very much to get married, but we have decided to wait until I get out of school and he has a steady job. I live with my uncle and aunt, who are very good to me. They have met "my young man," as they call him, and think very well of him.

Do you think I am right in waiting for awhile before getting married, or do you think it is a mere infatuation on my part?

"UNDECIDED CONNIE"

Dear Connie:

I think you are doing exactly right in deciding to finish school and give your "young man" a chance to get settled in a good job. Those two things are important, and you will never be sorry if you wait to accomplish them before getting married.

Also, by waiting, you will have plenty of time to find out whether your present feeling is, as you put it, "a mere infatuation," or the real thing. If you're merely infatuated, it will wear off in a comparatively short while; if it's something sounder, it will grow and deepen as time goes on and you get to know each other better.

Stock Market Closes Out Losing Month With Slow-Moving Rally

NEW YORK, April 30 (AP)—The stock market closed out a losing month today with a slow-moving rally that pushed selected leaders one to around three points higher.

Steels, backed by good first quarter earnings and new wage settlements, along with motors and some industrial "blue chips," were principal beneficieries in the first rising session of the week. The ticker tape idled frequently, except for flurries of demand at the opening and again in early afternoon. Total transfers dwindled to 780,000 shares.

United States Steel, which reported earnings of $3.78 a share for the first quarter, closed 1⅝ higher at 70¼. Others with prominent gains included General Motors at 57⅞, up 1⅝; du Pont at 180, ahead 3½; Montgomery Ward at 53½, up 2¼, and Monsanto Chemical at 54¾, up two. Texas Pacific Land Trust was lifted fractionally. Also ahead were Bethlehem, Chrysler, American Smelting, General Electric, American Woolen, American Tobacco "B" Loew's, Paramount and Eastman Kodak.

Peoria and Eastern lost 5⅜ to close at a new low of eight. Among other losers were Pacific Western Oil, duplicating Tuesday's 2½ point decline, and Northwest Airlines.

Advances in the Curb were registered by Cities Service, Fansteel, American Potash and Chemical, Middle West Corporation and Technicolor. Turnover here was 260,000 shares, equalling Tuesday's volume.

Railroad issues pulled decisively ahead of a generally improved bond market after hitting a new average low for the year Tuesday.

The market responded to comparatively modest demand, with sales of $3,830,000 about even with yesterday's $3,790,000.

United States governments in the over-the-counter market were down 1-32 to 2-32 in light dealings.

SHOULD SHE HAVE A BABY?

She doesn't want a baby.

Reason 1—She has been married six years but likes her career—hates to give it up.

Maybe she'd get fat, lose her shape.

Here's her letter—judge for yourself.

"Dear Elise:

"I read your column and I enjoy it very much. Please give me your view on my problem. I am sure it will help others also as they may have the same problem.

"I am an only child, married six years to a wonderful man, but we have no children because I am afraid to have them. I am a selfish woman who likes her job. Most of all I fear childbirth, the pain, and my growing fat. My friends say I'll be sorry in later years if I don't have them. It seems I want my cake and eat it also.

"I do not want to be selfish and if I do have children I want to be a good mother and one thing I will do is never shelter them from life. You are a woman of the world who suffered much, and a mother who lost her son. I know you will give me your advice in your column. Please don't fail me.

"MRS. K. M."

Yes, I'm a woman of the world. I have borne and lost my only child. And here's what I think about motherhood.

I have that which we call a career. I have a home, too, which I love. I have dear friends. But none of them matter in comparsion with that boy who is gone and I'm telling you that you'll not only be sorry but you'll be desolate all the days of your life if you pass up the chance of motherhood.

Motherhood is the greatest thing that can happen to any woman. We are not all good mothers nor kind mothers nor wise mothers. But there is nothing—nothing—which can compensate a woman for the joy and pride of bearing and rearing a child. And there is nothing—nothing—which can compensate for that child's loss—no career, no honor, no joy

My boy would have been 41 years old today. I would give every joy that life has bequeathed to me to hold him for just one minute in my arms. The keenest pain I know is the memory of the love we lost.

We were very poor. Often we did not have enough to eat. We knew sharp poverty and hardship, but we never knew a moment that was not purest happiness. And I ask no greater joy than to find him sometime, somewhere.

Have a baby?

You're missing the greatest joy on earth if you don't.

Tri-Towns Group To Share Cost Of FM Police Radio

Station Will Be Located In Keyser

By GEORGE W. DADDYSMAN

WESTERNPORT, April 30—Mayor J. C. Freeland, Keyser, W. Va.; Mayor J. Milton McIntyre, Westernport, and Mayor Harold Fredlock, Piedmont, W. Va., and a committee of the Westernport and Luke Lions Club and the Keyser Lions Club will work out an agreement for the three towns to share equally in the additional expense in operating the master station at Keyser when the two-way FM communicating system for cruiser police cars for Westernport and Piedmont is installed in the near future. Keyser operates a 24-hour service now at their police station for their radio equipment.

This decision was made at a meeting held last night at the Westernport Council Chamber of representatives of the Westernport and Luke Lions Club; Frank Rice, of the Keyser Lions Club, Claude Martin, chief of police of Keyser; R. A. Pulliam, Keyser business man, and George Freeland, Romney, radio engineer of the West Virginia State Police. Robert Maybury presided.

The local Lions Club sponsored a drive for the Tri-Towns share in a house-to-house campaign last summer in which $2,200 was donated. The Keyser Lions Club is sponsoring Keyser's share.

Trooper A. M. Sploch of the Maryland State Police stated it will take an alert man to operate the master radio station. Burza Hanlin, chief of police of Westernport, and Earl Hawk, assistant chief, also attended the meeting.

George Freeland said it would take about 30 days to obtain the FM license after application with the Federal Communications Commission. Maryland and West Virginia State Police cruiser cars will be equipped for this frequency. This equipment will enable the officers to contact one another as well as to call the master station.

It was decided at a meeting of the general committee, held last night at the home of the Piedmont post, to issue books for the Tri-Towns veterans for those three days, entitling them to a ticket to each of the ball games and to the dances and $1 in trade in 5 and 10-cent coupons to be spent any place in the Tri-Towns and redeemable at the Legion Home.

Marty Flynn's Society Ramblers orchestra of Cumberland will play for the dance at the Piedmont High School Friday, July 4, and at Bruce High School, Westernport, Saturday, July 5. A dance will also be held for the colored veterans at Howard High School, Piedmont, on those nights.

Paw Paw Man Is Named To Apple Commission

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., April 30 (AP) — Malcolm M. Brown, local grower and distributor, was elected chairman of the West Virginia Apple Commission for a four-year term at its organization meeting today.

The seven-man commission was authorized by the 1947 Legislature to spend a one-cent per bushel commercial apple tax on research and promotional work.

Brown said it would work closely with the Virginia commission and that it was hoped Maryland and Pennsylvania would set up such commissions so there would be a four-state organization.

Other officers were: Vice-chairman, Henry W. Miller, Jr., Paw Paw; and secretary, Carroll R. Miller, Martinsburg, who as secretary of the West Virginia Horticulture Society sponsored the measure creating the commission.

Bean growers have been breeding the string out of string beans. Now they are known as snap beans.

Will Appoint Police

The Capon Valley Volunteer Fire Company will appoint special fire and traffic police in Wardensville to direct traffic on the streets and at fires.

Officials of the volunteer group pointed out that spectators and well meaning, but untrained, citizens were hampering the efficiency of the firemen by getting in the way with their cars when the siren sounded. They are asking the public to keep the streets clear when the siren sounds, to enable the firemen to reach the station for their uniforms.

Howard Hawkins, an officer of the volunteer group, reported that the town council of Wardensville passed ordinances recommended by the company to eliminate fire hazards in the town.

The associate membership drive by the firemen will begin on May 1 with W. D. Orndorff, Roy Whitmire and M. G. Beall as the committee in charge.

The firemen extinguished a grass fire at the farm of Raymond Heishman, three and a half miles north of Wardensville last Wednesday. No damage was done.

The firemen donated $5 to the American Cancer Society in the current drive for funds.

Free schools on the proper methods of sheering sheep and the preparation of the fleece for market will be held in Hardy county as well as the adjoining counties within the next two weeks, according to the announcement of County Agent S. L. Dodd. The exact date has not been set for Hardy county but will be announced later.

Tri-Towns Group To Share Cost Of FM Police Radio

Station Will Be Located In Keyser

WESTERNPORT, April 30—Mayor J. C. Freeland, Keyser, W. Va.; Mayor J. Milton McIntyre, Westernport, and Mayor Harold Fredlock, Piedmont, W. Va., and a committee of the Westernport and Luke Lions Club and the Keyser Lions Club will work out an agreement for the three towns to share equally in the additional expense in operating the master station at Keyser when the two-way FM communicating system for cruiser police cars for Westernport and Piedmont is installed in the near future. Keyser operates a 24-hour service now at their police station for their radio equipment.

This decision was made at a meeting held last night at the Westernport Council Chamber of representatives of the Westernport and Luke Lions Club; Frank Rice, of the Keyser Lions Club, Claude Martin, chief of police of Keyser; R. A. Pulliam, Keyser business man, and George Freeland, Romney, radio engineer of the West Virginia State Police. Robert Maybury presided.

The local Lions Club sponsored a drive for the Tri-Towns share in a house-to-house campaign last summer in which $2,200 was donated. The Keyser Lions Club is sponsoring Keyser's share.

Trooper A. M. Spioch of the Maryland State Police stated it will take an alert man to operate the master radio station. Burza Hanlin, chief of police of Westernport, and Earl Hawk, assistant chief, also attended the meeting.

George Freeland said it would take about 30 days to obtain the FM license after application with the Federal Communications Commission. Maryland and West Virginia State Police cruiser cars will be equipped for this frequency. This equipment will enable the officers to contact one another as well as to call the master station.

A merry-go-round and ferris wheel have been secured for the homecoming celebration of World War II veterans of the Tri-Towns July 4-6, sponsored by Kelly-Mansfield Post No. 52, Piedmont, and Victory Post No. 155, Westernport, American Legion.

It was decided at a meeting of the general committee, held last night at the home of the Piedmont post, to issue books for the Tri-Towns veterans for those three days, entitling them to a ticket to each of the ball games and to the dances and $1 in trade in 5 and 10-cent coupons to be spent any place in the Tri-Towns and redeemable at the Legion Home.

Marty Flynn's Society Ramblers orchestra of Cumberland will play for the dance at the Piedmont High School Friday, July 4, and at Bruce High School, Westernport, Saturday, July 5. A dance will also be held for the colored veterans at Howard High School, Piedmont, on those nights.

All persons in the Tri-Towns who can accommodate visitors on these dates are requested to contact T. J. Martin, housing chairman, by calling American Legion Home, Piedmont 3091.

Paw Paw Man Is Named To Apple Commission

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., April 30 (AP) — Malcolm M. Brown, local grower and distributor, was elected chairman of the West Virginia Apple Commission for a four-year term at its organization meeting today.

The seven-man commission was authorized by the 1947 Legislature to spend a one-cent per bushel commercial apple tax on research and promotional work.

Brown said it would work closely with the Virginia commission and that it was hoped Maryland and Pennsylvania would set up such commissions so there would be a four-state organization.

Other officers were: Vice-chairman, Henry W. Miller, Jr., Paw Paw; and secretary, Carroll R. Miller, Martinsburg, who as secretary of the West Virginia Horticulture Society sponsored the measure creating the commission.

Bean growers have been breeding the string out of string beans. Now they are known as snap beans.

Will Appoint Police

The Capon Valley Volunteer Fire Company will appoint special fire and traffic police in Wardensville to direct traffic on the streets and at fires.

Officials of the volunteer group pointed out that spectators and well meaning, but untrained, citizens were hampering the efficiency of the firemen by getting in the way with their cars when the siren sounded. They are asking the public to keep the streets clear when the siren sounds, to enable the firemen to reach the station for their uniforms.

Howard Hawkins, an officer of the volunteer group, reported that the town council of Wardensville passed ordinances recommended by the company to eliminate fire hazards in the town.

The associate membership drive by the firemen will begin on May 1 with W. D. Orndorff, Roy Whitmire and M. G. Beall as the committee in charge.

The firemen extinguished a grass fire at the farm of Raymond Heishman, three and a half miles north of Wardensville last Wednesday. No damage was done.

The firemen donated $5 to the American Cancer Society in the current drive for funds.

Killing Frost

The South Branch Valley was hit by killing frost Sunday and Monday nights which destroyed tomato plants that had been set out and caused minor damages to gardens. Some of the fruit trees were damaged but so far the apple orchards survived the freeze.

To Conduct School

Free schools on the proper methods of sheering sheep and the preparation of the fleece for market will be held in Hardy county as well as the adjoining counties within the next two weeks, according to the announcement of County Agent S. L. Dodd. The exact date has not been set for Hardy county but will be announced later.

E. A. Warner, Livestock Specialist, Chicago, will furnish the equipment and act as instructor at the shearing school. County Agent Dodd stated that millions of dollars are lost annually by sheepmen because of improper shearing and improper handling of the fleeces.

Leases Old Mill

The Rocco Feed Company, Harrisonburg, Va., has leased the old Hardy County Milling Company mill from C. B. Hiett and will start operations as a feed mill, contract chicken and turkey supplier and store.

Workmen are remodeling the old mill and new machinery is being installed. A new hammer mill will be installed in the basement and the feed mixers on the upper floors. In addition to leasing the mill the Rocco Company has leased Sions warehouse at the B. & O. station where Baker Feed and Farm Supply is now located.

The new business will be in operation within the next few weeks.

Radio in Review

By JOHN CROSBY

Babe Ruth Day

Sunday was Babe Ruth Day at ball parks all over the land, particularly at Yankee Stadium where 58,000 persons paid reverence to the legendary hero of American baseball. The occasion in the true American tradition was damp with genuine and unabashed sentiment, which makes it appropriate to discuss a recent dramatization of the Babe's life on the "Reader's Digest" program.

The Bambino's life story is archtypical of what goes into the Digest program (CBS 10 p. m. EST Thursdays) which celebrates the stories and articles in that immensely successful magazine. The moment a sportswriter or anyone else starts writing about Babe Ruth his eyes eyes start getting moist at the outset and this radio drama was no exception.

Babe Ruth

It opened with the famous battle cry of the Japanese "Down with Babe Ruth," an epithet comparable to our own soldiers cussing out the Japanese emperor. The Babe's youth in Baltimore, his pitching career and the decision to move him to the outfield to lengthen his playing career were dwelt on only briefly.

The script actually paid only lip service to the Babe's distinctive ability to hit baseballs a long distance and concentrated properly on the more colorful anecdotes about him, of which there are enough to stock a dozen magazine articles. It paused lengthily and lovingly on Ruth's misdeeds which are of the gentle variety that both the "Reader's Digest" and its readers look upon fondly.

Ruth honored training rules mainly in the breach. He liked to stay up late and he ate enough to nourish a whole baseball team. When Miller Huggins threatened to suspend him, he replied brokenly—at least in the script—"I didn't have a thing till I was 18 years old—not a bite, not a pair of shoes. Now it's bustin' out all over."

The story was told of the time Ruth was introduced at a banquet by Mayor Jimmy Walker with the words: "He's not only a great athlete but a great fool. He's letting his fans down by running around." And Ruth's reply: "I give you my word I'll never let the kids down again."

There was a brief scene showing Ruth in the hospital deathly sick from indigestion when hosts of small boys gathered to pray for his recovery. And the story wouldn't be complete without a mention of Ruth's visit to a sick child in a hospital when he promised he'd hit the boy a home run the next day—and did.

All this, of course, is shamelessly sentimental and wouldn't be tolerated in fiction. In Ruth's case it's pardonable because it all happened. The Babe did promise a sick child to hit a home run and hit it, he was publicly rebuked by Mayor Walker, and he almost certainly has been prayed for more than anyone since Lindbergh flew the ocean.

"The Babe," said the narrator indulgently, "was just a big kid." He might have added that the American public is a bunch of big kids too. We don't select our heroes; we create them and they are a reflection of ourselves.

"Reader's Digest" is that sort of program anyway. Generally, it is shamelessly sentimental in the style of the magazine and much of it is hard to take. Some of the stories are dramatized so intensely you could almost harness the emotion and run a water mill with it. A good many of the stories are comedies. The only example I have on hand is one in which Miss Constance Bennett loaned her shrill tenor to a turgid and domestic affair, which proved conclusively that a sick husband is an awful nuisance to have around the house all day. That small point is, I hope, settled for all time now.

We Got to the Fish Fry After All

That community fish fry was sure a great success. There were plenty of appetizing extras, and Will Dudley did a right wonderful job of frying the fish—soft and flaky inside—brown and crisp around the edges.

But we didn't get to go. The missus was tired after working in the yard, and we just didn't want to leave her.

Then how did we know the fish was so good? Because the folks didn't forget us. They sent Skippy Henderson over with two steaming covered plates of fish, and a pitcher of cool, sparkling beer. And we finished them off in front of our own fire.

From where I sit, that's one of the things that makes our town so nice a place to live in: a spirit of share and share alike. That plate of fish and glass of beer weren't just great eating, they were symbols of the thoughtfulness that makes for better living!

Babe Ruth Day

Sunday was Babe Ruth Day at ball parks all over the land, particularly at Yankee Stadium where 58,000 persons paid reverence to the legendary hero of American baseball. The occasion in the true American tradition was damp with genuine and unabashed sentiment, which makes it appropriate to discuss a recent dramatization of the Babe's life on the "Reader's Digest" program.

The Bambino's life story is archtypical of what goes into the Digest program (CBS 10 p. m. EST Thursdays) which celebrates the stories and articles in that immensely successful magazine. The moment a sportswriter or anyone else starts writing about Babe Ruth his eyes eyes start getting moist at the outset and this radio drama was no exception.

Babe Ruth

It opened with the famous battle cry of the Japanese "Down with Babe Ruth," an epithet comparable to our own soldiers cussing out the Japanese emperor. The Babe's youth in Baltimore, his pitching career and the decision to move him to the outfield to lengthen his playing career were dwelt on only briefly.

The script actually paid only lip service to the Babe's distinctive ability to hit baseballs a long distance and concentrated properly on the more colorful anecdotes about him, of which there are enough to stock a dozen magazine articles. It paused lengthily and lovingly on Ruth's misdeeds which are of the gentle variety that both the "Reader's Digest" and its readers look upon fondly.

Ruth honored training rules mainly in the breach. He liked to stay up late and he ate enough to nourish a whole baseball team. When Miller Huggins threatened to suspend him, he replied brokenly—at least in the script—"I didn't have a thing till I was 18 years old—not a bite, not a pair of shoes. Now it's bustin' out all over."

The story was told of the time Ruth was introduced at a banquet by Mayor Jimmy Walker with the words: "He's not only a great athlete but a great fool. He's letting his fans down by running around." And Ruth's reply: "I give you my word I'll never let the kids down again."

There was a brief scene showing Ruth in the hospital deathly sick from indigestion when hosts of small boys gathered to pray for his recovery. And the story wouldn't be complete without a mention of Ruth's visit to a sick child in a hospital when he promised he'd hit the boy a home run the next day—and did.

All this, of course, is shamelessly sentimental and wouldn't be tolerated in fiction. In Ruth's case it's pardonable because it all happened. The Babe did promise a sick child to hit a home run and hit it, he was publicly rebuked by Mayor Walker, and he almost certainly has been prayed for more than anyone since Lindbergh flew the ocean.

"The Babe," said the narrator indulgently, "was just a big kid." He might have added that the American public is a bunch of big kids too. We don't select our heroes; we create them and they are a reflection of ourselves.

"Reader's Digest" is that sort of program anyway. Generally, it is shamelessly sentimental in the style of the magazine and much of it is hard to take. Some of the stories are dramatized so intensely you could almost harness the emotion and run a water mill with it. A good many of the stories are comedies. The only example I have on hand is one in which Miss Constance Bennett loaned her shrill tenor to a turgid and domestic affair, which proved conclusively that a sick husband is an awful nuisance to have around the house all day. That small point is, I hope, settled for all time now.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

We Got to the Fish Fry After All

That community fish fry was sure a great success. There were plenty of appetizing extras, and Will Dudley did a right wonderful job of frying the fish—soft and flaky inside—brown and crisp around the edges.

But we didn't get to go. The missus was tired after working in the yard, and we just didn't want to leave her.

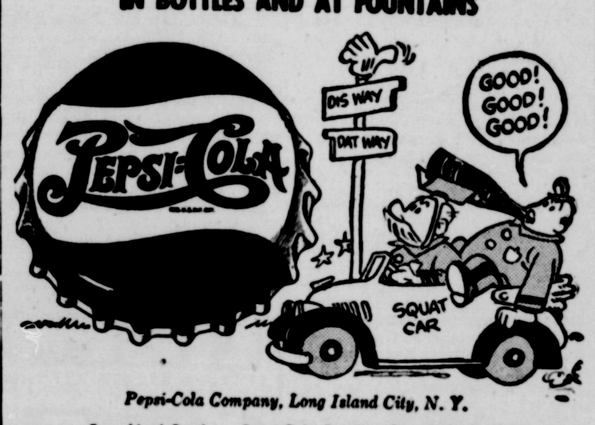

Then how did we know the fish was so good? Because the folks didn't forget us. They sent Skippy Henderson over with two steaming covered plates of fish, and a pitcher of cool, sparkling beer. And we finished them off in front of our own fire.

From where I sit, that's one of the things that makes our town so nice a place to live in: a spirit of share and share alike. That plate of fish and glass of beer weren't just great eating, they were symbols of the thoughtfulness that makes for better living!

Guns Carry A Load In Canyon Home

MISSOULA, Mont., (AP)—All weapons are kept loaded at the Cooper residence in Pattee Canyon about four miles south of here. Recently when a mountain lion, weighing 150 pounds, moved in on the house Cooper had to pick up and try three rifles before he found one loaded. With that one he killed the big predator twenty feet from the front door.

KEEPING UP WITH

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, April 30—Crooner Andy Russell, through his attorney, Charles Katz, is asking for a cancellation of his contract with Sam Stiefel, who is also Mickey Rooney's business associate and manager.

"What will you do?" I asked the voluable Stiefel.

"I'll give Russell his freedom," said Sam, who always acts so pained when these little matters concerning his clients come up for discussion, "Providing he pays me the $60,000 he owes me."

Andy Russell

A fabulous character, this Sam, who only came to Hollywood three years ago, and in that time took over the Mickey Rooney business, lock, stock and barrel.

His associate, Morton Brisken, went to Birmingham when the papers were signed by Betty Jane agreeing to a divorce and a settlement of $15,000 a year. This, Mrs. Rooney will contest in court, with Judge Leonard Wilson as her attorney.

It was curious about Stiefel and in answer to my inquiry he told me He came from Philadelphia and had money when he arrived in our town.

A new twist on the famous old play "If I Had a Million", which has been made a number of times for the screen, will bring it right back up to date. Paramount is remaking it with Alan Ladd and Veronica Lake, after she comes back from Europe.

Remember the original version and the famous scene in which Charles Laughton gave the first "raspberry" ever heard on a sound track? I wonder if Paramount will keep in that famous bit of insolence, for I hear the new version will be taken from an entirely different angle.

Here's the new story: It will deal with a very, very rich young man who almost dies in the South Pacific. Two of his buddies give him blood transfusions and save his life and to each of them he hands over a million dollars.

One of Norma Shearer's close friends is authority for the news that she and her husband, Marty Arrouge, and the two Thalberg children, plan to spend most of next year in Switzerland.

That's believable because Norma has been in Sun Valley since December and loves the cold weather and of course Marty, who was a ski teacher, is on his home ground there.

In Switzerland they will have all the advantages of skiing, plus some very good schools for Irving Thalberg Jr., and Katherine. When Mrs. William Thalberg was alive, Norma would never take the children away for any length of time because Henrietta loved to see her grandchildren. But now that she is gone, there is no reason why Norma shouldn't enjoy a season in St. Moritz where Marty could ski to his heart's content.

How does this affect Norma's Enterprise contract? David Lewis has a story idea for her.

The brief but stormy marriage of Seline Walters, former Powers model, and Dr. Alfred G. Huenergardt, Beverly Hills surgeon, has taken a turn for the better, and now they have reconciled she says.

Seline married the doctor February 10, 1946. Six months later, she divorced him and stated in court that the doctor had put her out of his home on a rainy night and the only clothes she had was the negligee she was wearing. She also stated he struck her.

Well, apparently, it wasn't as bad as Seline thought when she ranted in court against him. The doctor followed her to New York and now she's back, and they're making a new start.

Chatter in Hollywood: I think it's probably safe to say that before many days, you'll hear the news that Dorothy Patrick (Mrs. Jerome Kern in "Till the Clouds Roll By") has matrimonial plans.

When Dorothy was in New Orleans not long ago, she met Richard O'Day, a young New Orleans attorney. Now she's back in the southern city and she admits her reason for returning there is to see O'Day.

When a gal flies that far, you know it's plenty serious and this, I believe, is. Dorothy says she likes O'Day fine.

Laurence Olivier has cabled Byron Haskin asking for an option on "The Sea Witch", which Haskins owns.

Olivier says he will be in Hollywood September 7. Well, I'll believe it when I see it. He was due in February, then in April — and he isn't here yet.

Anyway, the story deals with a tough sea captain who is a regular tyrant on his ship, but the devil with the ladies when he hits port. The background is early American, and the author is Alexander Laing.

Whether or not Olivier makes this is one of those $64 questions which surround all of Larry's doings.

There's a perfectly lovely story that is so characteristic of Joseph M. Schenk, I have to tell it. He's been a very close friend of Irving Berlin and the Berlin family for a long time. Irving was at his wits end because he wanted to come to Hollywood for the summer and just couldn't find a house.

He finally found one at the beach that belonged to the Orsatti boys, Frank and Vic. But they wouldn't rent it. Irving told Joe about it. So what does Joe do but go out and buy the house and turn it over to the Berlins.

Joe returns from Florida tomorrow after three months absence.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Mickey Rooney and Beverly Tyler are now thatta way. Where is Tom Drake? Well, that is cold, cold, cold.

Ann Sheridan and Steve Hannagan have been visiting in Hobe Sound, near Palm Beach. Their only appearance in public was with the Gene Tunneys. They deny the rumor they were wed last week.

Valerie Hobson, British star, visits Hollywood in June. She'll be the house guest of the Rex Harrisons. Her last picture, "Great Expectations", is getting a big play.

Mrs. N. Peter Rathvon had five birthday cakes at the birthday party she gave in honor of her husband. Among those who celebrated their natal day were Sir Charles Mendl and William Pereira. Mrs. Rathvon left Monday for New York and Peter joins her today. She is to act as hostess at a special function in New York, which will be announced later.

Hank Fonda, who sat at the same table with me, says, "John Ford's picture, 'The Fugitive', is an anti-Red epic and denounces communism."

Gregory Peck, who just arrived from New York, and Mrs. Peck were also guests and I talked with Frances Marion, who is very pleased about her son Fred Thomson Jr.'s engagement to Joan Lindley. Ginny Simms, Edgar Bergen and his pretty Frances, Richard Ney, and the Hoagy Marmichaels were all on hand for the charming affair.

Cedric Gibbons and his pretty Hazel were on the maiden trip of the DC-6 when it took off for Hawaii Monday. They are meeting the John Marquards there.

Claude Auzello, managing director of the Paris Ritz spent the weekend in Hollywood with Marie and Sam Marx. They went with the Marxes to the reception Doris Kenyon and her very nice husband Bronislau Mlynarski gave Sunday. He is the brother of Mrs. Artur Rubenstein. Gloria Swanson, Atwater Kent and many others called during the afternoon to congratulate the happy pair.

Note to studios: Before "Magnificent Yankee" closes Saturday at the Biltmore, took a look at Frank Hanley, handsome Notre Dame professor who took a leave of absence from his teaching to go on the stage. That's all today.

Guns Carry A Load In Canyon Home

MISSOULA, Mont., (AP)—All weapons are kept loaded at the Cooper residence in Pattee Canyon about four miles south of here. Recently when a mountain lion, weighing 150 pounds, moved in on the house Cooper had to pick up and try three rifles before he found one loaded. With that one he killed the big predator twenty feet from the front door.

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, April 30—Crooner Andy Russell, through his attorney, Charles Katz, is asking for a cancellation of his contract with Sam Stiefel, who is also Mickey Rooney's business associate and manager.

"What will you do?" I asked the voluable Stiefel.

"I'll give Russell his freedom," said Sam, who always acts so pained when these little matters concerning his clients come up for discussion, "Providing he pays me the $60,000 he owes me."

Andy Russell

A fabulous character, this Sam, who only came to Hollywood three years ago, and in that time took over the Mickey Rooney business, lock, stock and barrel.

His associate, Morton Brisken, went to Birmingham when the papers were signed by Betty Jane agreeing to a divorce and a settlement of $15,000 a year. This, Mrs. Rooney will contest in court, with Judge Leonard Wilson as her attorney.

It was curious about Stiefel and in answer to my inquiry he told me He came from Philadelphia and had money when he arrived in our town.

A new twist on the famous old play "If I Had a Million", which has been made a number of times for the screen, will bring it right back up to date. Paramount is remaking it with Alan Ladd and Veronica Lake, after she comes back from Europe.

Remember the original version and the famous scene in which Charles Laughton gave the first "raspberry" ever heard on a sound track? I wonder if Paramount will keep in that famous bit of insolence, for I hear the new version will be taken from an entirely different angle.

Here's the new story: It will deal with a very, very rich young man who almost dies in the South Pacific. Two of his buddies give him blood transfusions and save his life and to each of them he hands over a million dollars.

One of Norma Shearer's close friends is authority for the news that she and her husband, Marty Arrouge, and the two Thalberg children, plan to spend most of next year in Switzerland.

That's believable because Norma has been in Sun Valley since December and loves the cold weather and of course Marty, who was a ski teacher, is on his home ground there.

In Switzerland they will have all the advantages of skiing, plus some very good schools for Irving Thalberg Jr., and Katherine. When Mrs. William Thalberg was alive, Norma would never take the children away for any length of time because Henrietta loved to see her grandchildren. But now that she is gone, there is no reason why Norma shouldn't enjoy a season in St. Moritz where Marty could ski to his heart's content.

How does this affect Norma's Enterprise contract? David Lewis has a story idea for her.

The brief but stormy marriage of Seline Walters, former Powers model, and Dr. Alfred G. Huenergardt, Beverly Hills surgeon, has taken a turn for the better, and now they have reconciled she says.

Seline married the doctor February 10, 1946. Six months later, she divorced him and stated in court that the doctor had put her out of his home on a rainy night and the only clothes she had was the negligee she was wearing. She also stated he struck her.

Well, apparently, it wasn't as bad as Seline thought when she ranted in court against him. The doctor followed her to New York and now she's back, and they're making a new start.

Chatter in Hollywood: I think it's probably safe to say that before many days, you'll hear the news that Dorothy Patrick (Mrs. Jerome Kern in "Till the Clouds Roll By") has matrimonial plans.

When Dorothy was in New Orleans not long ago, she met Richard O'Day, a young New Orleans attorney. Now she's back in the southern city and she admits her reason for returning there is to see O'Day.

When a gal flies that far, you know it's plenty serious and this, I believe, is. Dorothy says she likes O'Day fine.

Laurence Olivier has cabled Byron Haskin asking for an option on "The Sea Witch", which Haskins owns.

Olivier says he will be in Hollywood September 7. Well, I'll believe it when I see it. He was due in February, then in April — and he isn't here yet.

Anyway, the story deals with a tough sea captain who is a regular tyrant on his ship, but the devil with the ladies when he hits port. The background is early American, and the author is Alexander Laing.

Whether or not Olivier makes this is one of those $64 questions which surround all of Larry's doings.

There's a perfectly lovely story that is so characteristic of Joseph M. Schenk, I have to tell it. He's been a very close friend of Irving Berlin and the Berlin family for a long time. Irving was at his wits end because he wanted to come to Hollywood for the summer and just couldn't find a house.

He finally found one at the beach that belonged to the Orsatti boys, Frank and Vic. But they wouldn't rent it. Irving told Joe about it. So what does Joe do but go out and buy the house and turn it over to the Berlins.

Joe returns from Florida tomorrow after three months absence.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Mickey Rooney and Beverly Tyler are now thatta way. Where is Tom Drake? Well, that is cold, cold, cold.

Ann Sheridan and Steve Hannagan have been visiting in Hobe Sound, near Palm Beach. Their only appearance in public was with the Gene Tunneys. They deny the rumor they were wed last week.

Valerie Hobson, British star, visits Hollywood in June. She'll be the house guest of the Rex Harrisons. Her last picture, "Great Expectations", is getting a big play.

Mrs. N. Peter Rathvon had five birthday cakes at the birthday party she gave in honor of her husband. Among those who celebrated their natal day were Sir Charles Mendl and William Pereira. Mrs. Rathvon left Monday for New York and Peter joins her today. She is to act as hostess at a special function in New York, which will be announced later.

Hank Fonda, who sat at the same table with me, says, "John Ford's picture, 'The Fugitive', is an anti-Red epic and denounces communism."

Gregory Peck, who just arrived from New York, and Mrs. Peck were also guests and I talked with Frances Marion, who is very pleased about her son Fred Thomson Jr.'s engagement to Joan Lindley. Ginny Simms, Edgar Bergen and his pretty Frances, Richard Ney, and the Hoagy Marmichaels were all on hand for the charming affair.

Cedric Gibbons and his pretty Hazel were on the maiden trip of the DC-6 when it took off for Hawaii Monday. They are meeting the John Marquards there.

Claude Auzello, managing director of the Paris Ritz spent the weekend in Hollywood with Marie and Sam Marx. They went with the Marxes to the reception Doris Kenyon and her very nice husband Bronislau Mlynarski gave Sunday. He is the brother of Mrs. Artur Rubenstein. Gloria Swanson, Atwater Kent and many others called during the afternoon to congratulate the happy pair.

Romney Defeats Keyser Tossers

Bill And Bob Sirk Star In 4-2 Battle

ROMNEY, W. Va., April 30 — Romney High School crashed the win column after losing its first two games by defeating Keyser High School's nine here today by the score of 4 to 2.

The Sirk Brothers played a prominent part in the Pioneers' triumph. Bob fanned an even dozen batsmen and had a two-hit, no-run game in his grasp until the seventh and final frame when Fazenbaker's single and doubles by Whipple and Spitzer averted a shutout defeat for Coach Clark's team. Catcher Bill Sirk put Romney out in front in the first inning when he smashed a homer to left field with Sid Roach on base. Liller's timely single netted two more Romney tallies in the third frame.

Fred Blamer, Keyser twirler, held the home team to four hits and struck out four batters. Fazenbaker and Spitzer shared four of Keyser's five sefeties. Box:

Tudor Minstrel Marks Up Sixth Straight Victory

Becomes Favorite For English Derby

By JIM CHAMBERS

NEWMARKET, England, April 30 —(AP)—Unbeaten Tudor Minstrel stretched his victory string to six in a row today when he romped home the winner by eight lengths in the 2,000 Guineas, Britain's first race classic of the season, on Newmarket heath.

Ridden by Champion Jockey Gordon Richards, the 11 to 8 favorite covered the one-mile route in 1:37 4-5, just one-fifth of a second off the record for this race set by Sunstar in 1911, in running away from 14 other three-year-olds.

The manner in which he captured first money of 10,040 pounds ($40,160) for his owner—"Lucky" J. A. Dewar, the whiskey magnate—stamped Tudor Minstrel as an outstanding favorite for the greatest classic of them all, the English Derby.

After the race, bookmakers would not bet more than 6 to 4 against Tudor Minstrel to take the Derby, to be run at a mile and a half at Epsom Downs June 7.

A camera, used at the Newmarket finish line for the first time, established the Princess Aly Khan's Saravan as the second place horse, a nose in front of the Maharaja of Baroda's Sayajirao, who cost 28,000 guineas ($117,600) as a yearling. France's lone challenger, Leon Volterra's Parisien, was fourth.

Newmarket is a free course and officials said it was impossible to tell just how many persons saw the race but old hands estimated that the largest crowd of all time saw what they described as a "super horse" score his impressive triumph.

Woodcock Leaves St. James Hospital

Woodcock's jaw was in steel splints, his right eye was slightly bloodshot and there was discoloration under his left eye to remind him of the London bout which Baski won by a technical knockout in the seventh round.

Doctors, however, assured the British champion that his jaw would be stronger than ever.

Bill Nicholson's Homer Sinks Dodgers In Ninth

Circuit Belt Gives Cubs 3 To 1 Decision

BROOKLYN, April 30 (AP) — Bill Nicholson's two run homer in the ninth, that bounced among the cars in a parking lot some 400 feet from home plate, gave rookie Doyle Lade and the Chicago Clubs a tight 3-1 victory today that snapped Brooklyn's six game win streak.

The burly Cub slugger had been unable to lift any of Ralph Branca's pitches out of the infield until he connected with his third home run of the year after Bob Scheffing singled with two out in the ninth.

Jet Pilot And Phalanx Are Top Derby Mudders

Faultless Has Never Started In The Slop

By SID FEDER

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 30—(AP)—Enough rain fell on Churchill Downs today to water all the bourbon in Kentucky, and all the harried horseplayers broke out their form sheets to find the mudders in Saturday's Kentucky Derby.

They discovered that while Phalanx, the big horse in the big heat, doesn't mind it a bit, wet, dry or lemonade, the one which really likes mud is Jet Pilot, owned by lipstick princess Elizabeth (Arden) Graham.

Silent Tom Smith, the one-time cowboy who trains him, goes so far these afternoons as to speak as many as five words all in one piece to tell you how much he's rooting for rain, come Saturday. The latest semi-official word this evening, however, promises no cooperation from old man weather.

As for Faultless, whose Derby Trial win yesterday moved him up close behind Phalanx as the ones to beat in this 73rd run for the roses, he's as unknown a quantity as ice in a hot oven. Plain Ben Jones admitted the tall romper he hopes will bring him his fourth Derby win has not only never started in the slop in a race, but actually hasn't even worked out on a track where rubber boots would be handy.

As a matter of fact only six of the 12 or 13 gallopers expected to be in the starting gate about 4:45 p. m. (Central Standard Time) Saturday have ever run in mud or slop. This leaves more question marks in this widest-open Derby field in years than there are beans in a bowl of chili.

Generally, it was figured that gooey going at least would do no harm to Stepfather, On Trust, Riskolater, Bullet Proof and Cosmic Bomb, as well as Jet Pilot and Phalanx.

On the other hand, no one knew a thing about how W. L. Sickle, Liberty Road, Faultless, Master Mind or Star Reward would go in the goo.

Romney Defeats Keyser Tossers

Bill And Bob Sirk Star In 4-2 Battle

ROMNEY, W. Va., April 30 — Romney High School crashed the win column after losing its first two games by defeating Keyser High School's nine here today by the score of 4 to 2.

The Sirk Brothers played a prominent part in the Pioneers' triumph. Bob fanned an even dozen batsmen and had a two-hit, no-run game in his grasp until the seventh and final frame when Fazenbaker's single and doubles by Whipple and Spitzer averted a shutout defeat for Coach Clark's team. Catcher Bill Sirk put Romney out in front in the first inning when he smashed a homer to left field with Sid Roach on base. Liller's timely single netted two more Romney tallies in the third frame.

Fred Blamer, Keyser twirler, held the home team to four hits and struck out four batters. Fazenbaker and Spitzer shared four of Keyser's five sefeties. Box:

Tudor Minstrel Marks Up Sixth Straight Victory

Becomes Favorite For English Derby

By JIM CHAMBERS

NEWMARKET, England, April 30 —(AP)—Unbeaten Tudor Minstrel stretched his victory string to six in a row today when he romped home the winner by eight lengths in the 2,000 Guineas, Britain's first race classic of the season, on Newmarket heath.

Ridden by Champion Jockey Gordon Richards, the 11 to 8 favorite covered the one-mile route in 1:37 4-5, just one-fifth of a second off the record for this race set by Sunstar in 1911, in running away from 14 other three-year-olds.

The manner in which he captured first money of 10,040 pounds ($40,160) for his owner—"Lucky" J. A. Dewar, the whiskey magnate—stamped Tudor Minstrel as an outstanding favorite for the greatest classic of them all, the English Derby.

After the race, bookmakers would not bet more than 6 to 4 against Tudor Minstrel to take the Derby, to be run at a mile and a half at Epsom Downs June 7.

A camera, used at the Newmarket finish line for the first time, established the Princess Aly Khan's Saravan as the second place horse, a nose in front of the Maharaja of Baroda's Sayajirao, who cost 28,000 guineas ($117,600) as a yearling. France's lone challenger, Leon Volterra's Parisien, was fourth.

Newmarket is a free course and officials said it was impossible to tell just how many persons saw the race but old hands estimated that the largest crowd of all time saw what they described as a "super horse" score his impressive triumph.

Woodcock Leaves St. James Hospital

LEEDS, England, April 30 (AP) — Bruce Woodcock, British heavyweight champion whose jaw was broken in his fight with Joe Baski of Kulpmont, Pa., April 15, left St. James Hospital today.

Woodcock's jaw was in steel splints, his right eye was slightly bloodshot and there was discoloration under his left eye to remind him of the London bout which Baski won by a technical knockout in the seventh round.

Doctors, however, assured the British champion that his jaw would be stronger than ever.

Bill Nicholson's Homer Sinks Dodgers In Ninth

Circuit Belt Gives Cubs 3 To 1 Decision

BROOKLYN, April 30 (AP) — Bill Nicholson's two run homer in the ninth, that bounced among the cars in a parking lot some 400 feet from home plate, gave rookie Doyle Lade and the Chicago Clubs a tight 3-1 victory today that snapped Brooklyn's six game win streak.

The burly Cub slugger had been unable to lift any of Ralph Branca's pitches out of the infield until he connected with his third home run of the year after Bob Scheffing singled with two out in the ninth.

Jet Pilot And Phalanx Are Top Derby Mudders

Faultless Has Never Started In The Slop

By SID FEDER

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 30—(AP)—Enough rain fell on Churchill Downs today to water all the bourbon in Kentucky, and all the harried horseplayers broke out their form sheets to find the mudders in Saturday's Kentucky Derby.

They discovered that while Phalanx, the big horse in the big heat, doesn't mind it a bit, wet, dry or lemonade, the one which really likes mud is Jet Pilot, owned by lipstick princess Elizabeth (Arden) Graham.

Silent Tom Smith, the one-time cowboy who trains him, goes so far these afternoons as to speak as many as five words all in one piece to tell you how much he's rooting for rain, come Saturday. The latest semi-official word this evening, however, promises no cooperation from old man weather.

As for Faultless, whose Derby Trial win yesterday moved him up close behind Phalanx as the ones to beat in this 73rd run for the roses, he's as unknown a quantity as ice in a hot oven. Plain Ben Jones admitted the tall romper he hopes will bring him his fourth Derby win has not only never started in the slop in a race, but actually hasn't even worked out on a track where rubber boots would be handy.

As a matter of fact only six of the 12 or 13 gallopers expected to be in the starting gate about 4:45 p. m. (Central Standard Time) Saturday have ever run in mud or slop. This leaves more question marks in this widest-open Derby field in years than there are beans in a bowl of chili.

Generally, it was figured that gooey going at least would do no harm to Stepfather, On Trust, Riskolater, Bullet Proof and Cosmic Bomb, as well as Jet Pilot and Phalanx.

On the other hand, no one knew a thing about how W. L. Sickle, Liberty Road, Faultless, Master Mind or Star Reward would go in the goo.

McPhail's Defiance May Cause Fireworks

Boss Of Yankees, 'Happy' Chandler To Tangle Today

Durocher Suspension Criticized By Larry

By FRITZ HOWELL

CINCINNATI, April 30 (AP)—Seldom silent Larry MacPhail and Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler have a question-answer period on tap tomorrow, and the confab may cause far-reaching reverberations in the top brackets of the national pastime.

Larry MacPhail

The red-haired prexy of the New York Yankees, who would rather talk than listen, is accused of violating the not-too-happy Chandler's edict of silence for all hands in the controversy which led to the April 9 suspension for the 1947 season of Leo (The Lip) Durocher, manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Larry Repeats Statement

MacPhail left no doubt today that he had ignored the commissioner's order, as he told New York newsmen "I repeat what I said last week in Newark—that so far as any evidence developed at the Sarasota and St. Petersburg hearings, there was nothing to justify even a five-minute suspension of Durocher."

Chandler, shown a copy of MacPhail's latest statements, merely clamped his jaw a little tighter and murmured "no comment."

Charges of defamation filed by MacPhail against Durocher and Branch Rickey, boss of the Bums, led to the Durocher suspension and $2,000 fines against both the Dodgers and the Yankees.

MacPhail told the New York newsmen today that "sooner or later baseball will have to define the powers of the commissioner. Since Chandler took office there already have been three or four instances where he came into disagreement with the league, and the points haven't been settled yet."

Setting the stage for a rugged battle tomorrow, MacPhail said that neither in Chandler's contract nor in the rules of procedure "is there anything which says that Chandler, or any succeeding commissioner, is empowered to suspend a man without advising the clubowners of the precise charges against him. Neither is there anything in writing which empowers a commissioner to impose silence on the parties to a hearing as Chandler did in his recent decision."

Might Lead To Showdown

MacPhail's open defiance today of the "silence" edict might lead to plenty of fireworks tomorrow, and might also presage a rumored showdown between Chandler and the clubowners who hired him.

The commissioner has observed his own ban on conversation regarding the Durocher incident, so no one knows just what he's going to ask the voluble redhead.

Chandler originally ordered Dan Topping and Del Webb, co-owners of the Yankees, to appear with MacPhail yesterday for a conference, but the chat was postponed when the latter pair couldn't attend. That makes tomorrow's session a man-to-man affair, with Topping and Webb coming in later.

SPORT SLANTS

May Impress Scouts • • • Keister's Long Heave

"Huck" Miers Tells One • • • Insurance For Boxers

By C. V. BURNS

Elwood May, pitching ace of last season's Moorefield American Legion team of the Interstate League, worked out at the Brooklyn Dodgers' school held recently at Charles Town, W. Va., and impressed the scouts so much that he was offered a contract with the National League's "farm" team at Pulaski, Va., according to Jesse Riggleman, Ridgeley High School coach, who was a teammate of May in 1946.

May won nine games and lost two for the Hardy County team last season. His only reverses were at the hands of the Cumberland American Legion championship team.

Edwin L. "Pappy" Kuhn, athletic director, says Uncle Bill Lewis will open his camp—Camp Cliffside—on the South Branch on Sunday, July 6.

Kuhn witnessed the four-team track meet at Fort Hill stadium on Tuesday and remarked it was the first time in 18 years he had viewed a meet as a spectator in the stands.

"Pappy" served as an official at track and field meets throughout the county prior to the war.

"That guy was really something," Miers declared.

"Potomac State would announce that its track team was entered in a meet away from home and Heydrick would get on the train. He participated in as many as seven events a meet for the Keyser school. Paul outscored many teams by himself and really kept Potomac State in the limelight."

"Huck" threw his hearers into stitches, however, when he told about Heydrick going to one of the big meets and after watching the champion hammer thrower warm up asked the latter the secret of his success.

"Give me that weight," Heydrick requested, "and lemme see what I can do with it."

"Honest," Miers asserted," Heydrick threw that weight so far he made the champion look like a has been. Then adding insult to injury Paul entered the event and beat the champion."

Heydrick's home was in Charleston.

Miers' story about Heydrick beating the champion recalls to mind the days when big Johnny Keister was the ace shot putter in Allegany county.

The Beall High School athlete was entered in the state meet at Baltimore and when the athletes returned we asked Coach J. Stanley Hunter if Keister won the shot put.

"Win the shot put!" exclaimed Hunter.

"Why he threw the darn thing out of the Baltimore Stadium."

One of Cumberland's star twirlers of yesteryear may essay a comeback with the Amvets of the Interstate League, according to Skipper Norman Gerdeman. He is Robert "Lefty" Appel, whom Gerdeman says has been working out.

We don't think "Lefty" can come back. He's been away too long. Appel is a bus driver for Blue Ridge lines.

Jimmie Deetz, the busy amateur bantamweight boxer, injured his hand in the last show held here and wants to know if the club sponsoring the show can be compelled to pay for an X-ray of his injury.

When boxers enter the ring they do so at their own risk but we believe the matchmaker sponsoring the show should be sporting enough to consent to bear the expense of an X-ray examination.

Deetz was always willing to fight when that matchmaker was lining up bouts. Amateur promoters are doing well financially or they wouldn't continue to hold shows.

The Deetz case shows a need for group insurance for boys participating in amateur shows here. In fact it might be a good idea to compel promoters to "cover" all the boys with insurance. We'll take up the matter immediately with the A. A. U. in Baltimore.

Arthur G. Ramey of the Allegany County Board of Education says a group insurance plan for all boys participating in high school athletics is now under consideration. Let's hope it is adopted for one never knows when an accident resulting in serious injury will occur.

Navy Stickmen Lose

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 30 (AP)—Navy, which has lost only one collegiate lacrosse game this season—to Princeton—was defeated 8 to 3 today by the powerful Mount Washington LaCrosse Club, with Bob Nance making three goals for the victors.

Substitute Mac McElory made two goals for Mt. Washington in the last half of the game.

Yankee Hurlers Unable To Stop St. Louis Browns

Home Run Barrage Marks 15-5 Victory

ST. LOUIS, April 30—(AP)—Banging out four home runs including one with the bases loaded by Jeff Heath in the first inning, the St. Louis Browns waltzed to a 15-5 victory over the New York Yankees today.

The Brownies cuffed starter Allie Reynolds and five relief hurlers for 14 blows while Denny Galehouse and Fred Sanford limited the Yanks to five safeties including a round-tripper by George McQuinn that climaxed a four run third inning New York rally.

Reynolds, who in his previous two outings, had shut out Washington and Boston, was driven to cover in the third when Vern Stephens and Walt Judnich blasted roundtrippers. Judnich ended the Brownie scoring spree by smashing his second homer of the game in the eighth inning. Box:

McPhail's Defiance May Cause Fireworks

Durocher Suspension Criticized By Larry

By FRITZ HOWELL

CINCINNATI, April 30 (AP)—Seldom silent Larry MacPhail and Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler have a question-answer period on tap tomorrow, and the confab may cause far-reaching reverberations in the top brackets of the national pastime.

Larry MacPhail

The red-haired prexy of the New York Yankees, who would rather talk than listen, is accused of violating the not-too-happy Chandler's edict of silence for all hands in the controversy which led to the April 9 suspension for the 1947 season of Leo (The Lip) Durocher, manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Larry Repeats Statement

MacPhail left no doubt today that he had ignored the commissioner's order, as he told New York newsmen "I repeat what I said last week in Newark—that so far as any evidence developed at the Sarasota and St. Petersburg hearings, there was nothing to justify even a five-minute suspension of Durocher."

Chandler, shown a copy of MacPhail's latest statements, merely clamped his jaw a little tighter and murmured "no comment."

Charges of defamation filed by MacPhail against Durocher and Branch Rickey, boss of the Bums, led to the Durocher suspension and $2,000 fines against both the Dodgers and the Yankees.

MacPhail told the New York newspapers today that "sooner or later baseball will have to define the powers of the commissioner. Since Chandler took office there already have been three or four instances where he came into disagreement with the league, and the points haven't been settled yet."

Setting the stage for a rugged battle tomorrow, MacPhail said that neither in Chandler's contract nor in the rules of procedure "is there anything which says that Chandler, or any succeeding commissioner, is empowered to suspend a man without advising the clubowners of the precise charges against him. Neither is there anything in writing which empowers a commissioner to impose silence on the parties to a hearing as Chandler did in his recent decision."

Might Lead To Showdown

MacPhail's open defiance today of the "silence" edict might lead to plenty of fireworks tomorrow, and might also presage a rumored showdown between Chandler and the clubowners who hired him.

The commissioner has observed his own ban on conversation regarding the Durocher incident, so no one knows just what he's going to ask the voluble redhead.

Chandler originally ordered Dan Topping and Del Webb, co-owners of the Yankees, to appear with MacPhail yesterday for a conference, but the chat was postponed when the latter pair couldn't attend. That makes tomorrow's session a man-to-man affair, with Topping and Webb coming in later.

"Huck" Miers Tells One • • • Insurance For Boxers

By C. V. BURNS

Elwood May, pitching ace of last season's Moorefield American Legion team of the Interstate League, worked out at the Brooklyn Dodgers' school held recently at Charles Town, W. Va., and impressed the scouts so much that he was offered a contract with the National League's "farm" team at Pulaski, Va., according to Jesse Riggleman, Ridgeley High School coach, who was a teammate of May in 1946.

May won nine games and lost two for the Hardy County team last season. His only reverses were at the hands of the Cumberland American Legion championship team.

Riggleman, incidentally, will play with the Ridgeley American Legion team in the same circuit this season.

Edwin L. "Pappy" Kuhn, athletic director, says Uncle Bill Lewis will open his camp—Camp Cliffside—on the South Branch on Sunday, July 6.

Kuhn witnessed the four-team track meet at Fort Hill stadium on Tuesday and remarked it was the first time in 18 years he had viewed a meet as a spectator in the stands.

"Pappy" served as an official at track and field meets throughout the county prior to the war.

"That guy was really something," Miers declared.

"Potomac State would announce that its track team was entered in a meet away from home and Heydrick would get on the train. He participated in as many as seven events a meet for the Keyser school. Paul outscored many teams by himself and really kept Potomac State in the limelight."

"Huck" threw his hearers into stitches, however, when he told about Heydrick going to one of the big meets and after watching the champion hammer thrower warm up asked the latter the secret of his success.

"Give me that weight," Heydrick requested, "and lemme see what I can do with it."

"Honest," Miers asserted," Heydrick threw that weight so far he made the champion look like a has been. Then adding insult to injury Paul entered the event and beat the champion."

Heydrick's home was in Charleston.

Miers' story about Heydrick beating the champion recalls to mind the days when big Johnny Keister was the ace shot putter in Allegany county.

The Beall High School athlete was entered in the state meet at Baltimore and when the athletes returned we asked Coach J. Stanley Hunter if Keister won the shot put.

"Win the shot put!" exclaimed Hunter.

"Why he threw the darn thing out of the Baltimore Stadium."

One of Cumberland's star twirlers of yesteryear may essay a comeback with the Amvets of the Interstate League, according to Skipper Norman Gerdeman. He is Robert "Lefty" Appel, whom Gerdeman says has been working out.

We don't think "Lefty" can come back. He's been away too long.

Appel is a bus driver for Blue Ridge lines.

Jimmie Deetz, the busy amateur bantamweight boxer, injured his hand in the last show held here and wants to know if the club sponsoring the show can be compelled to pay for an X-ray of his injury.

When boxers enter the ring they do so at their own risk but we believe the matchmaker sponsoring the show should be sporting enough to consent to bear the expense of an X-ray examination.

Deetz was always willing to fight when that matchmaker was lining up bouts. Amateur promoters are doing well financially or they wouldn't continue to hold shows.

The Deetz case shows a need for group insurance for boys participating in amateur shows here. In fact it might be a good idea to compel promoters to "cover" all the boys with insurance. We'll take up the matter immediately with the A. A. U. in Baltimore.

Arthur G. Ramey of the Allegany County Board of Education says a group insurance plan for all boys participating in high school athletics is now under consideration. Let's hope it is adopted for one never knows when an accident resulting in serious injury will occur.

The LaSalle-Fort Hill game Friday will be staged at Fort Hill field at 4 p. m. These schools will clash in a return game at Stitcher Field on May 20.

In other games scheduled tomorrow Hyndman will play at Paw Paw and Allegany will invade Mercersburg, Pa.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 30 (AP)—Navy, which has lost only one collegiate lacrosse game this season—to Princeton—was defeated 8 to 3 today by the powerful Mount Washington LaCrosse Club, with Bob Nance making three goals for the victors.

Substitute Mac McElory made two goals for Mt. Washington in the last half of the game.

Yankee Hurlers Unable To Stop St. Louis Browns

Home Run Barrage Marks 15-5 Victory

ST. LOUIS, April 30—(AP)—Banging out four home runs including one with the bases loaded by Jeff Heath in the first inning, the St. Louis Browns waltzed to a 15-5 victory over the New York Yankees today.

The Brownies cuffed starter Allie Reynolds and five relief hurlers for 14 blows while Denny Galehouse and Fred Sanford limited the Yanks to five safeties including a round-tripper by George McQuinn that climaxed a four run third inning New York rally.

Reynolds, who in his previous two outings, had shut out Washington and Boston, was driven to cover in the third when Vern Stephens and Walt Judnich blasted roundtrippers. Judnich ended the Brownie scoring spree by smashing his second homer of the game in the eighth inning. Box:

Resurvey Of Savage River Dam Started

Beall Wants Funds Provided This Year

At the request of Rep. J. Glenn Beall, a survey party under the direction of Army Engineers this week began a resurvey of the Savage River Dam in order to check the condition of the partially completed breastworks and arrive at an estimate of the cost of completing the project.

Army Engineers have recommended control of the Savage River by means of the Savage River Dam as the one method of flood control for the four towns of Luke and Westernport in Maryland and Piedmont and Keyser in West Virginia. They said the dam is the one thing that will prevent inundation of those communities.

Although the Savage River Dam was included in the overall flood control bill passed by the 79th Congress, the program covered a period of two or three years, and Rep. Beall has been making every effort to have the Appropriations Committee provide the money for completion of the dam in this year's budget.

Would Start Next Year

Should the funds become available in the federal budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1, work on the dam would be started next year. Work, when resumed, would have to be completed in the period between April and October, and for that reason the project would not be started anymore this year inasmuch as several months would be lost.

Besides urging inclusion of the funds in this year's budget as a means of providing flood protection for Westernport, Luke, Piedmont and Keyser, Beall also has insisted at hearing before the Appropriations Committee, that completion of the dam should be undertaken as soon as possible because further delay will increase the cost.

The resurvey party is checking the dam to determine to what extent, if any, work already done has deteriorated, and Beall pointed out that further delays would cause further deterioration, thus making the job of completing the work bigger and more costly.

Hearing Slated Soon

A hearing on completion of the dam will be held in about a week by a sub-committee of the Appropriations Committee and Beall said the facts will be presented and a request made for completion of the dam at this hearing.

Completion of the dam, he said, definitely will be a flood prevention for Luke, Westernport, Piedmont and Keyser.

Work on the dam was started by the Works Progress Administration and was suspended during the war.

Love, supervisor of the public health nursing service; Miss Margaret Neumann, public health nurse in the Westernport area; and Dr. Winter R. Frantz, assistant city and county health officer. Public health nurses standing are Miss Grace Hardman, who serves the North End and West Side in Cumberland; Miss Margaret L. Savage area; and Mrs. Isabel Laughlin, serving the eastern section of the county.

County's Child Health Services Cited In Report

Prevention Of Home Accidents Urged

Recalling that President Truman has asked the nation to observe today, May 1, as Child Health Day, Dr. Joseph P. Franklin, city and county health officer, urged all Allegany County parents to take steps to make their homes safe for their children.

Dr. Franklin listed burns and mechanical suffocation as the greatest killer of children in their homes. He pointed out that firearms also kill hundreds of the nation's children each year, and warned that parents should never leave loaded guns in a home where there are children. Guns should always be unloaded after use and stored in a locked cabinet out of the reach of children, he said.

As part of the county observance of Child Health Day, Dr. Franklin reviewed the work of the Cumberland Health Department during the past year in promoting child health through community health service.

Nurses' Work Reviewed

Last year 395 expectant mothers were instructed by public health nurses how to protect their health and prepare for childbirth. Reports show 603 nursing visits in the home were made to these expectant mothers.

Dr. Franklin pointed out that there are nine public health nurses in the county, under the supervision of Mrs. Anna E. Love, adding that nursing service for expectant mothers is available to all regardless of economic level, within the limitations of the nursing personnel. Arrangements for such service may be made by calling the Health Department.

He added that the aim of the Cumberland Health Department is to place every expectant mother under medical and nursing supervision as early in pregnancy as possible.

After the baby is born, the parents may receive guidance at child hygiene clinics in keeping the baby well. Dr. Franklin said 154 such clinics were held in 13 county centers last year, with 1,721 medical consultations given. Follow-up home nursing visits totaled 1,025.

For sick children, consultation service was provided monthly by a pediatric consultant of the State Health Department. Patients were referred to this clinic by private physicians and public health nurses through home visits. During the year 82 patients made a total of 205 visits to the clinic. The service involved many home nursing visits to facilitate diagnosis and to carry out recommendations.

Last year the public health nurses made 6,881 field nursing visits for all purposes, including visits to infants and school children, and to communicable disease patients.

Roundup Schedule Listed

Another feature of the Health Department's contribution to child health is the annual pre-school roundup, which is now in full swing. Dr. Franklin and Dr. Winter R. Frantz, assistant city and county health officer, are being assisted by the nine nurses in conducting physical examinations at county schools for children who will enter school in the fall.

Approximately 865 children have been examined and most of them have been immunized against smallpox and diphtheria, since the program began April 14. About 700 children remain to be examined. The remainder of the pre-school roundup schedule follows:

May 1, Paper Mill School, 9:30 a. m.; Corriganville, 10 a. m.; Ellerslie, 10:45 a. m.; 11:15 a. m., Barrelville; 1:30 p. m., Mt. Royal.

May 2—Hammond Street, 9:30 a. m. and 1 p. m.; Piney Plains, 1:30 p. m.

May 5 — Oldtown, 9:30 a. m.; Flintstone, 1:15 p. m.

May 6—Cresaptown, 9:30 a. m. and 1 p. m.

May 12—Columbia Street, 9:30 a. m. and 1:15 p. m.

May 13 — College Elementary School, Frostburg, 9:30 a. m.

HEADS SURVEY—Miss Betty Brown, a representative of the Bureau of Human Nutrition and Home Economics, United States Department of Agriculture, is in charge of a group of 15 local women who will begin a survey today regarding home consumption of food, among selected families of children attending East Side and Columbia Street Schools. The survey is designed to secure information for school officials and other persons instrumental in planning school lunch programs, so that school lunches can supplement home meals. All information secured in the survey, which is being made with the co-operation of the Board of Education, will be confidential.

Prayer Event Scheduled At Local Stadium

State Police Will Escort Caravans

State police escorts will be provided for Catholic school children and adults in motor caravans coming to Fort Hill stadium this evening from Frostburg, Midland and Westernport to attend a one-hour program of prayer for the conversion of Russia, according to Rev. Francis E. Montgomery, assistant pastor of St. Michael's Church, Frostburg, director of the event.

Father Montgomery said the Cumberland Police Department has given permission for the motor caravans to use Baltimore Street as a direct route to the stadium, adding that Baltimore and Ohio Railroad officials have advised him that no trains are due in Cumberland at 6:30, when caravans are scheduled to pass through the downtown section.

Seats To Be Reserved

Announcement was made last night by William C. Walsh that chairs will be placed on the field and seats reserved for all public officials, newspapermen and others who have received special invitations to attend the program. Those persons are requested to use the gate nearest Fort Hill High School and there will be someone at the gate to direct them to their seats on the field. They are not to enter the main stadium entrance but to go to the gate at the upper end of the stadium, Walsh said.

The demonstration, which is expected to attract 5,000 persons, including nearly 2,000 parochial school children from the eight county parishes, is part of a nationwide observance on May 1 for the same cause. Persons of all faiths are invited to attend the service, which will begin at 7 p. m.

The sermon will be delivered by Rev. Arthur Finan, CSSR, of Holy Redeemer College, Washington, D. C., and will be broadcast by Station WTBO. A procession will precede the prayer service, with school children marching from in front of Fort Hill High School to the stadium at 6:45 p. m.

The drum corps groups of Sons of the Legion, Fort Cumberland Post No. 13; Henry Hart Post No. 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and Farrady Post No. 24, Frostburg, will head the procession with the Arion Band of Frostburg. In event of rain, the program will be held in the State Armory.

School children will be seated in center sections of the stadium. An altar will be set up in the middle of the field, and the musical organizations will be grouped on either side of it. Priests from the eight parishes will be seated near the altar. Singing will be led by the LaSalle High School Glee Club.

Bus Service Arranged

Special bus service has been arranged. Buses will leave from the corner of Baltimore and Mechanic Streets at 6:15 p. m., 6:30 p. m. and 6:45 p. m. Buses will also leave the stadium after the service, Father Montgomery stated.

Among the priests who will participate in the program, in addition to Father Montgomery and Father Finan, are the Rev. Lawrence J. Kilkenny, Cumberland; Rev. Daniel Cummings, Lonaconing; Rev. Iraenus Reinl, O. F. M. Cap., and Rev. Charles W. Bogan, Cumberland.

Members of the committee arranging the event include John H. Mosner, general chairman; William C. Walsh, invitation chairman; John J. McMullen, publicity chairman, and Thomas F. Conlon, marshal.

The convention banquet Saturday at 6:30 p. m. will be held at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club, followed by a dance from 9 p. m. until 1 a. m.

On Sunday, a business session will be held at the Elks' home at 10 a. m. followed by a "get-away" luncheon at 12:30 p. m. with a short business session immediately afterwards, to adjourn the convention.

Liquor Board To Resume Its Hearings Today

Balance Of Renewals To Be Completed

With about 150 applicants unable to get their liquor licenses yesterday, the newly appointed Allegany County Liquor Control Board, after a conference with Circuit Court judges, announced that those who did not get their licenses yesterday, would not be charged with violations of the law for doing business today.

It was explained by members of the Board that it was impossible to hold hearings for all the applicants yesterday, and there are about 125 to 150 more renewals to be issued. Since licenses expired, under the old law, at midnight last night, the Board and judges decided it would be unfair to penalize those who had their applications on file, and waited all day yesterday without being heard.

Corridor Packed All Day

The second floor corridor of the Court House was jammed yesterday as over 300 applicants appeared for hearings to get their licenses. Members of the Board explained this was due to the fact that they have had very little time in which to work out a plan to avoid the last minute rush, and Chairman Walter C. Capper said the Board regrets the fact that so many people waited all day and must come back.

Those who appeared for renewals yesterday and were not heard were asked to return today, and were told by the Board secretary, Fred Crowe, that they could ignore the expiration date on old licenses, so far as today is concerned, since their applications are on file. The Board will resume its hearings at 9:15 a. m. today.

The hearings yesterday morning got underway slowly, but toward noon the tempo increased and by closing time, more than half the renewals had been issued.

Three Steps In Process

The hearings on the renewals and the issuance of the licenses were conducted in three steps.

First, the applicants appear before the board in groups of 10. Next they go downstairs singly to the office of the clerk of court where they file their bonds, and then finally receive their licenses.

As each group of ten applicants entered the auxiliary court room this morning they were sworn by Board Chairman Walter C. Capper, after which Board Member Henry J. Sweene read from the law and asked pertinent questions considered necessary.

Sweene, in his instructions, emphasized that no gambling in licensed places would be tolerated under any conditions and quoted that section of the liquor law which states that license holders found guilty of such an offense may be fined $1,000 or sent to the House of Correction for two years.

Sweene also referred applicants to Section 104 of the law which states that licensed establishments open for business must have one or more unobstructed windows facing onto the street.

Following Sweene's instructions and interrogation, Chairman Capper and Board Member Fred Crowe usually asked additional questions with the board chairman inquiring if "any changes had been made" in licensed establishments in the past year.

Windish, Jackson To Talk At State Grocers Meeting

George F. Garlitz, Cumberland, is president of the state association, and will preside. Three local association members will serve on committees at the convention. They are Daniel Y. Browne, auditing; Harry K. Poling, resolutions, and Robert F. Rizer, nominating.

Attending from the Western Maryland Association will be State President Garlitz and Mrs. Garlitz; Luther Hutter, state vice president, and Mrs. Hutter; Western Maryland President Windish and Mrs. Windish; Western Maryland Secretary Jackson and Mrs. Jackson; Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Rizer, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Warnick, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Y Browne, Mr. and Mrs. Harry K. Poling, Mrs. Margaret K Newcomer, Mrs. Walter N. Yoder, Fred Crowe, Western Maryland vice president; J. R. Mantheiy and Alfred G. Hutter.

The local delegation will leave here at 9 a. m. Sunday The convention will be held in Hotel Alexander

Trial Slated Today In Theft Case

Two Cresaptown youths, booked as Gene Keister and James Skelley, will be given hearings in Trial Magistrates Court today on charges of taking articles from a car parked near the Clary Club Tuesday night, State Police reported.

Troopers William McElfish and Walter Wilt arrested the pair several hours after the theft was reported by Carl Hersh, 605 Greene Street. Hersh said the articles taken from his car included white sidewall rims, mirror, Army blanket, two flashlights and two pair of sunglasses.

The officers said the articles were found in the automobile in which the youths were riding when they were arrested. They added that they are trying to locate the owners of hub caps and white sidewall rims recovered in addition to those owned by Hersh.

Pubber Union To Set Date For Referendum

A regular meeting of Local 26, United Rubber, Cork, Linoleum and Plastic Workers of America, CIO, will be held tonight at 7:30 o'clock at the union hall, South Mechanic Street.

Among matters to be considered will be action on a recommended date for a referendum vote on a proposal to make the post of president of the local a full time paid position.

Legion Committee Inspects Building

Members of a committee from Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion, inspected the old Footer Building on South Mechanic Street, with the idea of determining if the structure would be suitable for a Legion Post home, club, gymnasium, etc. The committee will make a report at the next regular post meeting.

While no formal decision was announced, several members indicated the idea is not practical, as the cost of remodeling would be excessive and the total amount of money involved in purchasing and remodeling, would build a new and modern structure more than adequate for the post's requirements. Several members of the committee said they had not bothered to make the inspection as they were opposed to the plan in the first place.

Held For Assault

William Smith, bartender at Fulton Myers Post, American Legion, was confined to the county jail late yesterday afternoon, after sheriff's deputies served a warrant on him, on a charge of assaulting his wife, Margaret Smith.

The warrant was obtained in Trial Magistrates' Court by Margaret Yates, where a hearing is set for 10 a. m. today.

Court House Has Busiest Day

April 30 is usually the busiest day of the year at the Court House, and yesterday was no exception.

In addition to several hundred traders licenses and other permits issued yesterday, with upwards of 200 beer, wine and liquor licenses handled, the office of Robert Jackson, clerk of court, received about 250 Notary Public commissions and numerous other forms and documents to be recorded.

Commissions were also received for Dr. W. O. McLane and Edward J. Ryan, appointed by Governor William Preston Lane as members of the Board of Directors of Miners' Hospital, Frostburg. A commission for Charles M. See was received, naming him again to the board of the Maryland Workshop for the Blind.

Clerks and deputies in Jacskson's office were busy long after the Court House closerd yesterday, balancing up licenses sales, completing records and checking in the day's receipts which were expected to set an all time record.

In all parts of the building people were waiting to get licenses of one kind or another, to participate in liquor board hearings, or court trials, and the place was a bee hive of activity.

Tired clerks and attaches said as the Court House closed, "tomorrow will probably be just about as busy."

Jobs Decrease But Wages Gain, Report Shows

Utility Workers Continue Contract Sessions With PE

At the request of the Potomac Edison Company, Local 331, Utility Workers Union, CIO will meet with company representatives next Thursday to continue negotiations on a new contract, James H. Dean, president, reported last night.

Dean did not disclose the company offer but said it was far below the 15 cents an hour pattern set in other units of the power industry through both negotiations and arbitration.

The union, representing employes of the river plant, Celanese substation, steam heating plant and linemen requested arbitration of the contract provisions at a meeting Tuesday, Dean said, but the company declined to arbitrate.

Although the contract between the company and the union expires today, the agreement, as do most of the contracts made in this area, remains in force until a new agreement is reached, but contains a provision that either party may, upon 10 days notice, request its cancellation.

The union has not yet filed a notice of intention of taking a strike vote under the Smith-Connally Act. Union officials said negotiations here may depend upon the outcome of talks between the UW and the West Penn Power Company.

Lightning Causes Brief Power Failure

The Potomac Edison Company reported a power failure for 20 minutes yesterday at 3:25 p. m. when lightning struck an insulator at a point between the Thomas Street station and Oldtown on the 33,000-volt high tension line between Cumberland and Oldtown.

Service was resumed at 3:55 p. m. by using a parallel loop line from Cumberland to Frostburg, Keyser and Romney, W. Va., and back to Oldtown. A crew of eight linemen was sent out to patrol the high tension line and locate the insulator. Repair work was expected to be completed last night.

The company said there was one transformer interruption in LaVale during the afternoon thundershower, but service was restored within a few minutes.

Reported Missing

Police yesterday were asked to locate Mrs. Edith Broadwater Long, 35, Spring Gap, whose husband, Clifford Long, reported her missing.

Said to be a former resident of Barton, Mrs. Long was described as five feet six inches tall and weighing 130 pounds. She has light brown hair and was wearing a red coat, brown skirt and white blouse when she came to Cumberland with her husband Tuesday to go shopping, police said. They added that she failed to return to her automobile to go home.

Criminal Appeal Cases Heard In Circuit Court

One Verdict Upheld, Another Is Annulled

Two criminal appeal cases were tried in Circuit Court yesterday, involving autombobile law charges, and the decision of Trial Magistrates Court was upheld in one case annulled in another.

William F. Fogle, represented by Morris Baron and Edward J. Ryan, was found guilty of a charge of reckless and negligent driving and was ordered to pay the fine of $25 and $28.35 court costs. He had been fined $25 plus $2.45 costs in the lower court.

While on the witness stand, under questioning of Assistant State's Attorney Paul M. Fletcher, Fogle said he had been convicted several times on motor vehicle violations. The case in question involved an accident on U. S. Route 40, west of the city in which Fogle said he "was knocked out." He contended that another car approaching him had attempted to pass other vehicles, causing a wreck. Police said Fogle was driving across the line in the center of the road.

Another appeal case, that of John A. Byron convicted in the lower court of drunken driving and reckless driving, who was fined a total of $110 was continued until Monday to hear additional witnesses.

A jury yesterday reversed a lower court decision and found Don C. Swisher, a B. & O. employe, not guilty of driving his automobile while under the influence of alcohol last February 5.

Swisher was arrested by Officer R. M. Nuse the night of February 5 when the defendant drove his car into a pile of dirt due to city street work at the intersection of Thomas and Second Streets.

Nuse charged Swisher with drunken driving and the defendant was found guilty and fined $100 and costs in Trial Magistrates' Court. Swisher paid the fine but later appealed the case.

As a result of the jury's decision, Swisher's fine and costs will be refunded.

On the stand Swisher said he went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Wotring, 22 Virginia avenue, around 7 o'clock the night of February 5 and spent the evening there playing setback. He left to go home around 11:30, he said, and declared he had nothing to drink during the evening, a statement that was corroborated by both Wotring and his wife, Mrs. Eleanor Wotring.

Swisher said that the dirt pile left by city employes was not observed by himself which, he said, might have been partially due to the fact that the windshield of his car was partially frosted. In refuting charges that his car had been "weaving" prior to the accident, Swisher said this was due to his efforts to avoid hitting numerous holes in the pavement.

Assistant State's Attorney Paul M. Fletcher called John Arbogast, a bus driver, to the stand with Arbogast testifying that he saw Swisher drive through a stop sign prior to the accident without coming to a halt and that Swisher's car was "weaving". When Swisher struck the dirt bank, Arbogast said he reported the accident to police.

Resurvey Of Savage River Dam Started

Beall Wants Funds Provided This Year

At the request of Rep. J. Glenn Beall, a survey party under the direction of Army Engineers this week began a resurvey of the Savage River Dam in order to check the condition of the partially completed breastworks and arrive at an estimate of the cost of completing the project.

Army Engineers have recommended control of the Savage River by means of the Savage River Dam as the one method of flood control for the four towns of Luke and Westernport in Maryland and Piedmont and Keyser in West Virginia. They said the dam is the one thing that will prevent inundation of those communities.

Although the Savage River Dam was included in the overall flood control bill passed by the 79th Congress, the program covered a period of two or three years, and Rep. Beall has been making every effort to have the Appropriations Committee provide the money for completion of the dam in this year's budget.

Would Start Next Year

Should the funds become available in the federal budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1, work on the dam would be started next year. Work, when resumed, would have to be completed in the period between April and October, and for that reason the project would not be started anymore this year inasmuch as several months would be lost.

Besides urging inclusion of the funds in this year's budget as a means of providing flood protection for Westernport, Luke, Piedmont and Keyser, Beall also has insisted at hearing before the Appropriations Committee, that completion of the dam should be undertaken as soon as possible because further delay will increase the cost.

The resurvey party is checking the dam to determine to what extent, if any, work already done has deteriorated, and Beall pointed out that further delays would cause further deterioration, thus making the job of completing the work bigger and more costly.

Hearing Slated Soon

A hearing on completion of the dam will be held in about a week by a sub-committee of the Appropriations Committee and Beall said the facts will be presented and a request made for completion of the dam at this hearing.

Completion of the dam, he said, definitely will be a flood prevention for Luke, Westernport, Piedmont and Keyser.

Work on the dam was started by the Works Progress Administration and was suspended during the war.

County's Child Health Services Cited In Report

Prevention Of Home Accidents Urged

Recalling that President Truman has asked the nation to observe today, May 1, as Child Health Day, Dr. Joseph P. Franklin, city and county health officer, urged all Allegany County parents to take steps to make their homes safe for their children.

Dr. Franklin listed burns and mechanical suffocation as the greatest killer of children in their homes. He pointed out that firearms also kill hundreds of the nation's children each year, and warned that parents should never leave loaded guns in a home where there are children. Guns should always be unloaded after use and stored in a locked cabinet out of the reach of children, he said.

As part of the county observance of Child Health Day, Dr. Franklin reviewed the work of the Cumberland Health Department during the past year in promoting child health through community health service.

Nurses' Work Reviewed

Last year 395 expectant mothers were instructed by public health nurses how to protect their health and prepare for childbirth. Reports show 603 nursing visits in the home were made to these expectant mothers.

Dr. Franklin pointed out that there are nine public health nurses in the county, under the supervision of Mrs. Anna E. Love, adding that nursing service for expectant mothers is available to all regardless of economic level, within the limitations of the nursing personnel. Arrangements for such service may be made by calling the Health Department.

He added that the aim of the Cumberland Health Department is to place every expectant mother under medical and nursing supervision as early in pregnancy as possible.

After the baby is born, the parents may receive guidance at child hygiene clinics in keeping the baby well. Dr. Franklin said 154 such clinics were held in 13 county centers last year, with 1,721 medical consultations given. Follow-up home nursing visits totaled 1,025.

For sick children, consultation service was provided monthly by a pediatric consultant of the State Health Department. Patients were referred to this clinic by private physicians and public health nurses through home visits. During the year 82 patients made a total of 205 visits to the clinic. The service involved many home nursing visits to facilitate diagnosis and to carry out recommendations.

Last year the public health nurses made 6,881 field nursing visits for all purposes, including visits to infants and school children, and to communicable disease patients.

Roundup Schedule Listed

Another feature of the Health Department's contribution to child health is the annual pre-school roundup, which is now in full swing. Dr. Franklin and Dr. Winter R. Frantz, assistant city and county health officer, are being assisted by the nine nurses in conducting physical examinations at county schools for children who will enter school in the fall.

Approximately 865 children have been examined and most of them have been immunized against smallpox and diphtheria, since the program began April 14. About 700 children remain to be examined. The remainder of the pre-school roundup schedule follows:

May 1, Paper Mill School, 9:30 a. m.; Corriganville, 10 a. m.; Ellerslie, 10:45 a. m.; 11:15 a. m., Barrelville; 1:30 p. m., Mt. Royal.

HEADS SURVEY—Miss Betty Brown, a representative of the Bureau of Human Nutrition and Home Economics, United States Department of Agriculture, is in charge of a group of 15 local women who will begin a survey today regarding home consumption of food among selected families of children attending East Side and Columbia Street Schools. The survey is designed to secure information for school officials and other persons instrumental in planning school lunch programs, so that school lunches can supplement home meals. All information secured in the survey, which is being made with the co-operation of the Board of Education, will be confidential.

Prayer Event Scheduled At Local Stadium

State Police Will Escort Caravans

State police escorts will be provided for Catholic school children and adults in motor caravans coming to Fort Hill stadium this evening from Frostburg, Midland and Westernport to attend a one-hour program of prayer for the conversion of Russia, according to Rev. Francis E. Montgomery, assistant pastor of St. Michael's Church, Frostburg, director of the event.

Father Montgomery said the Cumberland Police Department has given permission for the motor caravans to use Baltimore Street as a direct route to the stadium, adding that Baltimore and Ohio Railroad officials have advised him that no trains are due in Cumberland at 6:30, when caravans are scheduled to pass through the downtown section.

Seats To Be Reserved

Announcement was made last night by William C. Walsh that chairs will be placed on the field and seats reserved for all public officials, newspapermen and others who have received special invitations to attend the program. Those persons are requested to use the gate nearest Fort Hill High School and there will be someone at the gate to direct them to their seats on the field. They are not to enter the main stadium entrance but to go to the gate at the upper end of the stadium, Walsh said.

The demonstration, which is expected to attract 5,000 persons, including nearly 2,000 parochial school children from the eight county parishes, is part of a nationwide observance on May 1 for the same cause. Persons of all faiths are invited to attend the service, which will begin at 7 p. m.

The sermon will be delivered by Rev. Arthur Finan, CSSR, of Holy Redeemer College, Washington, D. C., and will be broadcast by Station WTBO. A procession will precede the prayer service, with school children marching from in front of Fort Hill High School to the stadium at 6:45 p. m.

The drum corps groups of Sons of the Legion, Fort Cumberland Post No. 13; Henry Hart Post No. 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and Farrady Post No. 24, Frostburg, will head the procession with the Arion Band of Frostburg. In event of rain, the program will be held in the State Armory.

School children will be seated in center sections of the stadium. An altar will be set up in the middle of the field, and the musical organizations will be grouped on either side of it. Priests from the eight parishes will be seated near the altar. Singing will be led by the LaSalle High School Glee Club.

Bus Service Arranged

Special bus service has been arranged. Buses will leave from the corner of Baltimore and Mechanic Streets at 6:15 p. m., 6:30 p. m. and 6:45 p. m. Buses will also leave the stadium after the service, Father Montgomery stated.

Among the priests who will participate in the program, in addition to Father Montgomery and Father Finan, are the Rev. Lawrence J. Kilkenny, Cumberland; Rev. Daniel Cummings, Lonaconing; Rev. Iraenus Reinl, O. F. M. Cap., and Rev. Charles W. Bogan, Cumberland.

Liquor Board To Resume Its Hearings Today

Balance Of Renewals To Be Completed

With about 150 applicants unable to get their liquor licenses yesterday, the newly appointed Allegany County Liquor Control Board, after a conference with Circuit Court judges, announced that those who did not get their licenses yesterday, would not be charged with violations of the law for doing business today.

It was explained by members of the Board that it was impossible to hold hearings for all the applicants yesterday, and there are about 125 to 150 more renewals to be issued. Since licenses expired, under the old law, at midnight last night, the Board and judges decided it would be unfair to penalize those who had their applications on file, and waited all day yesterday without being heard.

Corridor Packed All Day

The second floor corridor of the Court House was jammed yesterday as over 300 applicants appeared for hearings to get their licenses. Members of the Board explained this was due to the fact that they have had very little time in which to work out a plan to avoid the last minute rush, and Chairman Walter C. Capper said the Board regrets the fact that so many people waited all day and must come back.

Those who appeared for renewals yesterday and were not heard were asked to return today, and were told by the Board secretary, Fred Crowe, that they could ignore the expiration date on old licenses, so far as today is concerned, since their applications are on file. The Board will resume its hearings at 9:15 a. m. today.

The hearings yesterday morning got underway slowly, but toward noon the tempo increased and by closing time, more than half the renewals had been issued.

Three Steps In Process

The hearings on the renewals and the issuance of the licenses were conducted in three steps.

First, the applicants appear before the board in groups of 10. Next they go downstairs singly to the office of the clerk of court where they file their bonds, and then finally receive their licenses.

As each group of ten applicants entered the auxiliary court room this morning they were sworn by Board Chairman Walter C. Capper, after which Board Member Henry J. Sweene read from the law and asked pertinent questions considered necessary.

Sweene, in his instructions, emphasized that no gambling in licensed places would be tolerated under any conditions and quoted that section of the liquor law which states that license holders found guilty of such an offense may be fined $1,000 or sent to the House of Correction for two years.

Sweene also referred applicants to Section 104 of the law which states that licensed establishments open for business must have one or more unobstructed windows facing onto the street.

Following Sweene's instructions and interrogation, Chairman Capper and Board Member Fred Crowe usually asked additional questions with the board chairman inquiring if "any changes had been made" in licensed establishments in the past year.

Criminal Appeal Cases Heard In Circuit Court

One Verdict Upheld, Another Is Annulled

Two criminal appeal cases were tried in Circuit Court yesterday, involving automobile law charges, and the decision of Trial Magistrates Court was upheld in one case annulled in another.

William F. Fogle, represented by Morris Baron and Edward J. Ryan, was found guilty of a charge of reckless and negligent driving and was ordered to pay the fine of $25 and $28.35 court costs. He had been fined $25 plus $2.45 costs in the lower court.

While on the witness stand, under questioning of Assistant State's Attorney Paul M. Fletcher, Fogle said he had been convicted several times on motor vehicle violations. The case in question involved an accident on U. S. Route 40, west of the city in which Fogle said he "was knocked out." He contended that another car approaching him had attempted to pass other vehicles, causing a wreck. Police said Fogle was driving across the line in the center of the road.

Another appeal case, that of John A. Byron convicted in the lower court of drunken driving and reckless driving, who was fined a total of $110 was continued until Monday to hear additional witnesses.

A jury yesterday reversed a lower court decision and found Don C. Swisher, a B. & O. employe, not guilty of driving his automobile while under the influence of alcohol last February 5.

Swisher was arrested by Officer R. M. Nuse the night of February 5 when the defendant drove his car into a pile of dirt due to city street work at the intersection of Thomas and Second Streets.

Nuse charged Swisher with drunken driving and the defendant was found guilty and fined $100 and costs in Trial Magistrates' Court. Swisher paid the fine but later appealed the case.

As a result of the jury's decision, Swisher's fine and costs will be refunded.

On the stand Swisher said he went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Wotring, 22 Virginia avenue, around 7 o'clock the night of February 5 and spent the evening there playing setback. He left to go home around 11:30, he said, and declared he had nothing to drink during the evening, a statement that was corroborated by both Wotring and his wife, Mrs. Eleanor Wotring.

Swisher said that the dirt pile left by city employes was not observed by himself which, he said, might have been partially due to the fact that the windshield of his car was partially frosted. In refuting charges that his car had been "weaving" prior to the accident, Swisher said this was due to his efforts to avoid hitting numerous holes in the pavement.

Assistant State's Attorney Paul M. Fletcher called John Arbogast, a bus driver, to the stand with Arbogast testifying that he saw Swisher drive through a stop sign prior to the accident without coming to a halt and that Swisher's car was "weaving". When Swisher struck the dirt bank, Arbogast said he reported the accident to police.

Trial Slated Today In Theft Case

Two Cresaptown youths, booked as Gene Keister and James Skelley, will be given hearings in Trial Magistrates Court today on charges of taking articles from a car parked near the Clary Club Tuesday night, State Police reported.

Troopers William McElfish and Walter Wilt arrested the pair several hours after the theft was reported by Carl Hersh, 605 Greene Street. Hersh said the articles taken from his car included white sidewall rims, mirror, Army blanket, two flashlights and two pair of sunglasses.

Legion Committee Inspects Building

Members of a committee from Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion, inspected the old Footer Building on South Mechanic Street, with the idea of determining if the structure would be suitable for a Legion Post home, club, gymnasium, etc. The committee will make a report at the next regular post meeting.

While no formal decision was announced, several members indicated the idea is not practical, as the cost of remodeling would be excessive and the total amount of money involved in purchasing and remodeling, would build a new and modern structure more than adequate for the post's requirements. Several members of the committee said they had not bothered to make the inspection as they were opposed to the plan in the first place.

Comprising the committee are Frederick A. Puderbaugh, chairman; Jack Fey, co-chairman, and William Wilson, Jr., Paul C Weisenmiller, George Buskey, Leo C. Reichert, Patrick J. Commissions were also received for Dr. W. O. McLane and Edward J. Ryan, appointed by Governor William Preston Lane as members of the Board of Directors of Miners' Hospital, Frostburg. In all parts of the building people were waiting to get licenses of one kind or another, to participate in liquor board hearings, or court trials, and the place was a bee hive of activity.

Tired clerks and attaches said as the Court House closed, "tomorrow will probably be just about as busy."

Utility Workers Continue Contract Sessions With PE

At the request of the Potomac Edison Company, Local 331, Utility Workers Union, CIO will meet with company representatives next Thursday to continue negotiations on a new contract, James H. Dean, president, reported last night.

Dean did not disclose the company offer but said it was far below the 15 cents an hour pattern set in other units of the power industry through both negotiations and arbitration.

The union, representing employes of the river plant, Celanese substation, steam heating plant and linemen requested arbitration of the contract provisions at a meeting Tuesday, Dean said, but the company declined to arbitrate.

Although the contract between the company and the union expires today, the agreement, as do most of the contracts made in this area, remains in force until a new agreement is reached, but contains a provision that either party may, upon 10 days notice, request its cancellation.

The union has not yet filed a notice of intention of taking a strike vote under the Smith-Connally Act. Union officials said negotiations here may depend upon the outcome of talks between the UW and the West Penn Power Company.
